Job Training Emphasis

Democrats Hike LBJ Fund Request for New Antipoverty Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats writing new antipoverty legislation have decided to boost President Johnson's money request by $245 million and put more emphasis on job training programs.

After weeks of private meetings, Democrats on the Education and Labor Committee agreed Wednesday night on a bill that would give Congress a lot more authority over how antipoverty funds are spent.

The bill would boost the fund authorization for the Office of Economic Opportunity—OEO—to $1.99 billion. Johnson had asked for $1.75 billion. The current authorization is $1.5 billion.

More Control

More significant for the future conduct of the war on poverty, however, is the increased control over the program that the bill would give Congress.

For the first time the OEO would be told how much money it can spend on specific programs, how much it can spend on salaries of local antipoverty officials — $12,500 each yearly — and how it should operate certain programs.

For the most part, the bill the Democrats now hope to push through the full Education and Labor Committee and the House calls for more emphasis on the successful programs, and a curtailing of the experimental projects.

Head Start

Thus a big boost is earmarked for the popular Head Start preschool program for which the OEO had sought $327 million to take care of 710,000 children. The bill says $400 million should be spent to give 845,000 the training.

Expansion of the Neighborhood Youth Corps is also called for, up from $300 million requested by the OEO for 354,000 youths to $563 million, enough to enroll 500,000 young men and women in the program that provides jobs in public and nonprofit agencies. The age of those eligible for the program would be increased from 22 to 25.

A program to provide similar work for the older, hard-core unemployed would increase from $10 million requested by the OEO to $100 million.

Major Change

The bill also would make a major administrative change, taking the work experience program for older heads of families away from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and fitting it into the manpower training programs of the Department of Labor with a budget of $135 million.

It would write into the law something Congress has tried to get the OEO to do for the past two years — bring more women into the Job Corps. The bill says 10,000 of the 45,000 in the Job Corps shall be women.

Volcano Erupts In Populous Area of Java

Reports List at Least 13 Dead; Village Destroyed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A volcanic eruption in heavily populated East Java has demolished one village and is threatening the town of Blitar, reports from the area said today.

The 5,678-foot volcano, Mt. Kelut, erupted Monday night. Thirteen persons have been reported killed so far, but the toll is considered certain to climb.

Civil defense and Red Cross officials in Jakarta, about 400 miles west of the area, have no details on casualties yet.

Antara, the official news agency, said the eruption wiped out the village of Bambunan, about two miles from the crater. It was not known how many persons lived there.

Civil defense officials said hot lava had reached the edge of Blitar, about 10 miles south of Mt. Kelut. The town, with a population of 28,000, is in an area where many of President Sukarno's relatives live.

Hot ash was reported falling more than six miles from the volcano and lava, sand and ashes reportedly filled the Sima, Dermo and Badak rivers.

Measure Gets One-Vote Margin; GOP Objectors Call Bill Poorly Prepared

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a one-vote margin, the Senate has approved funds for President Johnson's program of rent subsidies for low-income families.

But the administration and its Senate leaders had to use all their resources to get the votes needed for Wednesday's 46-45 victory authorizing $12 million in contract authority for the new program.

After that vote, the Senate passed, 72-12 a $2.8 billion supplemental money bill that included the rent subsidies funds.

Republicans led the floor fight against the new administration program, declaring that it was poorly prepared and could cost the federal government $6 billion over the next 40 years.

Surely Noxious

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen cried that the subsidies are "sure to become noxious in American life."

Democrats contended that the new plan could do a better job of providing good homes for low-income families than the present low-rent public housing program.

The estimated subsidies of $40 a month for each family under the program would be less than the $58 which public housing now costs, they said.

Robert C. Weaver, secretary of housing and urban development, has estimated the $12 million will finance 20,000 units of new housing for rent-subsidized tenants in projects built by nonprofit organizations. None of the subsidies would go to private landlords.

The federal government would pay the difference between 25 per cent of a family's income and the rent needed to support the apartment project.

Now Eligible

Only families now eligible for public housing — generally those with incomes below $5,760 a year — could qualify.

Voting to retain the money were 41 Democrats and 5 Republicans; opposed were 26 Democrats and 19 Republicans.

The 1965 housing bill authorized $30 million for the subsidies this year and Johnson originally asked that figure. But Senate Democratic leaders decided not to try to go beyond the $12 million already approved in the House.

After Senate passage, the supplemental bill was sent to conference with the House which had included $2.56 billion in it. Funds for the rent subsidies are certain to be retained since they are in both versions.

Proxmire, Nelson Vote With Majority

WASHINGTON (AP) —Democratic Senators Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire of Wisconsin voted with the majority Wednesday as the Senate rejected an appropriations bill amendment that would strike out $12 million for a rent supplement program.

The amendment was rejected 46-45 in a roll call vote.

Budget Hikes Recommended By Committee

Appropriations Unit Blasts Hole in LBJ Money Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee blasted a big hole in President Johnson's 1967 budget plans today by recommending huge increases in financing of health and education programs.

It added an unrequested $276,413,000 to the $10,066,129,500 sought by the President in new funds for the Labor Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for the fiscal year starting July 1.

In a formal report accompanying the money bill, which the House will consider next week, the committee criticized the administration for failing "to make proper allowance for the needs of" existing health program. The House is expected to go along, as usual, with the committee's recommendations.

Second Refusal

It is the second time in a week that the powerful committee refused to follow the President's fiscal leadership. Last week it added $28 million in unsought money to the annual Agriculture Department bill that the House approved unchanged Tuesday.

The four Republican members of a subcommittee that drafted the bill filed a minority report urging that it be delayed until the administration gives Congress "a realistic assessment" of how much more money will be needed for defense.

The four are Reps. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, Robert H. Michel of Illinois and Garner E. Shriver of Kansas.

Downpour Causes Flooding

3 Persons Drown as Rain Inundates Parts of Texas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Three persons drowned today when tremendous rains flooded hundreds of persons from their homes in Dallas and a northern suburb, Garland.

Firemen axed through an auto's back window to free a woman from the car which had been swept into a swollen creek, but the man with her was trapped and drowned.

Robert Buck and his wife, Adrienne, of San Antonio, who moved to Texas recently from East Point, Ga., both drowned when their car was swept from a road into a creek.

More Trouble

At dawn, the downpour which had been falling at about an inch an hour subsided, and Mayor Eric Jonsson said "we think three will be all the loss of life, but if there's more rain we'll have more trouble."

Fire department boats, carried by station wagons to scenes of local flooding, plucked people from trees, rooftops, and the roofs of cars in flooded expressway underpasses.

Water got into the Ford Motor Co assembly plant in northeast Dallas, forcing it to close until Friday, idling 1,500 workers.

The new round of turbulent weather came as rivers and lesser streams throughout the eastern half of Texas poured floodwaters toward the sea. Rains up to 21 inches had flooded wide areas, particularly to the east of Dallas.

Six of the missing were Dallas firemen, unreported since they went on two separate rescue missions. Two of these reportedly were swept away in a car by rushing waters.

Groundwork Laid for Talks On Rhodesia

British Envoy Heads Back After Making Preparations

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's special envoy, Oliver Wright, flew home from Africa today with the groundwork laid for talks aimed at ending the Rhodesian crisis.

Meanwhile, another British troubleshooter, Malcolm MacDonald, prepared to leave on a mission to persuade the political leaders of black Africa that the coming talks with the rebel regime of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith will not constitute a British sellout to Rhodesian white supremacists.

Wright arranged the negotiations in secret contacts with Smith and with Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa.

It was the first breakthrough toward a Rhodesian settlement since Smith's white minority government declared independence from Britain last Nov. 1.

The British demand that a settlement provide unimpeded progress toward eventual majority rule by Rhodesia's 4 million black Africans.

In return, Britain is prepared to underwrite and defend the rights of Rhodesia's 250,000 whites and pay for a crash program of African education.

British sanctions against Rhodesia will continue until a constitutional settlement is reached. They failed to produce the almost immediate surrender which Wilson expected.

Safety Car Wins Praise Of Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee studying auto safety got a rundown today on development of a prototype safety car from a group of New York officials, including State Sen. Edward Speno.

The concept received an enthusiastic endorsement in advance Wednesday when a witness urged the federal government to give it financial support.

President Joseph Kelner of the American Trial Lawyers Association told the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, "This is a vital, exciting, life-saving project which will form the basis of standards, tests and safety information for consumers and the government."

Hides in Conning Tower

Girl Likes British Boys, Stows Away on Sub

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The British submarine Walrus continued its journey home today with nothing but Her Majesty's sailors aboard — after having dropped off a stowaway teenage girl who said she wanted to visit England because she liked English boys.

The girl, Barbara McVay, 17, of Baltimore, is back with her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Rubert Turso.

Three Docked

The Walrus and two more British subs — the Osiris and the Opportune — were docked in Baltimore since last Thursday, following NATO maneuvers in the Atlantic.

When the Walrus left for home Wednesday, Barbara was hiding in the conning tower.

After four hours, exhaust fumes from the sub's engine sickened her and she turned herself in.

"It's a good thing she got sick," a police detective said later. He said the compartment where she hid would have filled with water if the sub had submerged.

Radio Embassy

When she did come out of hiding, the sub radioed the British Embassy and was ordered to get the girl back to land immediately.

An Army engineers patrol boat met the sub in the Delaware Canal. Barbara was placed in the Wilmington detention home until her parents arrived several hours later.

West Bend Man Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army Pfc. Robert G. Mueller of West Bend, Wis., has been killed in Viet Nam, the Defense Department said Wednesday.

13,000-Man AMC Layoff Set for June

MILWAUKEE (AP) — American Motors Corp. said today it would begin phasing out 1966 model Rambler production in June, with the layoff of 13,000 employes beginning June 20 at Milwaukee and June 24 at Kenosha.

Production of 1966 models will be completed by July 15. Production on 1967 models will be started in early August, a company spokesman said, but the date is not firm.

William V. Luneburg, vice president-automotive manufacturing, said at eDtroit "phase out of some models will begin the week of June 20 at the company's Milwaukee body plant. The Kenosha plants will begin phasing out June 24."

This will involve layoffs of 4,000 production and maintenance workers at Milwaukee and 9,000 at Kenosha.

Luneburg said the week of July 25 would be considered employe vacation period.

Vietnamese Hitting With Greater Vigor

Government Forces Fought in 77 Major Operations in Week

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U. S. military spokesmen reported today that the Vietnamese army and air force are hitting the Communists with renewed vigor after weeks of lessened activity during the political crisis.

Government forces waged 77 battalion-sized operations against the Viet Cong in the past week, an increase of 10 per cent, and the air force stepped up its sorties against the enemy by 30 per cent.

The Viet Cong mostly continued to avoid contact with American forces, and U.S. casualties dropped sharply last week. Government losses also were down, but Viet Cong casualties increased somewhat, reflecting the larger part being played again by the South Vietnamese.

Casualties Lower

The U.S. command said 35 Americans were killed, 547 wounded and eight missing or captured last week, compared with 89 killed, 635 wounded and five missing the week before. The number killed was the lowest since the week ending Jan. 22, when 21 Americans died in action.

Viet Cong losses for the week were put at 694 killed and 69 captured, compared with 531 killed and 135 captured April 10-16. The government reported 93 killed and 33 missing, a decline from 141 killed and 52 missing the week before. Vietnamese wounded are not announced.

Other allied casualties rose to 32 killed and 19 wounded, compared with three dead and 19 wounded the previous week.

The Viet Cong took a major share of their casualties when they were hit by U.S. Marines and Vietnamese troops in coastal Quang Ngai Province last week. It was the first big Vietnamese operation since the start of the political turmoil in mid-March. At least 252 Reds were reported killed in the joint campaign.

Daily Attacks

Most of the Vietnamese casualties came in daily Viet Cong attacks on small outposts and hamlets, hinting at a decision by the Communist command to revert to hit-and-run warfare. The Communists also have stepped up terrorism in Saigon and its vicinity.

Although the Communists still

Predicted by U. S. Officials

Tide of War to Turn in '67

Editor's note — How may the war in Viet Nam develop in coming months? The following story is the result of an investigation among high level Washington officials by John M. Hightower, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter who heads the AP's State Department staff.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — U S officials hope to turn the tide of war decisively against Communist forces in South Viet Nam by early next year.

The hope is tentative and authorities concede it could be upset by adverse military or political developments in the months ahead.

Nevertheless, it defines an important purpose of present strategic planning. President Johnson's advisers believe it represents a reasonable projection of the recent course of the war in Viet Nam plus the probable results to be obtained from the planned massive buildup of U.S. forces.

Critical Point

The critical point will be reached, strategists say, when manpower losses suffered by Communist forces under the pounding of American, South Vietnamese and allied troops and American planes begins to exceed the Communist capacity to replace manpower.

The estimate that this point can be reached by early next year is expected to figure in the strategic review and planning session soon to be held by President Johnson in connection with a return here for consultation of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Lodge is due back May 9. It will be his first trip here in about nine months, though he conferred with Johnson and other administration leaders in Honolulu last February.

U.S. Strength

U S. military strength in South Viet Nam now stands at about 250,000 men, with South Vietnamese forces at about 700,000, including irregulars and police.

The tentatively scheduled buildup of U S. forces, subject to periodic decision by President Johnson as specific reinforcement requests arrive from Saigon, will put the total at 400,000 or more by the end of the year.

One result of the buildup will be to increase the number of combat battalions as compared with supply and base-protection forces, greatly enlarging the search and destroy capacity of U.S. forces.

Major Reason

This is a principal reason why Johnson administration planners have now made the tentative assumption that around the turn of the year or early in 1967 Communist losses will exceed the ability of the Communists to

Convention Privilege Debated

City's Public Safety Group Ponders Courtesy Parking

Should Appleton hospitality include courtesy parking for conventioneers coming to the city?

The city council's public safety committee pondered the question Tuesday night and decided to think it over for a couple of weeks.

Alds Alvin E. Tews, (5th), and John Ayers, (12th), committee chairman, introduced a resolution in the council recently suggesting that courtesy cards be distributed to people attending conventions here

It would allow them free parking during their stay in Appleton

Police Inspector Harry Salzman said he felt the residents of Appleton would object to giving free parking to outsiders.

Residents Complain

"The people that live here, pay taxes and spend their money here, will be asking why people coming into the city don't have to pay for meter parking like they do," Salzman said He indicated this was the main complaint several years ago when the courtesy parking matter came up but never was enacted.

However, Salzman did indicate it has been a longstanding policy to excuse tickets for conventioneers. He explained that under the present policy, convention-goers receive parking tickets but they are collected at the close of the parley and voided

"At least the way we are doing it now, the public doesn't know about," Salzman said He said the best way to handle the matter was to continue to extend the parking courtesy without any fanfare.

Green Bay Policy

But Ayers said Green Bay has a courtesy card policy that has been successful and good for the city's public relations. "I think if we adopted the same policy it would create a more cordial atmosphere for people coming to conventions in our city," Ayers said.

A few other committee members said they had to be sold on the merits of a courtesy card program, citing that in Madison and many other cities in the state everyone has to pay for parking

Ayers said the matter should be given consideration and asked members to think about it for a few weeks and then meet with the parking commission.

Elects Officers

The committee also:

—Elected Ald Orville Strutz, (17th), vice chairman, Ald Roland Voss, (3rd), secretary; and Ald John Steidl, (18th), a member of the council's personnel committee.

—Approved a better signal and warning system at the State and Franklin Street intersection at the urging of Ald. Al Stoegbauer, (4th), who said something should be done on a temporary basis until stop and go lights are installed

—Received complaints from 9th Ward residents that defective sidewalk was permitted in a block on E Harding Street, and cars were being parked over the sidewalk near the Harding and S. Oneida Street intersection

Woman Found Guilty Of Forgery; Placed On 2-Year Probation

Mrs Jonna Rae Daniels, 19, 708 E. North St , pleaded guilty of forgery Tuesday afternoon and was placed on probation for two years.

Mrs. Daniels, a divorcee, was charged by Appleton police with opening a charge account March 19 at an Appleton clothing store under the name of another woman

The court was told that some articles of clothing were charged to the fradulent account, but that restitution had been made.

County Judge Gustave J Keller, in withholding sentence and imposing probation to the State Department of Public Welfare, ordered Mrs Daniels to pay the costs of the court proceedings

Improve Liaison With Groups, Safety Unit Told

Head of Appleton Council's Committee Outlines Work

Ald. John F. Ayers (12th), newly-appointed chairman of the city council's public safety committee, said Tuesday night the group should work in improving its public relations and liaison with other groups.

Ayers, presiding over his first committee session since the annual council reorganization, listed a series of major items he said his group would be dealing with in coming months

"I think we should try to get more participation and interest in city programs," Ayers commented He suggested the committee also send a member to fire and police commission meetings and meetings of city-wide safety groups.

Urges Better Liaison

"It would be in the best interest of all concerned to have better liaison with safety groups," Ayers said. He indicated the committee would also like to have a Chamber of Commerce representative attend its bi-weekly meetings.

Ayers said the committee should also attempt to send some of its members to meetings of other safety-connected groups in the community

Ayers disclosed he and Mayor George Buckley have scheduled staff meetings with city policemen and firemen. The first will be at the Appleton police station Friday afternoon.

Other items likely to come before the committee in coming months include community antenna television (CATV), a study into the feasibility of starting a police cadet program and others dealing with safety

Jupiter's Red Spot Might be Gas Column

WASHINGTON (AP) — A British scientist thinks the puzzling "great red spot" on the planet Jupiter may be the top of a huge column of gas swirling from a crater on the planet's surface.

Prof. S. K. Runcorn of the University of Newcastle-upon-Tyne said the oval-shaped "spot" — which has been measured at 30,000 miles in length — may have been born only several thousand years ago

In a report prepared for a meeting of the American Physical Society, Runcorn theorized a giant meteor crashed onto the planet's ice-like surface, carving out a crater several thousand miles in diameter.

Gas in the planet's atmosphere flowed into the deep crater, the scientist suggested, and then was forced upward in a waterspout-like column nearly 200 miles high, the top of which forms the "spot" seen through telescopes from earth

Projects to Aid Aged Explained At Fond du Lac

State County Welfare Representatives at District Conference

FOND DU LAC — Representatives from 16 county welfare agencies are met here Wednesday with state and federal officials to discuss the various programs for assisting the nation's elderly citizen

Wayne Airhood, a consultant to the services for the aged for the state division of Public Assistance, outlined federal and state legislation

Others appearing on the program were George Seymour, Wisconsin coordinator for the War on Poverty; George Hibner, housing consultant for the state commission on aging Lloyd Brynd, Jefferson County welfare director, and Mrs Florence Preston, administrator, LaSata Home, Cedarburg

Cites Two Ways

Airhood said there were two ways in which county welfare departments could aid in developing programs for the aged one being within their own structure in assigning caseloads, and the other to stimulate community action to get citizen involvement in developing programs for the aged

He offered his services in helping the local agencies to organize staff training community action and program planning

Airhood said it was his job to assist local agencies in getting programs for the aged started and informing them as to what funds are available

Outlines Assistance

Seymour outlined what his office could do in getting community action programs and agencies started

He explained that the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) did not have any specific program for the aged but that programs for the aged are being incorporated into Title II A of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 which provide for low-income housing

Mrs Preston a former county home consultant for the state outlined what the LaSata Home is doing to provide day care for Ozaukee County's elderly citizens

'Day care" she explained "is more like a senior citizens nursery where those needing the services are brought into the home during the day for required attention but returned to their homes in the evening

Services Planned

She said that such services as physical therapy medical attention occupational therapy meals and recreation will be provided during the day for the elderly

The Ozaukee home will open in September and will be the first such home in the state to provide day care for the elderly

The Eastern Wisconsin Welfare Association is one of several such organizations in the state which meet quarterly to discuss specific problems

Counties in the eastern association are Outagamie, Winnebago Fond du Lac, Calumet, Brown Shawano Oconto Marinette Kewaunee Door Menominee Foret Ozaukee Washington, Manitowoc and Sheboygan

were ducking the Americans, the U.S. 1st Infantry Division reported finding hundreds of tons of abandoned Viet Cong supplies at a huge storage center near the Cambodian frontier 70 miles northwest of Saigon. It was one of the biggest hauls of the war.

The "Big Red One" said at least 30 large caches of rice, salt, cooking oil and clothing were found in a complex of warehouses along the Rach Beng Go River, on the Ho Chi Minh Trail. The jungle network of suply lines is the major infiltration route for men and supplies from North Viet Nam through eastern Laos and Cambodia.

Air Assaults

U.S. planes continued the air war against the Communist north without letup Wednesday, setting aflame one antiaircraft missile site and spotting two more near the coastal city of Vinh, a spokesman reported. This is the farthest south any have been sighted in North Viet Nam.

The spokesman said the Communists sent up two missiles against U.S. F4C Phantoms, but the supersonic jets evaded them.

Air Force fighter-bombers ranged around Dong Hoi, less than 50 miles from the South Vietnamese border, while Navy planes headed farther north to Vinh.

A U.S. spokesman reported that the Strategic Air Command's second B52 raid on North Viet Nam's Mu Gia Pass, straddling the Laotian border, had closed the mountain roadway again and also destroyed seven trucks. The pass, which links up with the Ho Chi Minh Trail, was reopened by thousands of laborers after the first B52 raid April 12.

The B52s returned to South Viet Nam this morning, saturating suspected Communist troops concentrations 50 miles southeast of Da Nang. Other U.S. Air Force and Navy planes ranged the country in support of ground operations.

U.S. spokesmen announced that a multibattalion Marine operation known as Wyoming was underway a few miles west of the 1st Marine Division positions at Chu Lai. Eight Viet Cong were reported killed and two weapons captured in the operation, which began Tuesday.

Action Deferred On $8.3 Million School Request

MADISON (AP) — The Legislature's Joint Finance Committee has deferred action on a Department of Public Instruction request for an additional $8.3 million appropriation for the current biennium.

Angus B. Rothwell, state school superintendent, said the extra money was needed to avoid "a major deficit."

In a letter read at a committee meeting Wednesday, Rothwell said the deficit loomed because of legislation approved last year that included a bill basing school aids on current enrollments.

"The State Department of Public Instruction recommends that the Legislature appropriate the additional funds in the May session so that the fiscal effects of the new legislation will not result in a major deficit for the 1967 legislative session," Rothwell's letter said.

Ducks Killed, Swan Maimed By Vandals

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eight mallards have been slain and a black neck swan has been maimed and Milwaukee County Zoo officials are seeking a police investigation.

The eight mallards were killed by vandals in the last month, said George Speidel, zoo director Wednesday. Some were shot. The swan's left wing was shattered and had to be amputated.

"It has a good chance of recovering," Speidel said. "But swans are prone to infection. We'll know in about two weeks."

Court Rules GM Violation

Says Corporation Case Was 'Classic' In Trade Restraint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court decided today General Motors Corp. violated antitrust law by trying to ban sale of Chevrolets through discount houses in the Los Angeles area.

Justice Department counsel contended such sales would increase competition at the retail level and thus benefit consumers.

GM attorneys argued the auto giant had to have a dependable dealer organization and said discount houses are not needed to create price competition.

Justice Abe Fortas delivered the unanimous decision.

Fortas said the high tribunal found in today's case "a classic conspiracy in the restraint of trade."

His opinion said there was "joint, collaborative action by dealers, the defendant associations and General Motors to eliminate a class of competitors by terminating business dealings between them and the minority of Chevrolet dealers and to deprive franchise dealers of their freedom to deal through discounters if they so choose."

Highway Death Toll Reaches 253

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death of a Beloit woman has brought Wisconsin's 1966 highway death to 253, compared with 247 on this date a year ago.

Mrs. Isabelle Klimas, 79, of Beloit was injured fatally Wednesday night when struck by a car as she was crossing a street in the Beloit residential area.

McNamara Is Bombarded by Official Guns

O'Konski Joins in To Criticize Defense Secretary's Decisions

BY FRANCES McKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The recent blasts levelled at Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara by the House Armed Services Committee over the B52 bomber shortage is only the beginning of a series of bombardments to which the Secretary may look forward in the near future.

This information was given by a usually reliable source who said that three additional Armed Services subcommittees would level their guns at the Secretary in other areas of what is called the "military picture."

No Identity

The next criticism of the Department of Defense will come from the subcommittee on National Planning and Preparedness. After that, committees on Manpower and Research and Development; and the Draft will air their complaints on the way the department is being run, according to a high authoritative source, who did not want to be identified.

In the meantime, Rep. Alvin F. O'Konski, who was not a member of the B52 subcommittee initiating the fire against McNamara, said, however, he agreed with the subcommittees allegations against the secretary.

Charges "Error"

"Mr. McNamara was in error when he endorsed production of the F1-11 bomber," O'Konski said. "That bomber is so loaded down any communist MIG could blast it out of the skies."

He also deplored McNamara's contention that full orders of bombers and other implements of war would be coming off the production line in from six to nine months.

"What good does that do us now in Viet Nam?" demanded O'Konski. "I never heard of a battle being won by ammunition 'on order'".

3 Persons Drown as Rain Inundates Parts of Texas

arteries were clogged with water, including Central Expressway, in which water was 5 feet deep in underpasses.

Police in suburban Garland said between 150 and 200 persons have been avacuated from an area surrounding Duck Creek, which runs almost into the center of the town.

Officers said many of Garland's main arteries were closed due to high water. There were no reports of injuries in Garland.

The flooding followed rainstorms in the area, which also pounded parts of Oklahoma and Southern Illinois. Wet weather also covered broad areas today from the northern Plains to the Atlantic Coast.

Small Tornado

A small tornado struck the southeast section of Granite City, Ill., near St. Louis today, but there were no injuries. Property damage was minor.

Earlier, twisters hit several communities in Texas and Oklahoma but no injuries were reported. Several houses and barns were destroyed and others danaged.

Tornadoes and funnel clouds were reported in eastern Oklahoma and northern Texas, including twisters at Calvin and Coleman, Okla., and near Denton, Decatur and Denison in Texas. Heavy hail peppered Denton and hail also pelted Denison, Jefferson City, Mo., and Coalgate and Savanna, Okla.

Gale Winds

Gale winds Wednesday which caused the worst waterfront flood in 14 years along Lake Erie from Monroe, Mich., to Port Clinton, Ohio, diminished, but thousands of persons were forced to evacuate their homes. Between 5,000 and 6,000 persons were forced to leave their homes in the Monroe area and from 1,200 to 1,400 persons moved out of their homes in Toledo. A Red Cross spokesman in Toledo estimated damage to 300 houses at $250,000.

More Farmers Using Government Credit to Build Forest Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reported today farmers are using more government credit this year to develop forestry projects for increasing incomes.

It said $1.5 million in forestry and woodland loans have been made so far this year by its Farmers Home Administration. This was more than all such loans made in 1965.

Tide of War to Turn in '67, American Officials Predict

maintain their manpower levels through recruitment and through infiltration of forces from North Viet Nam.

Officials say that achieving this point in turning the tide of the war depends on several other assumptions. One of these is that the developing political situation in South Viet Nam will not seriously impair military operations during the coming summer and fall. Not all Washington authorities agree that this is a reasonable assumption at this time, since recent demonstrations against the Saigon government slowed military operations.

Other Assumptions

Other important assumptions underlying the forecast of a turning point in the war are:

1. That the Viet Cong will not radically alter their strategy and seek to avoid combat in the months ahead in order to reduce their loss rate.

2. That North Viet Nam and Red China will not radically alter the major dimensions of the war by intervention which would expand it into a different kind of conflict.

In summary, the projection of a turning point is based on the assumption that the war will continue to develop along the lines which have characterized the conflict in recent months.

Red Losses

According to figures and rough estimates now available from officials here, the Viet Cong suffered manpower losses in killed, captured, wounded, and defections during the first four months of this year amounting to considerably more than 20,000 men. Government figures show a total of about 15,000 Communists killed in action and probably another 5,000 men counted as defectors.

In the same four months, however, the Viet Cong replacements were estimated at about 32,000, consisting of an infiltration of troops from North Viet Nam at 4,500 a month and recruitment in the South of guerrilla fighters, porters and the like at the rate of 3,500 per month.

U. S. strategists agree that, as these figures suggest, Viet Cong forces still are increasing in spite of the fact that U.S. troops with their heavy firepower have been building up rapidly in South Viet Nam for a year now. American government estimates put Viet Cong main force strength at 47,750 in June 1965, 70,100 in December 1965, and 90,000 in April 1966. In addition, local guerrilla and supporting forces of the Communists are estimated at 100,000 to 120,000.

111 Battalions

U.S. military authorities estimate that the Viet Cong forces now have 111 combat battalions at their disposal and will have 155 by the end of this year. At that level, U.S. experts say, the Communists probably will require about 150 tons of supplies daily.

The dominant view in administration planning is that heavy and sustained air strikes against the Communist supply lines do and will put a ceiling on replacement capacity and do limit the ability of the Viet Cong to maintain their strength.

U.S. authorities also assume that the Viet Cong's ability to recruit fighters in the countryside in South Viet Nam is limited and will decrease as the war goes against them.

VC Defections

Similarly, authorities here say that Viet Cong defections increase and those of the South Vietnamese forces decrease in periods when relative political stability prevails in Saigon and when it appears that the Communists are being beaten militarily.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and various military leaders said toward the end of last year that "we have stopped losing the war."

They have shied away, however, from making any over-all claims of victory or trying to lay down a blueprint for victory in the future.

Morale Effect

The most that officials claim now for the point at which Viet Cong losses would begin to run ahead of replacements is that it should have a damaging effect on Viet Cong morale.

On the other hand, officials from President Johnson down are opposed to making more than tentative assumptions about future developments in Viet Nam which are beyond their control. They cannot rule out the possibility of a radical change in Communist strategy either to escalate the war, or to pull back from combat.

Japanese Say China May Have H-Bomb

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese government sources said today that Red China's third nuclear explosion, expected early next month, may be a preliminary hydrogen bomb test.

They said the year's interval since Peking's last atomic explosion would have given Chinese scientists enough time to put them on the verge of thermonuclear capability. They said the blast may come in two weeks, if weather permits, as part of a Chinese Communist effort to boost their international prestige during May Day celebrations in the Communist world.

Sources in Washington reported Wednesday night that the U.S. government has advised its allies to expect another atomic explosion on the Chinese mainland in the near future. There was no indication of how the U.S. government acquired its information, but the Central Intelligence Agency accurately predicted the first Chinese atomic explosion.

Union Head Calls Wage Increase Guide 'Economic Nonsense'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the Communication Workers of America, AFL-CIO, told the telephone union's bargaining policy committee Wednesday that the government's 3.2 per cent guideline for wage increases is "economic nonsense."

Joseph A. Beirne thus in effect served notice that the 400,000 worker union will ignore the guidelines in negotiations opening soon with major segments of the Bell system.

Health Unit Overrides Policy on Conventions

Dr. Laird Defends Need for Inspectors To Attend Chicago Show; Mayor Opposed

Mayor George Buckley's self-imposed convention policy met with mild criticism during a council committee meeting Tuesday night and was overridden by the board of health Wednesday.

By a 5 to 1 vote (Buckley dissenting) the board of health recommended that two members of the health department attend the National Restaurant and Food Equipment Show in Chicago May 25.

Board members felt the inspectors should be kept abreast of the new type of food handling equipment which they are required to inspect locally.

"We conduct an annual food handling program, and also followup, on the local level," Dr. James Laird, health commissioner, said. "And I feel our inspectors should be kept up to date and keep in close touch with the restaurant industry."

Respect To Policy

Ald. John Ayers (12th) said with all respect to Mayor Buckley's announced program to foster economy by ruling out out-of-state conventions and seminars, he felt the Chicago trip was justified

Buckley said if he okayed one person going to such a convention, then he would have to let them all go. "I feel that I cannot make an exception in this instance," Buckley said.

The mayor said he had no objection to city employes attending conferences "within state borders."

When the council's public safety committee met at the city hall Tuesday night, the convention matter was also discussed because some department heads previously budgeted trips in line with city council policy

"The common council has established a convention policy and adopted it," commented Ald. R. P. Groh (8th).

"Now what I want to know is whether somebody else has the authority to override the legislative body of the City of Appleton," Groh added.

Ayers indicated he had some misgiving about the mayor's recent edict that no one attend out-of-state parleys and said he could appreciate Buckley's position.

"However, we don't want Appleton to get out of contact and fall years behind on what is going on by not sending our people to meetings where they are exposed to new techniques and programs that can eventually save the city money through better operations," Ayers said.

Ald. Strutz (17th) said he felt the convention policy established by the council should be abided by.

Appleton Club Again Offers to Sell Land To City, Asks $74,000

The Appleton Club property at 119 E Washington St has been offered for sale to the city for the second time in recent months.

A local real estate agent said the association, which owns the land and building, is asking $74 000

. . .The price represents a considerable reduction fro) the figure quoted two months ago, and is open to arbitration as to amount and method of payment," the city was informed.

The original asking price was $95,000

When the council rejected the offer previously it said the city had no need for the property.

Legal Action Planned for Junked Autos

Board of Health Calls Abandoned Cars 'Eyesores'

Unless abandoned cars are removed from residential areas by their owners, the city attorney's office will be asked to take legal action, the Appleton Board of Health decreed Wednesday.

Ald. John Ayers, (12th), moved that legal action be taken against state law and local ordinance violators who do not follow the orders of health department inspectors.

He made his motion after Donald Day, assistant health officer, reported a growing incidence of junked cars in the city. Day said letters had been sent to owners advising them to have the cars removed, but the communications have been ignored.

"I think the city attorney is in the best position to take action on this matter," Ayers said. The board unanimously agreed.

Photos of Cars

Health commissioners were shown several photographs of junked cars taken by health inspectors. The health department contends that in addition to being potential health and safety problems, the abandoned cars also create a community eyesore.

In other action, the board:

Re-elected Dr. Carl D. Neidhold as its chairman, and Mayor George Buckley, secretary.

Indicated it would continue its contract with the Visiting Nurse Association to provide the services of a public health nurse. The health department does not have its own nurse.

O. C. Phillips, 43, Seymour, Dies Of Heart Attack

Phillips had been feeling ill Tuesday night and Wednesday morning prior to leaving for work at Kimberly-Clark Corp., where he worked with a field service unit.

Because he still felt ill, he turned around while enroute to work and returned home

His wife went next door to call an ambulance. When she returned, Phillips was lying on the davenport and having trouble breathing. He was dead when the Muehl Ambulance Service arrived

Phillips is survived by his wife and five children.

Man Hospitalized After Being Struck by a Car While Crossing Street

Roland W. Tuyls, 24, 331 E. Washington St., was hospitalized after he was struck by a car about 10:15 p.m. Tuesday while crossing State 96 near French Road.

Tuyls, who received lacerations about the face and head, a bump on the back of the head, and a back injury, was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital in Lindy's Ambulance.

Outagamie County police said Tuyls had made a telephone call from a booth on the south side of the highway and was crossing to the north when he was struck by a car driven by Thomas H Weyenberg, route 1, Kaukauna.

Weyenberg, who was westbound on 96, told police he did not see Tuyls until he "was right on top of him." Tuyls was thrown onto the north shoulder of the highway.

Auctioneer's Chant Gets Funds for Xavier

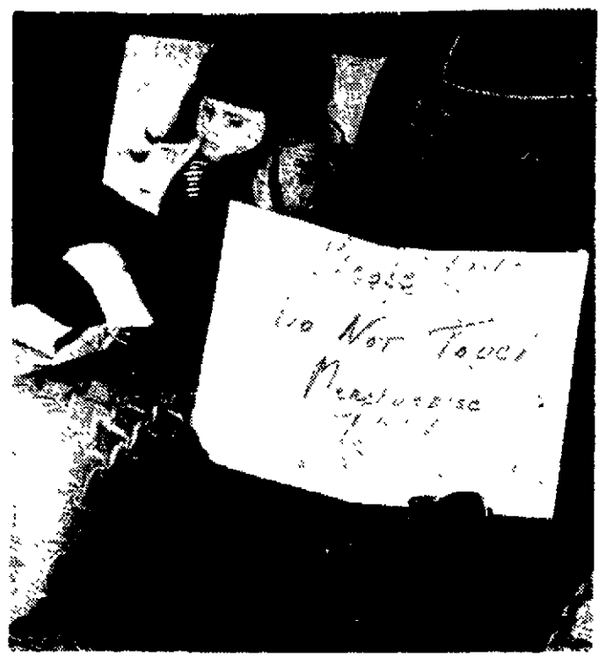

Orville Sturm Kept his eye open for bids as John Van Groll offered a much-used lamp at the Xavier Parents Club auction Saturday afternoon. Lamps, garden and garage implements, furniture and a wide variety of household items went to the highest bidders at the fund-raising event.

Almost anything in the way of household goods that can be moved was moved twice last weekend—once to Xavier High School and again to the homes of those men and women — who bid on them successfully.

The auction was part of the Xavier Parents Club effort to raise funds for a school athletic and physical education field and to support other projects carried out by the club.

Professional auctioneers were on hand to sing their chant, point their fingers as bids rolled in, and extol the virtues and value of particular items.

Mrs. LeRoy Fox was general chairman of the program. Working with her were Mr. and Mrs. Clement Rankin, Mrs. Delmar Schwaller, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dexheimer, Mr. and Mrs. David LaViolette, Dr. and Mrs. Leo Murphy and Jerome Koeppe.

Sharon Hayostek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hayostek couldn't maintain an interest in the auction proceedings, and the singsong chant of the auctioneer lulled her to sleep. Unaware of the hubbub around her, she dozed contentedly in the background. At left, part of the crowd that attended the 1 to 5 p.m. program waited and watched for favored items to be put on the block. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Artistry in Paper Invites Variation

BY REBA & BONNIE CHURCHILL

Building scenes from paper is a fascinating pastime that produces everything from murals to appliques for sun hats and tote purses.

Almost any kind of paper can be utilized — tissue, cardboard, poster sheets or foil. Each introduces a unique texture. For example, tissue paper produces the same wispy quality as a piece of net, foil the shimmer of satin, cardboard the coarseness of denim.

Usually a scenic design, such as those created by artist Dianan Nies, begins with a piece of white poster board. A pattern is lightly sketched on with pencil. Once balance and proportions have been perfected, colors are tested, not with paper, but with art pencils. Filing-in the poster board pattern with colored pencils provides a 'preview' of what the completed scene will look like. It also assures over-all harmony.

Choose Papers

When satisfied, papers are chosen and cutting begins. Sometimes, as many as two or three layers of paper are used to create an embossed effect. Also, by placing the stronger tones on the bottom and the lighter ones on top, a shaded appearance can be achieved.

Particularly interesting is a scissor-shaping technique. Crescents of foil are used to simulate highlights, slivers of poster paper are ideal for outlining, while streaks of art paper duplicate motion or action.

The most important part of such art work, however, is gluing the pieces onto the background. A milk base glue is used; it is aplied sparingly. The adhesive is always added to the center of the paper, never the rim; then, when pressed into position, the glue does not spread past its border.

An optional step is spraying on a "fixative", so that mural is soil-proof and fade-resistant.

A similar snip 'n' secure method can be used in appliquing sun hats and tote purses, except the paper is backed with cloth and the pieces laminated on with plastic spray.

Many professional artists enjoy working in both fabric and paper. They point out that yardage offers such a wide variety of printed designs, they can go from op art to pop art to bop art with just the cut of the scissors to create their own medium of "putter painting."

Fabric Frequently can be used to decorate accessories with unusual appliques. Rhinestones and other bits from discarded costume jewelry tip the butterflies' antennae on this wastebasket and tissue dispenser. Other materials favored by professional designers are fabric flowers and artificial pearls.

Water Re-Shapes Washed Gloves

Once the washing suds have been rinsed out of fabric gloves, they can be re-shaped under running warm water.

Let this flow through each glove to inflate the fingers and hand cavities. The water pressure smoothes the fabric and straightens the fingers so the gloves need no finger-pressing after being drip-dried.

Discuss Courses for College Week for Women

When College Week for Women convenes on the University of Wisconsin campus on June 7 through 9, students will be able to concentrate on one subject or a smattering of several

College Week open to all women in the state, is sponsored by the home economics and family life program in University Extension and the Wisconsin Extension and the Wisconsin Extension Homemakers Council It is designed to appeal to every interest so it includes 14 different classes and 28 3-session seminars

Each participant chooses two classes and two seminars It's possible to keep to one area such as design or communication, or to combine one class in design, which deals with awareness of color in surroundings, with another class in analyzing design in ready made clothing

Also planned is a seminar on art appreciation, which deals with art styles from impressionists to contemporary art and children's art, and another dealing with the creative approach to crafts which will help participants discover design sources In these, women will also learn to make a design workable in several craft forms

Those choosing creative writing in a seminar with Robert Gard, University of Wisconsin, director of the Wisconsin Idea Theater, will attend it for six sessions rather than taking a second seminar

For variety, one may choose from the many classes that range from the wonder of wood and its properties to traffic problems to a visit to Russia and improving photographic composition or historical sites in Wisconsin

In one seminar nine doctors will present half-hour papers each on the new research on cancer, epilepsy and rehabilitation They'll also talk about new developments in penicillin, burn treatments, photographing the gastro intestinal system and taking medical histories by computer

In other seminars one can learn how agricultural reform in Latin America is changing the lives of the people The nature of prejudice and communicating with teen-agers are other topics

Anyone interested in attending College Week for Women may contact the County Home Economics Agent Mrs Joseph Burke at the Court House. A brochure describes all classes and seminars, gives costs and contains a registration blank Registration may be made until May 13 with Home Economics Extension, 240 Agricultural Hall, Madison, Wisconsin, 53706

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

A mother writes Our daughter is graduating from college We wish to mark the occasion with a gift of lasting significance I have seen some beautiful pieces of jewelry set with cultured pearls But selecting eludes me I am confused by the many colors and shapes of pearls Please advise me

The Answer Cultured pearls are from a living, breathing organism They are as individual as people This accounts for their variety of color — the silvery white pink, blue, green or gray casts the creamy lusters, the midnight blues and blacks

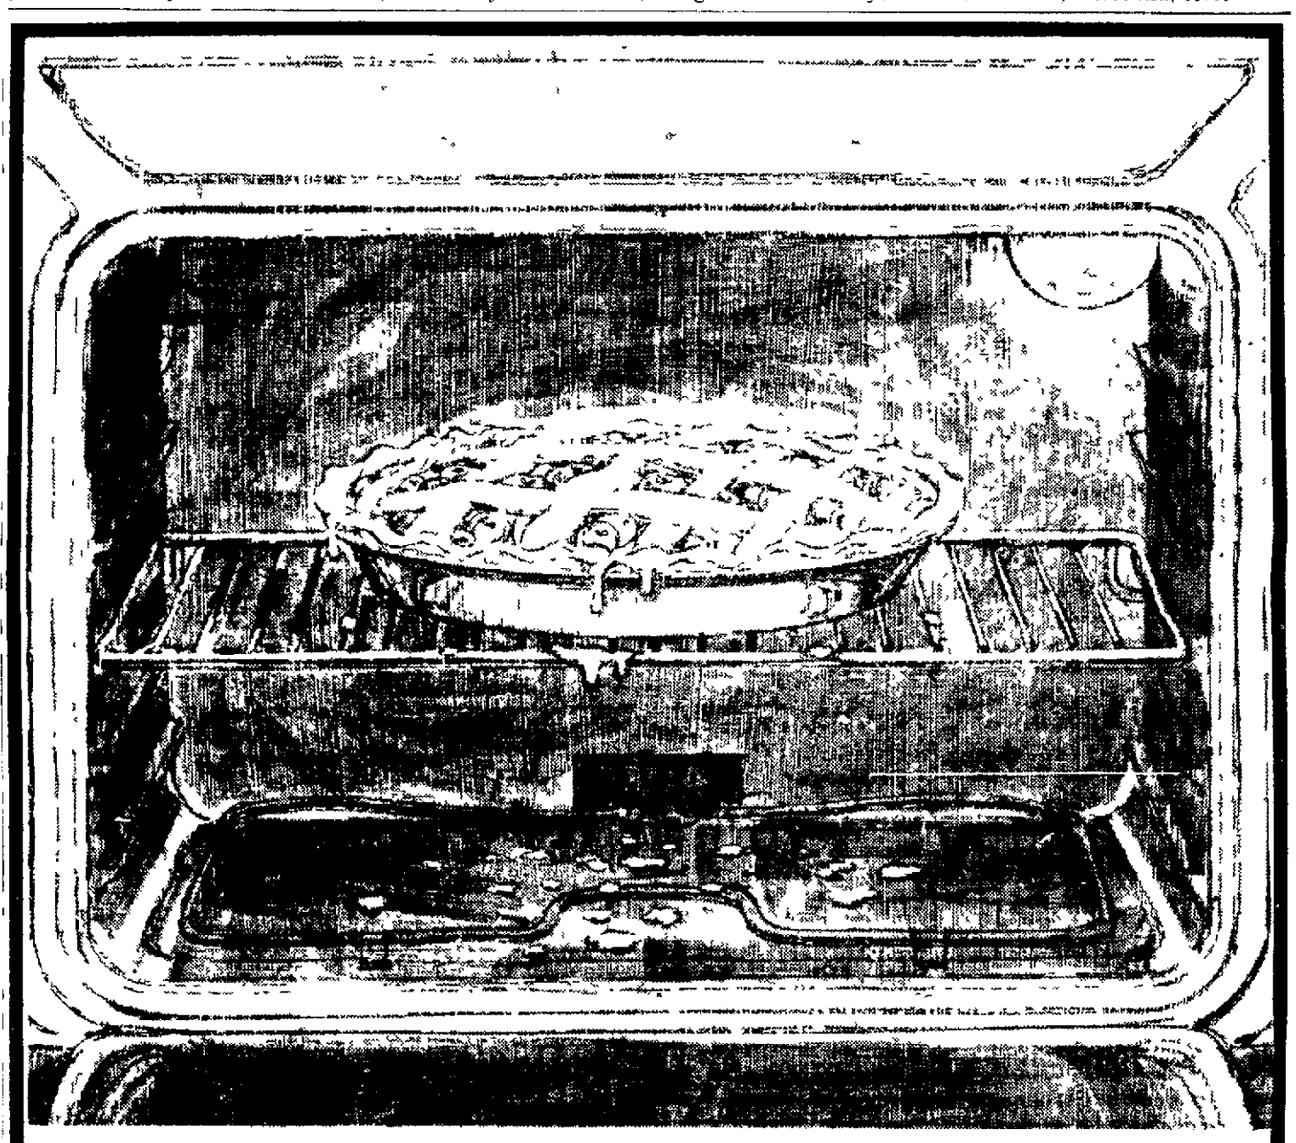

In Western countries the classic shape is round But baroque and pear shapes long admired in the Orient are now universally used and treasured A perfect pearl is as prized as any perfect gem

Designers of fine jewelry give their talents to creating pieces with pearls A recent showing of award winning designs, given by the Cultured Pearl Associations of America and Japan reflected the versatility of pearls

How they may be matched or graduated in the same color used together in various colors and sizes, or combined with gem stones All exquisite some pieces were delicate while others were bold in the contemporary manner

Conviction Impossible In Case

"Can't anybody tell me how the last hand was played?" Sherlock Holmes asked as he stood behind the lifeless body of Lord Moneybags Three horrified players shook their heads dumbly, but the butler spoke up

His Lordship led two top spades," the butler related "Declarer ruffed with the king of hearts, led a heart to dummy's nine and returned a diamond for a finesse His Lordship won and returned the jack of spades"

"The deuce he did," Holmes snapped

"No, sir, the jack he did," the butler corrected the great detective "Declarer ruffed with the ace of trumps and led the jack of trumps to dummy's queen He continued with the ten of trumps, discarding the jack of clubs and led the nine of diamonds for a finesse When that held he took another diamond finesse and claimed the rest with high cards"

Case Is Solved

Holmes turned to Dr Watson "The butler did it," he announced "However, no jury will convict him"

"There were two bridge players in that room declarer and the butler The others were just pushing cards around," Holmes explained "Declarer gained by the blunder, so he would not have killed Moneybags But the butler was outraged by the horrible play Obviously he was the murderer"

It took Dr Watson a week to discover the blunder Lord Moneybags could have saved the contract (and his life) by returning a trump instead of the jack of spades South needs the extra ruff and cannot get it for himself because there are no side entries to dummy

The moral is clear Avoid bad plays — and butlers

Redwood Is Best for Flower Box

Q My son's manual training project includes a window box, and he asked if there is any particular kind of wood better than others. What's your opinion?

A California redwood would be my first choice followed by cypress, because of their great resistance to moisture and decay Of course, if you treat any wood with colorles preservative, it will gain markedly in such resistance

Q Please repeat your treatment for removing youthful crayon art from wallpaper I didn't need the advice at the time, but I certainly do now!

A Cover the "art" with a thick stiff paste made of powdered whiting and liquid spot remover (any type) Scotch tape a sheet of clear plastic over it to retard evaporation When dry brush off Repeat as often as necessary The cleaning fluid works in to loosen the embedded greasy crayon, and the powder blots it up Highly recommend replacing supply of old-style crayons with newer water-soluble variety

Q Is it necessary to remove the rubber-base paint from my basement floor before putting down asphalt tile?

A It's best to wire-brush off any flaky paint first Otherwise, as long as paint is firm and solid go right ahead with the tile job There should be no difficulty

Q How do I go about repairing a long crack in my foundation wall? It is poured concrete

A The quickest, simplest way is to work the latex-type of patching concrete into the crack, smoothing it level with the surface If the crack is merely the hair-line variety however you may not be able to get any material into the crack (which is necessary for best results) So you should chip it a little wider, using mallet and cold chisel (and goggles to protect your eyes)

For the most permanent repair, the old-time method is still best, in my opinion This means of chiseling the crack at least one-half inch wide and one-half inch deep even better if the crack is made wider at the back than at the surface, so the hardening concrete will wedge itself in Then soak the area and pack with patching mortar, either ready-mixed or mixed by you Keep the repair damp for a week or so, to promote slow, proper curing

Telephone Nursing Lecture

Dean Predicts Nursing's Future

Miss Frances Reiter feels that nurses ought to spend more time nursing.

The dean of the graduate school of nursing, New York Medical College, indicated her view in a speech, "Nursing Care — Today and Tomorrow", given as a keynote address April 21 at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin League for Nursing in Milwaukee. She is also chairman of the committee on nursing education of the American Nursing Association.

Through taping and telephone lecture facilities, Miss Reiter's speech was repeated Tuesday afternoon for any registered nurse in Wisconsin by telephone replay at numerous local rebroadcasts.

In Appleton, the amplified speech was heard at Memorial Hospital's conference room and at St. Elizabeth Hospital's staff room from 3 to 4 p.m.

For Registered Nurses

More than a dozen nurses heard the lecture at St. Elizabeth Hospital, some obviously coming directly from surgical duty in their white and colored gowns and caps.

Miss Reiter said she planned not to lecture, but "just talk to you." Her 'chat' covered two general aspects of nursing: "How I see it today, but with very old eyes — from yesterday, and what I think it's going to be tomorrow."

She pointed out that "things happen today from a whole group of social forces", but that one does have some control over one's "destiny". She added that she'd make some predictions about the future of nursing about the year 2000 but that she'd been frequently wrong in past estimations about the evolution of nursing.

From Depression

"What's happening today is part of and from those days (prior to and during the depression)," she said. "We used to be called trained nurses then. Seventy per cent were 'specialing' patients in the community. Today 70 per cent of registered nurses are employed in hospitals — a complete reversal."

During World War II when unskilled workers were brought into hospitals as aides to the nurses, Miss Reiter predicted they wouldn't last beyond the war "because they couldn't give the personal care we were trained to give," she reported. Then she admitted the error of her prediction. "Today over half a million nurse aides are employed in this country."

Management Investigation

Another prediction that proved false was made by Miss Reiter when the Blue Cross plan was instituted. With a third party purchaser of services, she felt somebody would look at the cost of hospitalization and bring the science of management into hospital services to being about much more efficiency.

In 1946 Miss Reiter said that within a decade nurses wouldn't have to be doing so many managerial tasks and things "they're not prepared for." She believed that "50 per cent would be freed to get back to the patient."

She learned, however, that while the logic was right, her estimate of the time was 10 to 15 years off. And, Blue Cross hadn't made much of a dent on "improving economics of hospitals." The reason costs in hospitals are so high is that nurses don't know how to do many of the non-nursing jobs they are given to perform, she said.

Hospital Control

"We're continuing to do things more complex. Now two-thirds of our time goes into these tasks. Since 'specialing' went into a decline and hospital nursing into ascendancy, we're still being affected by social forces. We're caught in a web of hospital services. Hospitals control the occupation of nursing. Within the system it's hard for us who wish to give care to do it."

Another incorrect prediction was made, she said, during World War II when she felt they were preparing nurses who didn't see enough comprehensive nursing services. "If they couldn't see us caring for patients, how could they see what nursing was!" Miss Reiter believed. But she was "wrong again."

Patient Care

Although not one in 100 nursing students questioned had ever seen a nurse giving personal care to a patient, they still knew that nursing primarily involved personal care of patients. Miss Reiter stated that programs in nursing education prepare for the personal care of patients.

Actually there is no shortage of nurses, she indicated. There are more nurses proportionately to the total population than there were 20 years ago. It is the misuse of nurses, getting them into management aspects, which creates the shortage.

Hospital programs today have a "tremendous control of nursing." Miss Reiter continued. "Seventy-two per cent of all students are in the hospital programs, where they prepare for hospital nursing and ward management." She pointed out that three-fourths of nursing students are prepared in hospital systems, which then employ two-thirds of the nurses, all constituting the control hospitals currently have over nursing.

Increased Technology

Miss Reiter also referred to the increased technological aspects of medical services. "If I work with machines, I'm not free to work with people attached to those machines," she said. "I don't mean to dissuade those who like to work with machines," she added.

She also encouraged those who were interested in management to follow that interest — in schools of business administration.

Looking ahead to tomorrow, she stated her predictions for the year 2000 in the field of nursing, reminding her audience of her past fallibility.

Miss Reiter pointed out that by that year, only 10 per cent of the population will be needed to produce all that's needed by the rest of the people, and of that number, only two per cent will be engaged in food production.

Universities Important

Sixty per cent, however, will be in professions, and the remaining thirty per cent in services. The single social institution with the most influence will be the university, she said, adding that the flow had already begun in that direction.

"Nursing may become — educationally — like social work or education: it may expand into programs of graduate study. I think young people will not wish to go into hospital schools for 30 months and come out with not one academic coin of the realm. That will take care of itself."

Advancing to another prediction, Miss Reiter said "Even if Blue Cross didn't demand management investigation, I think Medicare will push it. Within another five years I think the whole designs of patterns in hospitals will be changed."

Reverse Emphasis

Similarly, she added, if 'specialing' and extended services could reverse once, she believed they'd reverse again. "Only five per cent of 60,000 now are in special services. Maybe 95 per cent will be out with patients, mental health, geriatric health (I hope)," she said.

Envisioning yet another possibility for nurses, Miss Reiter stated that only 15 per cent of medical students now enter general practice, whereas it once was 25 per cent. "Maybe that's where we can move in," she ventured. "Maybe it's right for medicine to continue on control — searching for disease cure."

Curriculum Change

In the curriculum, changes would include physical fitness, more of family dynamics and more psychotherapy. The latter would not be in the sense of the psychotic, she added, but would be in insights, dynamics of human behavior — "what makes me keep smoking," she said to illustrate.

"Family integrity isn't taught, but it needs to be taught. If this democracy is to survive, one must look at family health and integrity. I know no group that could encompass it as well as nursing," she concluded.

Proud Grandma's Bragging Bores Card Club Associates

BY ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our card club meets twice a month. We are all retired women who have a lot in common.

One woman who joined the club last year has become positively obnoxious. She has held up the game for as long as 15 minutes at a time telling us little anecdotes about her grandchildren.

Mrs. Talkathon never fails to bring several posters and drawings that her grandchildren made in school. We have listened to their essays and poems, ad nauseum. Her stacks of snapshots bore us silly.

We all have grandchildren, Ann, and we are just as proud of ours as she is of hers but we wouldn't think of imposing on folks the way she does.

What can be done to shut this woman up — short of telling her that we are weary of listening to her yak about her grandchildren? — Broken Record

Dear Rec: At the next meeting announce that you have something cute to tell about your grandchildren. Drag out an interminable yarn — ad nauseum. Be sure to pass around a few dozen snapshots.

When you've finished, apologize for taking so much time and suggest that the club adopt a rule — no more talking about grandchildren. Recommend that the fine for breaking the rule be five dollars. After that, if Mrs. Talkathon insists on chattering about her grandchildren it's going to be mighty expensive.

Dear Ann Landers: I was knocked out by a sentence which appeared in your column recently. Miss K. Q. asked — and with a perfectly straight face — "If the boys think virginity is so important, why don't they leave a few around?"

The lady's question implies that the deflowered lassies have all been drugged, slugged, hit in the head and carried off. Surely, Ann Landers, you don't buy that?

I have raised both boys and girls and am now in my seventh year as a housemother on a midwestern campus. Today the girls are so aggressive that it makes me glad my sons are grown.

There s a rule on this campus that no girls are allowed above the first floor of a fraternity house. Nevertheless, every weekend I have to broom out at least four of five females who have pestered the boys to let them see their rooms.

Yesterday an 18-year-old lad asked if I would go to his room and request that the girl leave. "I can't get her out," he said.

So, please, Ann Landers, don't perpetuate the myth that the little boys are seducing the little girls left and right. Generally it's mutual. Sometimes it's the girl who does the seducing. — In Communication

Dear In: I appreciate your comments and would not deny that there is a large portion of truth in what you say. Instinctively, however, the male is the predator and no matter how wild some of the girls may seem, nature has decreed that the chaste will be chased — and sometimes caught. This is not my personal opinion, it is part of The Great Design.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Haberdashers Tackle Night Life of Men

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Hundreds of haberdashery buyers are gathered here to tackle—among other things — menswear's biggest challenge—getting men to wear night clothes to bed.

"The majority sleep in their underwear or nothing at all," Larry Baxter, president of Fleetway, lamented Wednesday. His pajama firm makes a loin cloth type kiltie as a compromise

Wars are largely to blame, according to Derek Rose, a Londoner with Bonsoir now selling pajamas styled by the queen's designer Hardie Amies.

Sometimes it takes years, a nagging wife and kiddies toddling about the house before an ex-serviceman breaks his wartime habit of sleeping in his shorts or less, Rose said But England's drafty houses have improved the situation, he added

Increased Demand

Air conditioning here, as well as more leisure hours for lolling around the house gradually is increasing the demand for night apparel

However, the makers who are exhibiting at the men's Sportswear Trade Show here, are counting on fashion appeal and sex appeal to clad more bed-bound lads

The very same influences in women's fashions — mod and cowboy styles are the big deals in the menswear market here.

Men's trends include narrow trousers, hip-hugger slacks; garrison belts; bright, striped or flowered shirts with wide white collars; broad shoulders; narrow waists; wide lapels; four-inch wide paisley ties; blanket plaid fabrics; slick vinyl garments, and fake furs.

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

No. Most of us would agree that there is nothing quite as ridiculous as a mature woman trying to look like a schoolgirl Yet fashions change so fast, that one feels old-fashioned if one does not try to keep up somewhat When skirts climb high above the knee a lady feels nude or out of style or worse — a prude. So what can she do? She can adapt the current fashion to her own sense of what is appropriate for her Any arguments?

"Taking the other fellow's place" will change your attitude toward him!

True—— False——

True One simple way to reduce the heat of an argument is to have the disputants change sides, so that each argues for the position that he rejects This sometimes works. The disputants became acquainted with some facts that they might not previously have known Even more important, they look at the problem from a different point of view Research studies indicate that if a person merely reads what someone else has written, he is not likely to be greatly changed. But if he gets busy and himself finds arguments to support what he formerly rejected, the influence may be considerable.

This is the basis of the helpful booklet, "How To Win An Argument." To get your copy, send 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to this column, in care of the Post-Crescent, Appleton, Wis., 54911

Princess Anne Breaks Nose While Hunting

LONDON (AP) — Tomboy Princess Anne took a header at a fence while hunting and broke her nose, Buckingham Palace announced today.

The 15-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II was injured Tuesday while riding with the Oxford University draghounds, which follow an artificial scent.

Despite her injury, the queen's only daughter flew with her mother today to Sandringham, the royal familly's country estate in Norfolk.

The princess is due back at Benenden School, in nearby County Kent, for the start of the summer term next Tuesday.

Anne's mishap recalled the frequent falls which her great-uncle, the Duke of Windsor, used to take from horses while he was Prince of Wales.

The princess was thrown from a horse in December 1964 while riding with girls from her school, and cracked a bone in the little finger of her right hand.

Governor Outlines Issues Which He Seeks Action Upon

Water Pollution Is Listed Among 'High Priority Items'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Warren P. Knowles said Wednesday that he plans to address the legislature twice during the first week of the spring session to outline issues on which he desires action.

The first address, scheduled for May 3, the second day of the session, will be devoted to general state needs, the governor told a press conference in the executive office. The second speech, to be given later in that week, will deal specifically with steps necessary to fight water pollution in the state, he said.

One of the major bills to be acted on in the spring session would create a water quality control commission and authorize a state bonding corporation that could, over a 28 year period, borrow up to $200 million for state and local use in combating pollution.

Task Force Bill

The bill, prepared by a special task force of scientists, legislators and interested citizens, is of major importance, the governor said. Two other issues needing action in this session, he added, are highway acceleration and state action on Medicare provisions that must be completed by July 1.

Knowles said that all three issues were "high priority items" on his list of bills needing action.

In a move related to water pollution abatement action, Knowles announced that he has appointed conservation department director L. P. Voigt to head a committee of state agency personnel in planning special joint state and federal meetings on Lake Michigan pollution problems.

One of the conferences will be held in Green Bay on June 30. The other is scheduled to be held on June 28 in Milwaukee.

Knowles asked the committee to invite federal officials from all interested agencies to take part in the fact-finding sessions. The conference, however, is sponsored and conducted by the state, he pointed out.

Wants Information

Knowles earlier this month refused to ask the federal government to call enforcement conferences on Great Lakes pollution problems as he said that not enough information had yet been obtained from federal agencies about the problems to necessitate such a meeting, which could result in mandatory enforcement orders from the federal agencies.

Long past federal studies have been completed, the governor then said, without state pollution abatement agencies being informed of such federal findings. Knowles then suggested that meetings be held to exchange information of pollution findings.

In addition, a meeting will be held on June 21 in Ashland on pollution problems in Lake Superior.

Other members of the committee appointed by the governor are William H. Cartwright of the Public Service Commission, O. J. Muegge, State Board of Health; Paul A. Pratt, director of the Department of Resource Development; William F. Steuber, State Highway Commission; and Donald E. Wilksnson, Department of Agriculture

Won't Sign Bill

Knowles also said that he would not sign into law any bill passing the legislature that would allow trucks up to 65 feet long to travel state or federal highways in Wisconsin.

Speaking of such a bill, he said, "It may come, but we have a long way to go before our highways are in shape for that. It is premature."

Knowles said as well that he would support advancing the deadline for districting the state into vocational school districts to 1968, two years before the present limit, if it becomes possible But he will continue to oppose state aids for vocational school construction in those districts, he said.

ICC Rules in Favor of Railroad Merger After Five-Year Struggle

NEW YORK (AP) — The heads of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads predict the merger of the once-bitter business rivals will result in improved passenger and freight service and possibly lower fares.

Most unions, state officials and other railroads applauded the unanimous ruling Wednesday by the Interstate Commerce Commission — ICC — that turned two of the nation's rail giants into one in history's largest corporate merger.

Took Five Years

Unless legal action is taken to block the consolidation, which had been sought for five years, the two systems are free to unify beginning June 1.

In an effort to insure no job losses from the merger, the ICC ruled the system may not reduce its work force without showing a 5 per cent business drop in any 30-day period.

Another condition imposed on the merged railroad is that it assume operation of the freight and passenger service of the deficit-ridden New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad through 1966. It said the New Haven could not abandon the bulk of its passenger service.

In another action, the commission rejected by a 6-5 vote the merger of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroads. The decision against creation of a 25,000-mile system linking the Midwest to the Pacific drew bitter opposition statements from four commissioners and faces the challenge in the courts.

The new Pennsylvania New York Central Transportation Co., with total assets of more than $4 billion, will take the form of a 20,000-mile system stretching from St. Louis and Chicago to Montreal and Washington.

Public Benefit

The ICC said the merger would enable the railroads to save $80 million annually after 1974 and that the public would benefit either by improved service or lower rates.

In rejecting the merger plans of the Northern lines, the ICC majority ruling said the individual lines are prospering and had failed to show that their proposed merger would improve service by eliminating competition.

The Northern lines may contest the ruling before a federal court, which could remand the case to the ICC or uphold the finding.

Pope Paul VI Visit to Poland Seems Likely

Gromyko's Recent Vatican Audience May Have Lessened Soviet-Papal Tension

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Some diplomats and churchmen in Warsaw think Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's Vatican audience has brightened prospects for a visit by Pope Paul VI to Communist-ruled Poland later this year.

After Gromyko's audience with the Pope Wednesday, the first ever given by a Roman Catholic pontiff to a minister of a Communist government, Vatican sources said they were certain the poor state of relations between the church and the Polish government was not discussed.

Good Feeling

However, observers here feel that if a new era of good feeling develops between the Vatican and the Kremlin, this almost certainly will ease the current high tension between the church and the Polish government, a situation which prevented Pope Paul from attending the celebration next Tuesday of the millenium of Christianity in Poland

The Vatican last weekend made public a letter from the Pope to Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Catholic primate of Poland, expressing regret he could not visit Poland But the Pope refrained from criticizing the Warsaw government's ban on visits by foreign church dignitaries for the celebration.

1,000 Years

Some diplomats and churchmen think the pontiff's desire to visit a Communist-ruled country could still bring him here during Poland's 1,000th year of Christianity. There is growing speculation of a trip in August, during the traditional annual pilgrimages to the Shrine of the Black Madonna in Czestochowa.

Observers recalled that the Vatican visit of Alexei Adzhubei, Nikita Khrushchev's son-in-law, coincided with an easing of Catholic- Communist tension in Poland and Hungary. Khrushchev's ouster and the death of Pope John XXIII ushered in a period of uncertainty in church-state relations in Eastern Europe.

Producer Prices in Milk Markets $5.60

WASHINGTON (AP) — Th Agriculture Department reported today producer prices in about 165 fluid milk markets throughout the country averaged about $5 60 a hundred pounds in early April, which was about the same as in March. But the April price averaged 42 cents above that of a year earlier.

Search Goes On for Plane With 49 Aboard

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A search resumed today for the wreckage of a Peruvian airliner which apparently crashed in the Andes Mountains with 49 persons aboard Five were Americans.

The four-engine Lineas Aereas Nacionales Constellation disappeared Wednsday on a 375-mile flight from Lima to Cuzco.

The Lima airport said the plane radioed a distress call 10 minutes after taking off, and police at Cuzco said they had a report it crashed at Coclococha, 170 miles south of Lima.

The airline said the plane carried 43 passengers and a crew of 60.

The Americans were the pilot, William Jones of Miami, Fla., three Peace Corps volunteers — Gerald Francis Flynn, 26, of Seattle, Wash., Paul L. Bond, 24, of Jonesboro, Ark., and Troy M Ross, 25, of Boise, Idaho — and George A. Hoffman, 42, a geologist.

Flynn and Bond were based in Ecuador and Ross in Cuzco

Fulbright Calls 'No Sanctuary' Plan Dangerous

Senate Leaders Disagree on Plane Pursuit Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., hung a "very dangerous" label today on the administration's "no sanctuary" policy of hot pursuit of enemy fighters over Viet Nam.

But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said in a separate interview this is a "recognized doctrine" of warfare which he does not believe invites the danger of Red China's intervention in the conflict.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said it is "sound policy to let the Chinese know in advance what is in store for them if they attack our planes over North Viet Nam."

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, noted that there has been no official pronouncement telling where the advanced MIG21s, which have engaged U.S. planes in dogfights, came from

"But if they come from China and we follow them into China to attack their air fields, I think we are pursuing a very dangerous course," he said. "It could escalate the war."

The issue was brought to the forefront when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., told the Senate Wednesday that the developments must be viewed with gravest concern

"What will be the Chinese response if her territory is bombed or her airspace invaded?" he asked. "Will the Chinese seek to strike at our bases — in Viet Nam or Thailand, or aboard our aircraft carriers"

"And if they do, what then will our response be — further bombing? And if the scale of bombing increases, will China confine herself to air fighting — or will it send its troops to engage ours on the ground in South Viet Nam?"

Dirksen noted that hot pursuit of the enemy by U S. planes had not been permitted in the Korean war, a decision he said may have lengthened that conflict.

Administration Critic

Dirksen Challenges LBJ Budget Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen challenged President Johnson today to act — and not just talk — about the $3 billion the President fears Congress is going to boost his budget.

Johnson said at a White House ceremony Wednesday that the way things are going "it looks like they may up the budget $3 billion this year" over the $113 billion spending budget he recommended for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Faults Democrats

If that happens, Dirksen said in an interview, it will be all the fault of Democrats in Congress who owe political allegiance to the President.

"The Republicans are trying to hold spending down to prevent a tax increase," Dirksen said. "I would respectfully suggest that the President could be of help in this if he would direct a request to his party leaders to resist the increases he is complaining about. Thus far there has been no such request."

Knew Favored Items

An influential Democrat who didn't want to be quoted by name said there isn't likely to be one, either.

"The President picked the favorite items on the Christmas tree when he made his budget cuts," this Democrat said. "From the background of 30 years around here he knew exactly which items are most popular and those are the ones he picked to reduce.

"He's jockeying the Republicans into voting against a lot of things the people back home want and then he's handing these programs to the people as a present from the Democrats."

'Beat Mass'

Proves to be Howling Success Or Holy Mess; No One Knows

ROME (AP) — Three mop-haired youth combos banged out a "beat mass" in a Roman Catholic chapel Wednesday night. Listeners couldn't agree whether it was a howling success or a holy mess.

A crowd of 500, including scores of priests, jammed into the oratory of St Philip Neri. They stomped their feet and bobbed their heads to the rhythm of the electric guitars, drums, organ and singers.

Seek Entry

Another 1,000 outside beat on the door trying to get in Police reinforcements had to squeeze into the crowded courtyard to keep order.

A group of Oratorian Fathers, whose religious order specializes in youth work, sponsored the program.

The 17 young musicians were lined up before a battery of microphones to perform a nine-part mass written by composer Marcello Giobini, with words adapted by an editor of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, the Rev. Carlo Gasbarri. There was no religious celebration of the mass.

The Rev. Sinaldo Sinaldi, a Dominican priest, opened the concert with this explanation:

"In a hard and merciless era like ours, a profane music can be useful in expressing religious sentiments — although I want to assure you that the promoters of this enterprise have absolutely no intention of putting light music into the church's official cult, that is, its worship."

The Rome newspaper Il Messaggero commented: "Never before has there ever been seen such a crowd, unleashing punches and kicks, assaulting a barred door, just to be able to assist at a mass."

Aviation Delegates Contend Their Lot Is Budget Leftovers

State Aid to 5-Year Program To Fall Short by $5.2 Million

LA CROSSE — Governmental and private aviation enthusiasts in Wisconsin feel that they are only getting the leftovers from state and local governmental budgets.

Several speakers, who appeared Wednesday in a panel discussion group at the 11th annual Wisconsin Aeronautics Conference said monies from the State Legislature's general fund and sales taxes derived from aviation sources should go into the state Aeronautics Commission budget.

A panel discussion on "State Aid for Airports, Needs, State's Share and Sources," was moderated by Winnebago County District Attorney Gerald L. Engeldinger of Neenah.

Speakers on the panel were Richard C. Thern, a professional engineer, from Thern Associates, Inc., of Oshkosh, Corporation Counsel Donald J. Bero, of aMnitowoc County, and Airport Supt. Robert Skuldt of Traux Field in Madison.

Thern said the four-year airport development program in Wisconsin (1966-69) calls for expenditures of $24,926,200. The state's share, he said, at 25 per cent of the total project cost will be $6 million. "This," he said, "leaves a deficit in state aid of $5 2 million over the next four years We have dedicated funds available equal to approximately 13 per cent of the required amount needed for this four-year program.

Thern criticized the federal government for having a nonexistent program of aid to general aviation airports while general aviation activity has increased by 300 per cent since 1955.

Federal Aid

"Also," he said, "federal aid to Wisconsin airline service airports in 1967 was reduced by at least $280,000.

He said, at present, there is only $407,272 available for state fund allocations in Wisconsin He said $93,000 comes from unrefunded gas taxes, $55,000 from aircraft registration and $258,000 from airline property taxes. Of the total, he said, $197,000 is devoted to administrative costs.

"But," Thern said, "Wisconsin aviation could pay its own way if funds derived from aviation are taken from the state's general fund and dedicated to aviation and if the Aeronautics Commission's administrative budget becomes a general fund item like it is for the state highway department.

Equally Important

"There is no reason," he said, "for an agency such as the Wisconsin Aeronautics Commission to operate with other than general funds as do the other state agencies. The people of Wisconsin must accept airports as being equally important as

Program Officials Wednesday unveiled plans for an auto and traffic safety campaign which will be known as "Appleton Automobile Safety Days." Traffic Safety Awareness Prompts 10-Day Campaign

Car Dealers, Allied Industries Promote Extensive Program

Plans were revealed Wednesday afternoon for what promises to be the most extensive automobile and traffic safety program ever in Appleton.

Sponsored by the Appleton New Car Dealers Association, the safety campaign, termed "Appleton Automobile Safety Days," officially begins May 18 and continues through May 28.

The new car dealers group is working in cooperation with automobile - related industries and services in the safety program which if successful could become an annual event. Also playing a major role in the program will be Appleton and Outagamie County police, the county courts, and the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce.

Program Outlined

Carl Ray, general manager of R and R Dodge and campaign chairman, outlined the two-part program at a meeting Wednesday.

Police and volunteers will safety check at least 5,000 vehicles in "safety check lanes" set up on the city's main thoroughfares. The inspections will be voluntary by the motorists

Small stickers will be issued for cars passing the inspections, vehicles having safety defects will be given five-day warning tickets and will be expected to correct the hazards.

To School Volunteers

A "school" will be conducted by police next week for volunteers who will assist on the safety lanes.

The second part of the massive safety program, first of its kind here, will place emphasis on law enforcement and traffic safety education.

The courts and police will play primary roles in carrying out the second half of the campaign. Motorists found guilty of minor traffic violations committed just before and during the 10-day safety drive will be "sentenced" by County Judge Gustave J. Keller to a special safety school at Appleton High School under the direction of the State Motor Vehicle Department.

Special two-hour classes will be May 20, 24, 26 and 31.

Good drivers also will be recognized. Nine motorists will receive awards for their driving habits. Nominations will be made by police who will make observations.

"The sole purpose of the entire campaign is to make motorists safety-conscious," Ray said.

Similar programs have been held in other cities and generally the results have been rewarding, it was pointed out at Wednesday's meeting.

Ray explained that committees have been meeting for some time formulating the local campaign which runs in conjunction with National Safety Month.

Assemblyman Asks Air Service Changes

Backs Commuter Airlines; Urges Reorganization of State Aeronautics Group

BY DICK LYNEIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LACROSSE — Dramatic and sweeping changes in the make-up of the Wisconsin Aeronautics Commission and methods of airline service within the state were recommended today by Assemblyman J. Curtis McKay, (R-Ozaukee County).

McKay called for development of a state wide system of computor, "third level" airlines within the state to replace "prseent inadequate airline feeder service."

The Republican legislator specifically refered to suspension of service of North Central Airlines to serve Wisconsin areas, including the Fox Cities and Clintonville which resulted from the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) ruling on the North Central area regional airports case.

Collection Spots

He said if there was development of a commuter airlines system there could be several "collection spots" for the local airlines to make connections with major airports that have trunk airlines service.

"An excellent example," he said, "is Appleton which features direct service on Air Wisconsin to Chicago." He said successful third level airline operations would eliminate the necessity for regional feederline airports such as the Winnebago County airport in Oshkosh. McKay stated that communities such as Oshkosh then could be served by their own third level airline systems.

"This is the kind of development we need," McKay said, "to make up for the lack of traffic and service provided to several Wisconsin communities by several Wisconsin airlines."

Complete Reorganization

McKay also urged that there be a complete reorganization of the Wisconsin Aeronautics Commission. He said he will introduce a bill in this session of the legislature which would provide for two assemblymen and one state senator to become members of the commission. They would serve, under McKay's plan, with three non-legislative commission members. However, he urged that the non-legislative members of the commission be persons with strong aviation backgrounds.

McKay claimed that the major advantages of his bill would be "providing liaison between the commission and the executive and between the commission and the legislator."

Another major provision of the bill would be to create a committee in the two houses of the Wisconsin legislature which would be counterparts of the commission in the same way as the State Highway Commission represents highway interests.

Fighting Proposal

McKay said North Central Airlines is already fighting his proposal. "North Central would be shot out of the saddle," McKay said because this new commission would go before the CAB and demand efficient operation and service by feeder airlines to Wisconsin communities.

"They anticipate that the new commission, as my bill proposed, would be too provincial in that its interest would be concerned solely with the problems of the state of Wisconsin," he said.

FWD Workers Want to Talk To Teamsters

Circulate Petition Asking for Meeting With New Agent

CLINTONVILLE — Disenchanted FWD Corp. production workers, who have been off their jobs since Tuesday noon on a "wildcat" strike, this morning were reportedly giving solid support to a petition asking to meet with Teamsters Union officials.

Well over half of the 500 workers who were waiting for the Armory to open for an informal meeting, were said to have signed the petition calling for an exploratory conference to determine if another bargaining agent would "give them better representation."

A majority of the firm's 1,500 workers are now represented by Local No 615, Allied Industrial Workers, AFL-CIO

Few Workers

Only a few workers reported for the day shift at the plant today. Philip Larnino, vice president and general manager, said. He could make no estimate of company losses due to the two-day work stoppage

The wildcat walkout started Tuesday noon when 41 welders allegedly walked off their jobs, in sympathy with a fellow worker who was sent home for circulating a grievance.

The work stoppage is the first

Workers Decide To Stay Off Job

FWD Corp employes, after an informal meeting this morning, decided they would not return to their jobs and would meet again at 9 a m Friday Today's meeting was held outside the armory when city officials refused to open the doors because the session had no official union or company sanction. No other decisions were reached and it appeared that the gathering was primarily to muster support for another bargaining agent.

LA CROSSE — An invitation has been extended to the Wisconsin Aeronautics Commission to hold its 1967 State Aeronautics Conference in Outagamie County.

A telegram received this morning by T. K. Jordan, director of the state commission, said:

The telegram was signed by Murel Edinger, chairman of the convention and tourist division of the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce.

Damage Unlisted In Chemical Fire At Thilmany Mill

KAUKAUNA — Fire, believed to have been caused when vapors from steam heated chemicals ignited, caused an undetermined amount of damage at the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. about 11:45 a.m. Wednesday, according to William Haupt, fire chief.

The blaze was near an extruder in the polyethylene department and mill officials estimated the machine would be down for about eight hours for repairs. Extensive water was used to quell the blaze, but mill officials feel the water was drained away in time to prevent serious damage to rolls of paper stored in the area.

Firemen had the blaze under control within 15 minutes after arriving at the scene. Off-duty firemen were called in and crews were assisted by the mill fire fighting crew. One of the Thilmany workers had used a hand fire extinguisher to keep the fire under control until firemen arrived.

Nothing appeared to be missing following a burglary during the night at Professional Associates Building, 2718 N. Meade St.

Appleton police said entry was gained by breaking a 21 by 24 inch window on the north side of the building. The office of Dr. G P Santos reportedly was the only part of the building entered.

Soldiers Square Ramp

Land Negotiation Promised

Efforts will be made to expedite negotiations for the city acquiring property for the proposed Soldiers Square Parking structure, Mayor George Buckley said today.

He made the announcement after receiving word from the property owners that they are asking $225,000 for the land and buildings.

However, a filling station building is not included in that price.

To Works Board

Buckley said the offer from the property owners would be referred to the board of public works and taken up at its regular meeting next week.

"I think we should start negotiations immediately," Buckley said, "and it may be possible the board will want to take action on recommending a counter offer for consideration by the council."

Try to Expedite

The city has obtained appraisals on the property which will be acquired. It presently owns about 60 per cent of the entire block where the new four-level ramp will be constructed.

"Every effort should be made to expedite the negotiations and get the parking ramp construction underway," Buckley said.

He added the need for the ramp was urgent in view of the fact that College Avenue reconstruction will start in the spring of 1967.

Buckley said any delay in providing the ramp parking facilities could possibly hold up the avenue project for another year.

"We don't want that to happen," Buckley said, "We want to get College Avenue going on schedule."

Department Heads of Various county welfare agencies met in Fond du Lac Wednesday for the quarterly meeting of the Eastern Wisconsin Welfare Association to discuss the various programs which are being initiated for the aged. Length of Delay On MRA Fund Plea Uncertain

State Preparing Menasha Request for Development Money

MENASHA — Planning officials with the State Department of Resource Development are completing preparations to send the Menasha Redevelopment Authority (MRA) application for about $36,000 in federal comprehensive planning funds to federal officials.

The state agency took the application from the hands of the local agency Wednesday after a conference in Madison. The local officials were warned it might take longer than originally anticipated to receive federal approval of the application.

The state officials advised that the application be submitted without change and indicated it should be approved. "It is only a question of time," a state planner told the MRA group.

In Chicago today, a spokesman for the department of Housing and Urban Development supported that comment. He appeared to agree the wait may be extended.

Non-Priority?

It had been explained that most applications are on a "non-priority" basis, meaning applicants take their turn in the line-up for funds.

Special priority is only assigned in cases in which an application is also on file under another federal program with a separate timetable for funding. The deadline for receiving funds on the second program could update the granting of approval for redevelopment funds, according to officials.

David Johnston, of the Chicago regional office of HUD, which will review the Menasha application before it is sent for final action to Washington, D.C., told the News-Record this morning the local project would be unable to achieve priority status since no application is on file for other federal aids.

Johnston also said he was unable to predict the length of delay that might be expected He said applications are currently on file for more funds than are available for this region through the end of the current fiscal year June 30.

New Funds

If the Menasha application is still waiting action at that date, Johnston said, it would be "very difficult to say how soon this agency would be in a position to take final action on the application, since new funds have not yet been appropriated" by Congress for the next fiscal year.

Film Praising State Wins Honor Award

The hour-long promotional film "We Like It Here", produced last year for the State of Wisconsin, will be awarded an honor certificate at the American Film Festival scheduled for New York City May 10-14.

Produced for the state by Swanson Productions, Inc., Milwaukee and Appleton, the color film which extolled the virtues of Wisconsin, is one of the finalists selected by the Film Library Association, festival sponsor. The original field included more than 800 films and film strips. The Wisconsin film is entered in the Economics and Business category.

The movie was shown last summer over a 17-station Wisconsin television network.

Lower Fox Opens With First Locks

MENASHA — Army Corps of Engineers locks on the Fox River will be manned Friday, officially opening the navigation season on the Lower Fox, downstream starting from the Menasha Lock.

Boaters, however, will operate at their own risk until the U.S. Coast Guard buoy tender from the Menasha Light Stations has had time to place buoys and other navigation aids in the lower river.

The Coast Guard is unable to begin the task until the locks and drawbridges are manned. Work began in the upper reaches of the waterway on Monday, and should get under way below the locks here in about two weeks, according to Coast Guard estimates.

Need for Sewers Told in Neenah

NEENAH — Public Works Director Wayne Bryan gave committee members a short precede on what may in future years become a $1 million sewer project to service the needs on the south side of the city Wednesday.

He told members of the public works unit that the present sewage system is now operating at its maximum capacity. If the southern sectors are to be served, "we'll have to invest the money," he said.

He talked of the need for sanitary sewers in four locations to take care of new developments and annexed areas A new large lift station, at a projected cost of $300,000 to $500,000, is one item that may be needed in the long range program, he said.

Ordered Hiring of Man

Mayor's Interference Runs Into Opposition

An incident last week in which Mayor George Buckley ordered the hiring of a carpenter to fill a vacancy in the city electrical department was aired Wednesday night by the city's personnel committee.

Committee members were upset when it became apparent the mayor was by-passing normal hiring procedures

It resulted in a meeting in the mayor's office this morning between Buckley; Max Hensel, personnel committee chairman; and Jerome Rusch, city personnel director. Afterward Buckley announced the department head and personnel director would have "a free hand in filling the position."

The committee last night questioned the mayor's action and authorized Hensel and Rusch to meet with Buckley to informally discuss the matter.

No One Hired

No one has been hired to fill the vacancy which was ordered filled by the city council and personnel committee.

Members of the committee were disturbed that the mayor's office was becoming involved in recommending hiring on the departmental level, and one alderman threatened to take the matter up on the council floor at the next meeting unless the matter was cleared up.

Mayor Buckley apparently was not familiar with the city's policy of advertising for job applicants, and having them screened by the department head who makes the recommendation for hiring to the council committee of jurisdiction.

With regard to the electrical position, three applicants were being considered and the No. 1 man was about to be selected when the mayor intervened and said to hire another one of the applicants instead.

Gives Explanation

Mayor Buckley gave an explanation of this action this morning:

A friend who now works in the electrical department had told him there was too much work and another employe was urgently needed. He recommended a friend of his to Mayor Buckley.

"I felt that under the circumstances we should get a man fast and hire him," Buckley said, "It would have been on sort of a temporary basis because he would have to serve six months probation."

Buckley said he was aware of three candidates being considered by the department head for the job, one from out of the city and two recommended by the local employment service.

"The guy from out of the city was dead with me," Buckley said, "That is going to be my policy, and that killed the No 1 man."

Buckley said that left two candidates for the job, the one recommended to him by the electrical department employe. and another

Buckley said his friend in the electrical department said he knew both of the candidates and "could not work with the one, and besides he was to fat and wouldn't be able to climb poles "

Wants Appleton Man

The mayor said he told Hensel and Rusch this morning not to consider anyone from outside of Apleton for the job.

"They are going to interview the two remaining applicants and have a free hand in making their decision," Buckley said, referring to the department head and personnel director.

To be considered now are the carpenter, the friend of the mayor's wanted hired, or another man who was not identified.

Buckley said he wanted to get the position filled "as fast as possible so the electrical department doesn't get behind in its work "

Calumet County Youth Questioned

A 19-year-old Calumet County youth and his 18-year-old girl friend were questioned this morning by Outagamie County sheriff's investigators in connection with a reported burglary at the Country Aire Club, 2311 W. Spencer St.

The owner of the club notified the sheriff's department at 2:35 a.m. today that a rear door was found open and there were broken liquor bottles on the floor

Authorities also were told several bottles of liquor were missing

Town of Harrison Awaits Decision On Sewer Services

MENASHA — The 27 residents of the Town of Harrison who signed a petition seeking to be included in Sanitary District 4 will have to wait until the present contracts for sewer and water are settled in the Town of Menasha.

The sewage commission at a meeting Tuesday, decided the residents couldn't be served at the present time. However, they will hold the final decision until the service is inaugurated in the town this summer.

The district already had gone on record opposing service to areas outside the corporate limits of the town.

Mayor Proclaims City Goodwill Week

NEENAH — Mayor Carl E. Loehning has declared the period of May 1-7 as Goodwill Week in the city to acknowledge the servicesof Goodwill Industries of Wisconsin.

Shopping Center Out

Eastern Firm Drops Option For Appleton Land Purchase

Appleton has lost a major shopping center which had been proposed for the city's far northeast side, it was learned today.

The real estate man who has been handling the property confirmed a report that a New Jersey firm decided not to purchase the land and dropped the option last week.

He said the major reason the firm gave for dropping its expansion plans in Appleton as that a Fox Cities site was not chosen for the new four-year university for Northeastern Wisconsin. A site was chosen for the school east of Green Bay.

Only Reason

"That was the only reason given to me," the local businessman said.

The firm became interested in the site more than a year ago, took an option and had renewed it periodically since then.

The site is a 10-acre tract bordered by Ballard Road, Longview Drive and Northland Avenue. It was in the news a couple of years ago when a dispute arose over rezoning the property from residential to commercial.

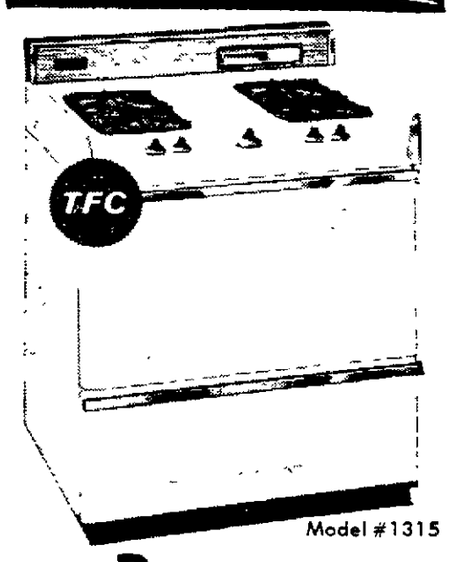

At that time Arlan's, Inc., a national department store chain, had an option on the property and planned to construct a shopping center. However, after the rezoning was completed the company indicated it had changed its mind.

The owner of the land said Monday it would again be up for sale and that he would continue to make contacts in hopes of finding a developer.

Today is Thursday, April 28, the 118th day of 1966. There are 247 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1789, the famous mutiny on the Bounty took place Capt. William Bligh and 18 of his followers were turned loose in a launch in the middle of the Pacific.

In 1758, James Monroe, fifth president of the United States, was born.

In 1855, California imposed a $50 tax on every Chinese entering the state.

In 1876, Queen Victoria was declared Empress of India.

In 1939, Germany denounced its nonaggression pact with Poland.

In 1945, Benito Mussolini and his sweetheart, Clara Petacci, were executed.

Ten years ago—The world's largest exhibition building, the Coliseum — which cost $35 million — opened in New York City.

Five years ago — President Kennedy conferred with former President Herbert Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the Cuban invasion crisis.

One year ago — President Johnson sent more than 400 Marines to the Dominican Republic to protect Americans in a power struggle in that country.

Polish University Might Get U.S. Aid for English Course

WROCLAW, Poland (AP) — A new Polish university built on the ruins of an old German university may get U.S. aid to start an English course.

American Ambassador John A. Gronouski raised the possibility of financial support during a recent visit with Prof. Alfred Jahn, rector of the Boleslaw Bierut University in Wroclaw, the former German city of Breslau.

Gronouski asked if it would be helpful to set up English instruction, using part of America's huge surplus of Polish currency accumulated from the sale of wheat to Poland from 1958 through 1964. The United States hold zlotys officially valued at more than half a billion dollars, spendable only in Poland.

Since becoming ambassador last November, Gronouski has been looking for worthwhile ways to use the money. Jahn a noted geographer who visited the United States in 1960 and 1964, was interested. He said there is a shortage of professors to teach English philology and he would be happy to start with just one.

The 8,000-student university is named for Poland's Stalin-era Communist party chief, the late Boleslaw Bierut, but most Poles call it Wroclaw University. It is strong in law, mathematics and Polish, German and Russian languages and literature.

The university occupies buildings rebuilt after World War II on ruins of the German Friedrich Wilhelm University, which was destroyed in the siege of Breslau in World War II.

Making his first visit to the regions transferred from Germany to Poland at the end of the war, Gronouski also visited Mayor Boleslaw Iwaszkiewicz and Provincial Gov. Bronislaw Ostapczuk.

"Not a soul in this city can conceive of returning these territories to Germany," Iwaszkiewicz told him.

Gronouski said the officials "reminded me of Chamber of Commerce people in the United States, they are so proud of their history, cultural activities and economic development of their local areas."

Bills Aimed at Saving State $5 Million to be Introduced

Finance Committee Approves 12 Suggestions of Kellett Study

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Bills growing out of Kellett Task Force recommendations totaling over $5 million dollars in added revenues or savings for the state will be introduced in the May session of the legislature

The Joint Committee on Finance Wednesday voted 9-1 to recommend for introduction 12 bills drafted along lines recommended by the state Committee on Improved Expenditure Management, headed by William Kellett of Neenah.

The bills were presented to the legislative committee by Kellett and Abbott Byfield of Neenah, who served on Kellett's task force

Several of the bills reduce state costs by shifting financial burdens to counties. Byfield was careful to point out, and therefore constitute state savings but additional costs for local units of government.

Opposition Expected

At least two of the bills will meet stiff resistance when they reach the floor of the legislature, according to comments made at the legislative finance committee meeting.

The bills recommend $2 hunting and fishing stamps for trout fishermen and pheasant hunters, in addition to regular licensing fees. Less than half of the state's licensed sportsmen take part in those activities, Byfield pointed out, and therefore those who enjoy the activities should be expected to bear the costs of wildlife propagation for their sport

The trout stamp is expected to raise $400,000, according to the bill. The pheasant stamp would increase state revenues by about $275,000.

Assemblyman George Molinaro, D-Kenosha, co-chairman of the finance committee, said that the two recommendations had been around for the entire 20 years of his legislative career, and that he expected that they would create dispute when they reached the assembly.

Largest Saving

Largest of the state savings recommended totals $3 million, gained by revising county and patients' payments to the state for care received in state mental institutions Parents or guardians of children in institutions for the mentally retarded may now be charged up to $60 a month for their care: cost to the state varies between $250 and nearly $500 a month per patient for such service Counties are now charged $5 a week for patients transferred from county to state mental institutions Cost to the state is in the vicinity of $500 per month per patient

A program of precommitment investigation of prospective mental patients by local community services to determine placement in the facility best suited to his care could save the state $1 million a year, according to figures supplied with a proposed bill

Other, smaller recommended changes bring the total state savings and added revenue to $5,165,000 annually

Agencies affected by the proposed legislation are the State Board of Health, the State Department of Public Welfare, the Conservation Department, the Motor Vehicle Department and the state Department of Taxation

State Medicare

The finance committee also voted to recommend for introduction the state Medicare bill, which was drafted after several months of work by state officials The $116.2 million bill will result in first year savings of $13.2 million in state welfare costs The federal government will contribute $66 million of the total cost of the program The remainder will be met by the state

Among the provisions of the bill are measures which allow the payment of aid to dependent children of the unemployed, and the removal of an existing $75 ceiling on old age assistance payments Under the bill, such aids will be based on need. The measure also allows some welfare recipients to keep earned income in addition to state aids as an incentive to gainful employment

The committee also recommended for passage an assembly "truth in packaging" bill, despite strong objections from Sen Robert Warren, R-Green Bay

Qualifying Phrases

The bill would allow the state department of agriculture to set standards for package labels bearing information as to quantity of the item, and would prohibit the use of qualifying phrases such as "economy size" in referring to the quantity contained.

Warren said that, "I am appalled at what this calls for — a great big grey, monotonous kind of packaging in Wisconsin. I don't think we want to get into the position of substituting laws for intelligent shopping on the part of the consumer. That doesn't make for a good citizenry."

Assemblyman David Obey, D-Wausau, supported the bill, and said that "the philosophy of 'let the buyer beware' is the most obnoxious philosophy that has ever crept into American life."

In its two days of sessions, the legislative finance committee has added almost 60 bills to the more than 300 pieces of legislation pending for the May session Many more are expected to be proposed from the floor when the session opens Monday quest is the current aid bill, which placed state aids to school districts on a current basis, determined through average daily membership and current costs Originally estimated to cost $2,200,000 a year, more recent estimates have increased the cost of the program by $200,000 a year, or $4,800,000 for the biennium.

An amendment to the current aid bill required that any district under the new system receive at least as much state aid as it did under the previous aid system in 1964 and 1965. That resulted in an increased revenue need of $600,000, Rothwell said

A later law allowing some school districts to use more advantageous 1963 equalized valuation figures in determing aid payments for this biennium resulted in another addition to the aid total, Rothwell pointed out A second additional $600,000 will be required due to that act

Must be Restored

A budgetary cut of $1.5 million in the second year of the biennium must be restored, the superintendent warned. It will be needed to meet the aid claims on the department under the program, he said.

A new program of state payment of tuition costs of elementary school students residing in foster homes has increased state educational costs as well, Rothwell went on. Prior to the 1965 session of the legislature, the state paid the tuition payments of only high school students living in foster homes

The amount needed to pay for tuition costs of elementary students, as provided under the new law, will be $663,000, Rothwell said in 23 years of company history and the first since a national union has represented the truck manufacturing employes.

In addition, the previous appropriation for the costs of high school tuitions must be increased at least $175,000 from its present $350,00 level, he said.

It has been emphasized that this walkout is not a strike. There are no picket lines and the union has had nothing to do with the action taken by the men.

Met Earlier

Wednesday morning the men were informed they should report to work and a union meeting would start at 4 p.m. in the armory. However, the men did not report to work, but met earlier in the afternoon at the armory

"The company will not bargain with us as long as the shop is closed," Percy Mitchell, union president, told the men shortly after 2:30 p.m

Heckling, jeers and shouts of "No" greeted Mitchell's statement and entry to return to their jobs.

At the 4 p.m. meeting called by the union, Clifford L Matchey, Milwaukee, international representative for the AIW, told the men, "The officers, bargaining committee and stewards of this union are asking you to report back to work."

The men again shouted, "No." They said they were not returning to work until they had wage increases

After a few minutes, Matchey repeated, his plea "for the record."

Wouldn't Sanction Session

The union did not announce plans for another meeting and refused to sanction this morning's scheduled gathering.

Frank A Sinkewicz, director of industrial relations at the FWD Corp., confirmed by letter to Local No. 815 Wednesday, that as soon as the men return to work, the company will bargain.

The action taken by the workers is described as an illegal walk-out. Mitchell told the men that by not being at work, they were violating a clause in their contract

As recently as last Friday, the company and union bargaining committees were in process of negotiating with the next meeting to be held at their mutual convenience

AIW officials have been meeting with company representatives since early this year to negotiate a new contract The present three-year contract expires Aug 31

District Church Convention

Lutherans Told Love of God Shown by Service

OSHKOSH — Through social service agencies, homes for the aged, and through assistance of social agencies, hospitals and institutions, The American Lutheran Church seeks to translate the love of God to man, the Rev. Herbert Nottbohm, Minneapolis, executive assistant to the general ALA president, told a congregation of pastors Wednesday.

His address on the state of the church opened the session of the district American Lutheran Church convention.

The state of the church, the Rev Mr Nottbohm declared, is not determined by its address or its program. It depends, he emphasized, on the pastors and the 2.5 million members "You and I determine the state of the church," he said.

New Division

ALC's newly named division of social service distributes some $1,155,000 in support of its work with institutions and agencies dealing with the ministry to people who have special mental, emotional or social needs Another $2 million is expended annually by churches for area work of similar nature

There is a movement underway, he indicated, to form social service organizations at the local church level to increase the awareness of troubled people so that "we will be able to translate the warmth and the love of God to them"

In a troubled, changing world, the "word of God" is still the greatest need, he declared A recapitulation of a 150th anniversary report of the American Bible Society estimated that 50 per cent of Christian homes don't have a Bible, that seven out of 10 Christians are without a New Testament. "Most of the Christians in the world can't afford to buy them," the Rev. Nottbohm said. "Four-fifths of them depend on the world's Bible societies to provide them."

70 Million Literate

He noted that 70 million persons become literate every year, and that Russia spends $1.5 billion annually for printing and propaganzing its philosophy outside its borders.

"These 70 million persons are going to read something," he warned, "yet the some 170 Bible societies of the world used only $15 million for their work last year."

Delegates Wednesday heard a report on the division of American missions and attended memorial services. Reports from Lutheran church men and women and the district Luther League were presented. A convention banquet was served at Peace Lutheran Church Wednesday night.

Tuesday's elections included re-election of the Rev Waldo Johnson of Eau Claire as secretary of the Northern Wisconsin District.

Correction

LITTLE CHUTE — The board of education is not planning to float an $850,000 bond issue when the new high school begins operating, as stated in Tuesday's paper, but will borrow an additional $190,000 to raise the entire amount of the bond issue to $850,000.

The district had set aside $300,000 toward school construction and floated a bond issue for $660,000, the legal limit permitted by law as the district was not operating a public high school When the district has a high school in operation it may borrow up to 10 per cent of its equalized valuation The additional $190,000 is needed to complete the overall building program and will make total cost of the building $1,150,000, well below the 10 per cent debt limit our highway system if we wish to progress and improve our state and local economy

Bero traced the growing trend in county airport ownership "because of the economics of a broader tax base and being the valuable asset to the entire county

"However," Bero said "aviation expenditures are always the first item eliminated from budgets by county boards." He said not enough county supervisors are aware that aviation is "a very valuable transportation adjunct to a county."

He criticized county boards for not having continuity of airport managements. He said that within five years there have been as many as 20 different supervisors serving on the aviation committee of the Manitowoc County Board. "With such vast turnovers, which are typical for all county boards, how can there be continuity of policy management?"

Elected by Board

Bero and several other speakers suggested that county board aviation or airport committees should be elected by the full board membership, much in the same way county highway committee members are now chosen, instead of being appointed for brief terms by a committee on committees

The county's governing body for aviation," Bero said, "usually is composed of people of whom 75 per cent have never ridden in an airplane These are people who, when it comes to financing, say Why do you need an airport" I've never used it' They have no awareness that aviation is a vital factor for location of business and industry

"You can't expect support," Bero said from people who have never been in an airplane We need enthusiasm on the local level if we ever want to see it transferred to the state legislature"

The nearly 150 persons attending the conference at the La Crosse Holiday Inn also heard talks and panel discussions on topics of airport insurance and airport leaves. Wednesday and today they were scheduled to hear a panel discussion on "State and Sponsors' Relations in the Airport Program," talks on state legislation by Republican Assemblyman J Curtis McKay of Thiensville, and the role of the helicopter in Viet Nam by U S Army Col George P Burton

Tariff Unit Urged Not To Raise Cheese Quotas

Byrnes, Thomson Claim President's Request To Increase Imports Will Hurt Dairy Farmers

BY FRANCES McKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Two members of the Wisconsin congressional delegation today urged the U.S. Tariff Commission to turn down President Johnson's request for cheddar cheese import quotas.

In a statement prepared for delivery, 8th District Rep. John W. Byrnes, (R.-Green Bay), charged that the Administration had "acted with indecent haste in its attempt to use increased cheese quotas to beat back the price of cheese . . . and hence the price of milk to dairy farmers in manufacturing areas like Wisconsin."

Also in a statement prepared for delivery before the Commission, 3rd District Rep. Vernon W. Thomson, (R.-Richland Center), asked the tariff commission to "stay out of the economic war that the Administration is now waging against the dairy farmers of Wisconsin."

Emphasizing that the price of cheese "fell sharply" with the announcement of the President's import actions, Byrnes told the Tariff Commission that "any softening of the cheese price is bound to have an effect upon manufacturing milk prices, either driving them down or preventing a well-justified increase."

"I believe that the Commission will want to consider the long-range effect upon the price-support programs of any hasty action to increase cheese import quotas to the extent proposed by the President," Byrnes declared.

He added that the commission would be "forced to take judicial notice of the fact that with the temporary increase in the quota on cheddar, the voluntary agreements which had been reached to restrain Colby imports went out the window."

Urges Caution

Cautioning that the commission "should keep in mind that there is no over-all shortage of milk, even though the Administration is acting as if the last dairy cow in America had died," the Green Bay legislator noted that "there has been a steady drop in demand for manufactured dairy products."

"A time of diminishing demand is a very poor time to experiment with increased cheese quotas and increased cheese imports outside the quota," he declared. "The dairy farmer is low man on the economic totem pole We ought to be striving to increase his opportunities and to increase his income, instead of limiting his opportunities and lowering his income."

Thomson accused the Administration of having "what appears to be a planned program to keep the dairy farmers among the lowest of all producers in America

"It seems to many of us that the Administration is dropping more blockbusters on the American dairy farmer than it is on the Viet Cong in Southeast Asia," concluded the former Wisconsin governor.

MINNEAPOLIS — A first class honor rating was awarded the Carrousel, Fox Valley Lutheran High of Appleton in the 74th All American Newspaper Critical Service of the National Scholastic Press Association (NSPA).

More than 1,000 student newspapers from high schools all over the nation are judged by NSPA in groups divided by enrollment, frequency of publication and method of printing.

The top honor rating, all-American represents superior accomplishment and is reserved for top publications. A first class honor rating means the newspaper is excellent but lacks the outstanding qualities needed for all-American Second class ratings are awarded to papers which are average in quality. Third class ratings indicate major weaknesses are evident

Home and Family Council Asks for Family Court Board

MADISON (AP) — The State Advisory Council for Home and Family has recommended creation of a board of family court judges.

The board concept, backed Wednesday, would be similar to a board of criminal court judges already in operation.

The council also said it favored federal legislation making it a crime to cross state lines for the purpose of abandoning children.

Faubus Proves He Won't Run

Name Doesn't Appear for First Time Since 1952

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus flopped back in his swivel chair and grinned.

"I guess they'll believe I'm out of it now, he said.

The Democratic gubernatorial primary ticket had closed without Faubus' name on it for the first time since 1952, and Faubus now may be the most relaxed politician in Arkansas.

Many doubted until the ticket closed that Faubus could keep his promise to stay out of the race. He had indicated until about three weeks ago that he might run again — for a seventh term — if the Democratic party failed to produce a candidate he considered capable of challenging Republican Winthrop Rockefeller.

Faubus' retirement may be temporary. He has indicated an interest in running for the U S Senate, possibly against Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., in 1968

Eight candidates are seeking the Democratic nomination.

Farmer Could 'Bear' No More

COVINGTON, La. (AP) — Trouble was a bruin and there's limit to what a man can bear, explained the farmer to the judge.

Paul Guillot, 71, pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges of shooting a bear out of season but said the 200-pound beast had chased his cattle three times and he had chased the animal out of his pasture twice before killing it

Judge Frederick Ellis fined Guillot $25 but suspended the fine, saying he would have let the bear trespass only once.

Thinks Sex Education Should Begin Early

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sex education should start in kindergarten, a California educator said Wednesday.

Donald Oakes, director of secondary instruction for the Hayward, Calif., school district, said it should continue through senior year in high school

The Hayward district has such a program, Oakes said, and there was reason to believe it was helping reduce the number of high school pregnancies

Oakes was a panelist at a program for family physicians.

An Open Letter to Appleton Citizens and the Traveling Public . . .

Vinton Construction Co.
Manitowoc, Wisconsin

April 28, 1966

The Vinton Construction Co., Manitowoc, has been awarded a contract to pave about one-third of a mile of W. College Ave., from the viaduct east.

We congratulate state highway commission engineers and the Appleton city council for selecting concrete for this project. Concrete provides the most durable, long lasting surfacing available today.

In the construction of our project there will be a slight amount of inconvenience to the traveling public and the abutting property owners. Every effort will be made to keep this inconvenience to a minimum. We ask your cooperation and understanding, and wish to assure you that we plan to handle our construction so as to give the least inconvenience possible.

The amount of this contract is over $107,000. The outlay for concrete, mesh and curb and gutter will be more than $56,000 for a 52-foot wide street. The payroll will be approximately $12,000.

Some of the work connected with this contract will be subcontracted to qualified contractors. We feel sure that the greater portion of the payrolls involved will remain in your community. Much of the material used will be purchased in this area and will contribute to the betterment of the economy.

We are grateful for this opportunity to work in Appleton and our aim is to give a finished product of which you will be proud and will give the motoring public many years of service.

The Threat to Our Waters . . . V

Federal, State Action Costing Billions Will Stop Pollution

BY SEN. GAYLORD NELSON

WASHINGTON — The first four articles of this series have told the grim story of how we are losing the battle to save our lakes and streams.

This chapter will outline how we can win that battle, once we decide to stop tolerating pollution and make it a public policy to prevent it.

Such a decision may be painful and expensive, of course. It may cost $50 to $100 billion over the next 15 years to save our waters. But the destruction of this priceless natural resource would be far more costly.

Our goal must be to prevent pollution, and our objective must be clean water. Our methods of the past are outmoded and have failed. Under our historical approach we have polluted every major river system in America. We have all but destroyed Lake Erie and the other Green Lakes are well on the way to destruction. Thousands of inland lakes have been damaged by pollutants and nutrients draining into them Most of the other lakes will join the polluted ones in a handful of years.

Obviously, our approach to the problem must be altered and our effort enormously expanded.

To make the war on pollution understandable, it helps to organize it into several packages Let us look at this nationwide crisis in terms of:

— What can be done immediately.

— What can be done in the months and years to come.

— What must be done over the long range if we are to have clean water.

Immediate Steps

As short-sighted as we have been in protecting our water resources, the Congress and our Wisconsin legislature have given us some tools for immediate use. None are perfect, but then none are being used to maximum advantage.

A bold step in declaring war on pollution in Wisconsin would be to call a federal-state conference as outlined in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. Such a conference is more than just a meeting. It is the first step in a carefully planned chain of events, vital to cleaning up public waters.

I have suggested that such a conference be called to consider the rapidly increasing pollution on the western shore of Lake Michigan and in Green Bay. A similar conference could consider the first indications of pollution in crystal pure Lake Superior, in the Duluth-Superior region. Such a conference must be requested by a governor. State and federal officials would then assemble. City and county officials probably would be invited to join the conferences.

Inventory Pollution

A team of federal investigators would inventory all pollution in the waters covered by the conference Next, the conference would agree to a program and set up a timetable for waste treatment plant construction and other steps The conference's recommendations would be presented to all municipalities, industries and individuals found to be contributing to the pollution problem.

A total of 37 such conferences already have been held, most of them wth excellent results. The most notable have been the recent conferences on southern Lake Michigan and Lake Erie.

But while using these tools immediately available, we must work for long range goals absolutely necessary if we are to win this fight.

Experience should have convinced us by now that the No. 1 need — more primary and secondary waste treatment facilities — will never be met under present programs. Cities and villages are reluctant to add to their already burdened property tax. Industries are reluctant to make big investments for treatment facilities because they fear such costs will make them non-competitive, and because they know that treatment plants don't produce profits.

The obvious answer is: better incentives. I think the federal government should get municipal sewage plants built the way it is getting the Interstate Highway System built — by offering 90 per cent federal assistance

For industry, I think we need to use the carrot and stick approach. We should offer direct federal grants, or fast tax write-offs to those industries wanting to fight pollution. Then, we should institute a "pollution tax" so that those industries not eliminating pollutants from the material they discharge will pay some of the public cost of pollution control.

Proposed Laws

Nelson

Muskie of Maine, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution, also has introduced legislation to expand the federal role. President Johnson has sent the Congress proposals. With popular support, we hope that the current session of Congress will expand greatly federal incentives guaranteeing cities and industries can and will build necessary treatment facilities.

At the state level, we need a similar beefing up in a program, once among the nation's best, but now described as "hopelessly inadequate by a veteran state capitol correspondent The state program, although led by conscientious men, is understaffed, underfinanced and lacks adequate enforcement power.

By the time it detects a source of pollution, issues a pollution abatement order, and obtains compliance, pollution has surged ahead on many other fronts. We are justifiably proud of much of what we have accomplished in Wisconsin since our pollution fight began in 1925. But the real test is in our waters, and the fact is they are more polluted today than ever before

State Must Act

In adition to strengthening its anti-pollution staff, the state must take broader action to head off pollution before it gets the upper hand. For instance, our priceless inland lakes are marked for destruction because they are being ringed by cottages with septic tanks, which will eventually leak pollutants into the lake. Once this process is completed, there is nothing the State Committee on Water Pollution can do.

This tragedy can be prevented only by stopping the intensive development of lakeshores, and by setting far stricter state regulations on septic tanks. Many lakes already heavily built-up will have to install sewers and sewage treatment facilities or the lakes will soon be ruined

We need strict zoning of the land surrounding our lakes and along our river banks. We need strict regulations on tree cutting, cottage replacement and septic tank installations. If we are going to protect the waters, we must first protect the shorelines

Laws For Chemicals

Pesticides and chemicals form a special category of pollutants we must deal with separately. No matter how many fine new sewage treatment plants we build, these chemicals will continue to find their way into our waters and will harm our wildlife. I am having drafted legislation seeking to control these pesticides and banning outright those that simply cannot be used with safety.

But while using every weapon immediately available, and while acting promptly on short term legislative solutions, we must also look ahead and work toward the future.

One of our biggest handicaps in fighting pollution today is simply lack of knowledge. We need to know much more about how pollutants affect water. We also need to know the newest and best methods for removing them.

Build New Plants

A flood of pollution is pouring out of our cities and industries, threatening to destroy the most priceless of our natural resources. We must battle to contain and purify this flood by quickly building sewage treatment plants and industrial waste treatment facilities.

But while doing that, we also must begin long range research to see if there isn't a better way to handle this terrible social and economic problem. I have introduced the Waste Management Research Act which would direct the federal government to seek the most imaginative answers to these problems. The bill would direct the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to compile a national inventory of waste management needs and problems. The secretary would recommend to Congress a comprehensive national waste management program including alternatives and an analysis of comparative costs and benefits.

Research grants would be made to private industry and universities to develop new methods and devices to refine, use, neutralize or destroy pollutants. Coordinated waste treatment programs for special areas, such as the vast industrial complex at the southern tip of Lake Michigan, would be considered. We would be told the real cost of today's methods, including the cost of the pollution we are failing to control, and of what it would cost to do things in the newest way.

River Basin Approach

Another long range need is to take a broad river basin approach to our pollution problems. For instance, why should St. Louis taxpayers make a major investment in pollution prevention when the Mississippi River brings to St. Louis

Wednesday — "Patty Duke," "Blue Light" and "The Long Hot Summer."

Thursday — "Gidget," "Henry Phyfe," "The Baron" and "The Munsters."

Friday — "Flintstones," "Tammy," "The Addams Family," "Honey West," "The Farmer's Daughter," "Smothers Brothers," "Trials of O'Brien," "Camp Runamuck" and "Mr. Roberts."

Saturday — "Ozzie and Harriet," "Donna Reed," "Secret Agent," "The Loner" and "Hank" (shown on the network on Friday but rebroadcast here on Saturday).

The "Dick Van Dyke" show will also be discontinued (Wednesday), but that is Dick's choice and not that of the network.

Already cancelled were: "Ben Casey" (Monday), "Mona McCluskey" (Thursday), and "Sammy Davis Jr. Show" and "Jimmy Dean" (Friday).

Other shows may be added, including "Mickie Finn's," which replaced "Mona McCluskey," but no official announcements have yet been made.

When "Batman" launches its second season in the fall, it will be even more star-studded than now. Among those who have offered to play guest villains are Maurice Evans, Art Carney, Agnes Moorehead, James Mason, Robert Morley, Raymond Massey, Cyril Ritchard, Mickey Rooney and Liberace. Incidentally, that was Jerry Lewis who made a "cameo" appearance on last week's Wednesday episode, when the Dynamic Duo was scaling a wall in search of the Bookworm. Look for more big name stars to make similar showings. Van Heflin and Nanette Fabray also have volunteered.

That "Get Smart" influence is everywhere. A sign at Shea Stadium, the home of the hapless New York Mets, says "The Mets in '66. Would you believe '67?"

Perry Como, who has stayed close to home and the golf course for the past dozen summers, will go out around the country to play the state fair circuit. Included will be a visit to the Wisconsin State Fair, Aug. 16-20.

Whenever regular programs are pre-empted for space flights, Senate hearings, Presidential speeches, etc., the three networks foot the bill. They lose several million dollars a day in advertising each time they cover an all-day news event.

Cast Members of "The Old Maid and the Thief" show their talents for comedy in the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera. It is one of two Menotti works being given tonight through Saturday night by the Occasional Opera theatre under producer-director John Koopman. John K. Haugner portrays the rascally thief and with him are, from the left, Mrs. E. A. Fetting, Mrs. Richard Stowe and Mrs. Don C. Smith. This and "The Telephone" are being sponsored by the King's Daughters at 8 p.m. productions in the experimental theater of Lawrence Music-Drama Center. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Center to Give Poem-Play by Dylan Thomas

Joan Hoffmann Star Narrator of Modern 'Under Milk Wood'

A play reading of Dylan Thomas' "Under Milk Wood" will be performed at 8:15 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Fox Valley University Center Fine Arts Theater.

The production, The Center Players' final offering of the school year, will be presented as part of the Center's spring Open House activities. Open House itself will be from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Hoffmann

Tickets for "Under Milk Wood" are available at the Center, the Camera and Card Shop in Neenah and Conkey's Book Store in Appleton.

Welsh Village

Ken Anderson, speech and drama instructor, is director of the lyrical poem-play that expresses author Dylan Thomas' view of the magnificence and variety of life. The play gives an often moving, sometimes hilarious account of a spring day in a small, Welsh coastal village. Thomas completed the unusual drama shortly before his death in 1953.

Starring in the production will be Joan Hoffmann, Neenah, principal narrator. Mrs. Hoffmann has appeared in many theatrical productions in this area and is known throughout Wisconsin for her one-woman dramatic readings. She was active in the old Winnebago Players, the Little Theater of the Fox River Valley and Valley Players. She presently is a member of Attic Theatre. Besides performing onstage for these and other theater groups, she has held office in most of the theater groups and worked backstage.

Part-time Center student Bill Mattes, Neenah, will take the part of the second narrator. Mattes has acted before in Riverside Players productions.

In Several Parts

Other roles will be taken by five men and five women readers. Each reader will have from five to seven parts.

Women readers include Mrs. Marge La Rocque, Appleton housewife who has appeared with Attic Theatre Center coeds Michelle Murphy, Joyce Rickert and Karen Leitermann, and Sallie Shockley, Neenah High School senior whose acting experience has been with the Neenah High Thespians and Riverside Players.

Men readers will be Center students Charles Ertl, Don Roelofs and Robert Nash; Raleigh Williams, mathematics instructor who has appeared previously in Players productions, and Dean Markwardt, Neenah teacher. Markwardt appeared in The Attic production of "Tea and Sympathy."

"Under Milk Wood" is the second play-reading for The Players. Earlier this year "The Hollow Crown" was produced in the same way.

Underwater Adventure On Special

6:30-7:30 — Channels 2-7-12 — The World of Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the fourth program in the National Geographic Society specials, is a fine, beautiful and occasionally suspenseful look at the Conshelf III experiment in which six oceanauts, one Cousteau's handsome son Philippe (who did all the excellent underwater photography), lived in an 18-foot steel ball on the ocean floor off Cap Ferrat, France, for 27 days, performing experiments and concluding it is easier to live on the floor than to have divers commute. (Color)

6:30-7 — Channels 11-6-9 — Holy Fatty Arbuckle, but the Riddler still has C. B. grinding away making a silent film of Batman and Robin in action. The climax of the film has Robin perched on a ledge, a la Harold Lloyd, but with very little hope of being rescued before the dastardly villains push him off to splatt, zip, pow on the pavement. (Color)

* * *

6:30-7:30 — Channels 4-5 — Daniel Boone begins repeats with "My Name is Rawl," in which former Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson gives a good performance as an escaped slave. He's a giant of a man who steals furs for a gang of renegades to pay his passage back to Africa. (R-Color)

* * *

7:30-8 — Channels 2-7-12 — My Three Sons' last new episode of the season has the family back from one of those trips they are always taking. This time it was to London, and now that he is back, Steve (Fred MacMurray) is definitely off his feed. (Color)

* * *

7:30-8 — Channels 11-6-9 — The Double Life of Henry Phyfe has stories that are so familiar they seem like repeats. The gimmick tonight (Henry has to learn if a woman doctor is really that or a double agent) has been used before. (Color)

* * *

7:30-8:30 — Channels 4-5 — Charles Ruggles lends his considerable charm to "A Taste of Money" on Laredo. He plays

8-10 — Channels 2-7-12 — "Houseboat" is repeated on The Thursday Night Movie. It's a movie blessed by the presence of Cary Grant and Sophia Loren, a wonderful performance from Harry Guardino and some snappy and funny dialogue. (R-Color)

* * *

9-10 — Channels 11-6-9 — The Baron begins a two-parter. The opening of "Masquerade" is a slow-moving, but gripping adventure that is going to make you want to tune in next week. Steve Forrest is kidnapped and imprisoned in a mansion where some sort of surgery has been performed. (Color)

Train Time

A train leaves Town A for Town B every hour on the hour. A train leaves Town B for Town A every hour on the half-hour. The trip takes 5 hours each way. If I were to take the train from Town A, how many trains bound from Town B to Town A would my train pass?

Answer

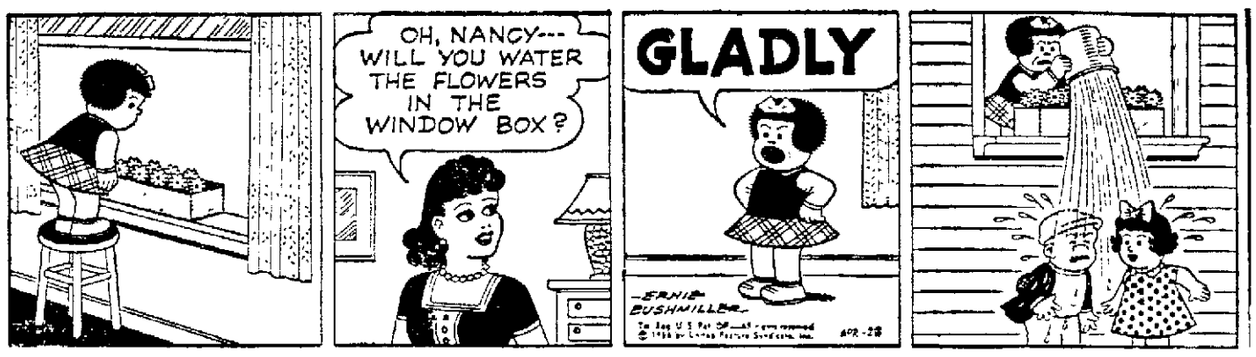

We would pass 10 trains bound for Town A. We would pass the first train coming to Town A 15 minutes after we started, this other train being due in Town A 15 minutes later — and one each half-hour thereafter.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Make Shelf for Potted Plant And Display Colorful Rocks

BY CAPPY DICK

If you have a plant that grows in a red clay flower pot, you can add glamor to its appearance by equipping the pot with a shelf on which small, colorful rocks may be displayed as in Figure 3.

The shelf (Figure 1) is to be cut from corrugated board removed from a large carton. With the aid of a big dinner plate or pan lid, draw a large circle on the corrugated material, making it as wide as you want the collar to be.

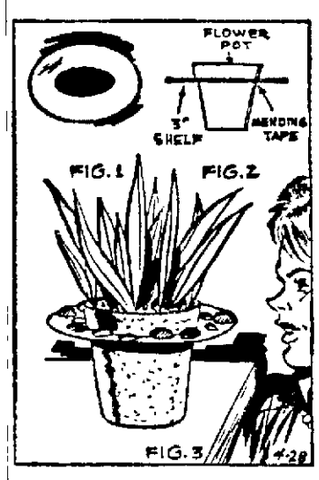

At the center of this circle draw a smaller one that is the exact circumference of the flower pot just beneath the projecting flange at its top. Cut the circles, producing the collar. The shelf should be about three inches wide.

Fit the shelf snugly up under the flange of the flower pot (see Figure 2) and attach pieces of mending tape beneath it to help hold it in place, although the collar should fit so snugly that it will not likely slip downward even under the weight of the rocks that will be placed upon it.

Select the most colorful small stones you can find and place them on the shelf as in Figure 3.

Four bowlers from the Fox Cities grabbed divisional leads as the fourth annual Post-Crescent Bowl-O-Rama got underway Thursday night at the 41 Bowl.

Gomoll Kalm

Don Gomoll, Neenah; Earl Kahlm, Menasha; Alma Dictus, Kimberly and Mrs. Orville (Barbara) Bongers, Little Chute, took first places after the first night of action.

Gomoll took the Class A lead in the men's division as he fired a 4-game scratch total of 829, carried a 44-pin handicap total and finished with 873.

Gomoll had one other distinction as he hit a 236 in his first game, and along with his 11 handicap, finished with a 247 total to win the first shift prize ever given in the Bowl-O-Rama. For the high game, Gomoll received a folding lawn chair and patio table.

Wins Barbecue Grill

On the second shift, Lee Peterson, Menasha, fired a 213 game, carried 14 pins handicap, giving him a 227 total and the shift prize of a outdoor barbecue grill.

This is the first year that shift prizes, awarded for high game plus handicap, have been given in the tournament.

Gomoll is a once-a-week bowler and lives at 914 Caroline Street, Neenah. He bowled in the Goodfellowship League at Lakeroad Lanes this past season and carried a 183 average. It was only the second time he ever competed in the Bowl-O-Rama.

Runnerup in the Men's Class A group is Eugene Patterson, Appleton. Patterson rolled a scratch total of 766 and had a handicap of 76 pins for a 842 mark. Patterson had only three blows in the four games, but ran into split trouble in key situations and had five in the four games.

First Time in 20 Years

Earl Kalm, Menasha, who competed in a league this past season for the first time in 20 years because he "was talked into it" took over the Class B lead with a 803 total. Kalm had 667 for the four games, including a high singleton of 195, and carried 34 pins handicap per game for the leading total.

It was Kalm's first time in the Bowl-O-Rama. During the season he competed in the Craftsman's League at the 41 Bowl for the Reynebeau Upholstery team and had a 147 average.

In the Women's Class A division, Alma Dictus, Kimberly, took over the lead with a 626 total for four games and 68 pins handicap. She had three games above the 160 mark, including 167, 164 and 162 after getting off to a slow start with a 133 line.

Helen Lennon, Appleton, is runnerup in Class A with a 681 total which included a high scratch game of 170 and Margaret Bentle, Appleton, ranks third with a 653 total.

One Pin Behind

Mrs. Bongers grabbed the lead in the Class B division using a 40-pin handicap per game to the best advantage. She rolled a scratch total of 563 and, with the 160 handicap total, finished with 723. Close behind, in fact only one pin off the pace, was Frances Danforth, Hortonville, with a 722 total after a 590 series and 132 pins handicap.

Action continues tonight in the classic with shifts at 7 and 9 p.m.

LA's Sutton Stops Braves on 5 Hits For 4-1 Triumph

Giusti Hurls 3-Hitter as Astros Top Cardinals; Reds Beat Giants

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don (Little D) Sutton looks like he's ready to challenge Don Drysdale for the Big D label — both on the mound and at the plate.

A 21-year-old right-hander in only his second year of professional baseball, Sutton emphasized his rapid development Wednesday night when he posted the first complete game of his major league career in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 4-1 victory over Atlanta.

Sutton's place with the Dodgers remained questionable because of his inexperience until Drysdale and Sandy Koufax went into their holdout routine during spring training. Manager Walt Alston looked at Sutton's minor league record, and then decided to look at the real thing.

He hasn't been disappointed.

"Improved Every Start".

"Sutton has improved every start," said Alston after the 6-foot-1, 185-pounder checked the Braves on five hits and struck out 10 while walking only one. "Right now he's the fourth best starter on the staff."

Sutton, however, may be after bigger things.

He's already posted two victories, and also is stealing some of Drysdale's hitting thunder. Big D was the Dodgers' leading hitter last year but Little D collected two hits against the Braves and now is No. 1 on the club with six hits in 13 at-bats for a .464 average.

Drysdale is winless and hitless.

Only two other National League games were played, the

2-Run Pinch Single Boosts Chisox Over Red Sox, 8 to 6

Senators Stop Yanks, 2-0, In Only Other League Game

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Smoky Burgess, the catcher who could pass for one of those paunchy movie bartenders, doesn't worry about the tools of ignorance lugged around by most receivers.

Burgess lugs around only one tool—his bat.

And he used it Wednesday delivering a two-run pinch single that helped the Chicago White Sox to an 8-6 victory over Boston.

A burly 39-year-old veteran, Burgess stands 5-foot-8 and weighs 192 pounds—most of it centrally located. He doesn't look the part but he happens to be the most prolific pinch hitter in baseball history. That's why the White Sox let the other guys wear the shin guards and chest protectors.

League Record

Everytime Burgess delivers a pinch hit, he adds to his major league record. Wednesday's pinch hit was his third this season and the 118th of his 17-year major league career. It helped the Sox to their 9th victory in 12 starts.

In the only other American League game played Wednesday, Washington blanked New York 2-0 on Mike McCormick's five-hitter. The other games on the schedule were postponed because of rain and cold.

Chicago broke a 5-5 tie in the seventh inning on two walks and a single by Ron Hansen. Then Burgess stroked his single and while he was chugging down the first base line, Ken Berry scored from third and Hansen took off from first and raced home with the Sox' third run of the inning.

Bonus Boy

McCormick, who was a $50,000 bonus boy with the New York Giants a decade ago, and won the National League earned run crown in 1960, is making a comeback as a Yankee-killer.

The shutout extended McCormick's streak to 21 scoreless

Tentative Teams Include Wisconsin Minnesota, Canada

SUPERIOR (AP)—Plans for a college hockey league to include teams from Wisconsin, Minnesota and Canada were discussed at a meeting Tuesday at Superior State University.

Represented in addition to Superior State were Bemidji and St. Cloud State of Minnesota, and Lakehead College of Port Arthur, Ont.

A tentative schedule was drawn and eligibility rules discussed for submission to the athletic committees of the various schools. If the plan is approved, play will start the first weekend in January. The conference will be known as the International Intercollegiate Hockey Association.

River Falls State was proposed as a second Wisconsin member.

The suggested 12-game schedule calls for each team to play each other member twice. Doubleheader weekends are planned with games on Fridays and Saturdays between the same teams.

Keglers Hit 3 National Honor Counts

The regular league season for bowling may be drawing to an end, but keglers are remaining hotter than ever stringing strikes and posting high scores.

No less than three national honor counts were recorded by Appleton keglers Wednesday night, two at the 41 Bowl and a third at Sabre Lanes.

Norm Joecks, veteran kegler, cracked a 709 series in the doubles event of the Appleton Men's Bowling Association City Tournament at the 41 Bowl.

19-Year Veteran

Shirley "Butch" Helser, a 19-year veteran on the lanes, cracked a 609 in the Women's Classic League at the 41 Bowl and Joan Kolosso rocked a booming 615 national set in the Sabre Jets League at Sabre Lanes.

Joecks had games of 233, 235, and 241 for his hefty series. He had a total of 21 strikes in the three games. Joecks' partner in the doubles was Jim Green and they posted a 1,292 total to move into fifth place. Harold DeBecker and Tom Ahrens lead with a 1,353 score.

Hank Beyersdorf went into the singles lead of the city tourney with a score of 715 which included 60 pins handicap. Ed Sheets is second with a 692 total and Dennis Huhn ranks third with 686.

Bob Kositzke had a 158 triplicate in the association tourney last night.

First National Set

Joan Kolosso powered games of 207, 186 and 222 for her 615 total in the Sabre Jets League. It was her first national honor count and she has been bowling in leagues for three years. Her previous high this season was a 584.

Joan bowls in two regular leagues and one couples circuit and has a composite average around the 166 mark. She needed nine pins in her last frame, clicked off only six but came through with a spare to climb over the 600 mark.

Shirley Helser banged games of 197, 177 and 235 for her national honor count, the "sixth or seventh" of her career. Her count would probably have been quite a bit higher had it not been for splits in two of the three 10th frames.

"Corky" Behrent shared individual honors in the Classic circuit with a 236 game. She finished with a 520 series. Other honor scores recorded on the final night of action included Toby Hoffman 540, Susie Lundberg 214-504, Marge Theisen 201-503, Elsie Ross 514, Helen Reblitz 201-193-548, Mary Schmidt 522, Delores Jacobs 513, Evelyn Myers 191-224-579, Sally Hardy 191, Jean Holdorf 220-524, Ruth Schmidt 191, Virginia Tegen 192-515, Julie Hidde 522, Myrna Schoenhaar 190, Irene Rondou 200-512, Berdie Bauhs 201-511.

Cage Coach Inks New Pact At Marquette

Al McGuire Boosted Warriors to 14-12 Record Last Year

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Coach Al McGuire has been given a three-year contract to continue the job of rebuilding Marquette's basketball fortunes, Athletic Director Stan Lowe said Wednesday night.

Formal announcement of the signing is expected today.

McGuire, who took over at Marquette in 1964, coached the Warriors to a 14-12 record in the past season, his second here.

It was Marquette's first winning season in three years.

The personable McGuire, a vigorous recruiter, has the material to field an even better team next season.

Starters Return

He has four of his five starters returning and several talented newcomers, including George Thompson, who starred on the freshman squad last season.

McGuire engineered a recruiting coup earlier this week when he landed Jeff Sewell of Grafton High School. Sewell was Wisconsin's leading high school scorer in 1965-66.

The Marquette coach inherited a team that posted a 5 - 21 record and had lost 15 straight games.

Improvement was slight in McGuire's first season after his arrival from Belmont Abbey College. The Warriors were only 8-18 in 1965-66.

But the Warriors began showing signs of coming to life last year. They set a new home attendance record and won the championship of the Milwaukee Classic after upsetting highly rated West Virginia.

Chicagoans Take on Youthful Air

Durocher Attempts Anything to Get Cubs on Winning Side of Ledger

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs still are sputtering in the National League race, but dashing Leo Durocher certainly has been spinning his managerial wheels to crank up his sluggish second division inheritance.

The rainout of Wednesday's scheduled Cub-Pittsburgh Pirate game gave the Bruins, collectively, and a few veterans, individually, time to wonder and maybe worry over Durocher's next move.

Since his Cubs opened at San Francisco April 12, the former Brooklyn Dodger and New York Giant manager has been wheeling and dealing, coaxing and scolding, and joking and jibing at Wrigley Field, where once the ivy-covered center field walls provided a main conversation topic.

Swapped Two Pitchers

He swapped away two established pitchers and sold a 12-season outfielder, Harvey Kuenn. He stuck in a rookie pinch hitter with the bases loaded against Sandy Koufax. He inserted a rookie pitcher with the bases loaded against the Dodgers. And he has benched Mr. Cub, 35-year-old Ernie Banks.

Leo is happy, at least, over his club's youthful makeup now.

But Durocher has not been away from the hot spot on a baseball bench so long that he has forgotten one of the game's iron-plated axioms: you've got to be strong down the middle to win.

"That prompted his surprise swapping of two established pitchers—Larry Jackson and Bob Buhl—to the Philadelphia Phillies last week for a youthful, but unheralded threesome among whom Adolf Phillips, 22, fleet centerfielder, was Leo's key pick.

Weak Down Middle

"In spring training and even last winter, I started trying to bolster an obvious Cub weakness down the middle," said Durocher. "I said then Randy Hundley, in only eight major league games at San Francisco would be my catcher. He's got it in my book.

"The second base combination was all right with Glenn Beckert at second, but I knew I had a job to nail me down a shortstop. I felt Don Kessinger had the tools but needed the desire. I started Roberto Pena to prod Don into action. No go."

Then last weekend, Durocher gave Kessinger a ringing, stinging pep talk and the kid played brilliantly in two Cub victories over Los Angeles.

"A Real Comer"

"With Phillips, I know I have a centerfielder—something they haven't had around here since Andy Pafko," said Durocher. "Sure Phillips was on the Philly bench, but everybody pegs him a real comer."

Along with the failure of Banks, twice the NL's Most Valuable Player, to hit his eight, Durocher has an obvious pitching headache.

Ernie Broglio, standout in spring training, has failed in three straight starts. The only other seasoned pitcher is Dick Ellsworth. Thus other starters must emerge from rookie ranks, including Bill Hands, Ken Holtzman and, possibly, Ferguson Jenkins, acquired in the Philly deal.

Xavier Golfers Set to Open Season Friday

Twenty-four candidates are currently in the process of playing qualifying rounds for berths on the Xavier High School golf team.

The Hawk linksmen open the season at 4 p.m. Friday against Oshkosh Lourdes at the Reid Municipal course, weather permitting. Saturday, Xavier travels to Fond du Lac's South Hills Golf Club for a quadrangular meet with De Pere Pennings, Little Chute St. John and St. Mary Springs.

Three lettermen from the 1965 team — seniors Jack Herb and Gary Schweitzer and junior Terry Graff — head the list of candidates.

Other top prospects include seniors Don Hayes, Cliff Recker and Jim Jankowski; juniors "Cullie" Rechner and Steve Paul; sophomore Pat Fitzgerald and freshman Brad (Bubsy) Graff.

Thus far, Schweitzer is setting the qualifying pace with a 2-over par 73 over the Municipal layout. Graff posted an even par 35 on the front nine. Each candidate is required to play 36 holes in the qualifying test.

The schedule:

April 28—Oshkosh Lourdes
April 20—Quadrangular at Springs (Pennings, St. John).
May 6—Menasha St. Mary
May 7—Quadrangular at Marinette (Pennings, Premontre).
May 9—Open

Terror Track Team to Face Manitowoc

The second and final home meet of the season confronts the Appleton High School track team at 4:15 p.m. Friday. Manitowoc, a victor over AHS in an indoor dual earlier in the year, will provide the opposition.

Coach Keith Kohlman announced that the knee injury that claimed AHS' Ed Olson in last Friday's triangular with Neenah and Green Bay East will keep him out of Friday's dual meet.

Olson, the 1965 Fox River Valley Conference high hurdles champion, boasts the circuit's top time in his specialty (15.5 seconds) thus far this season.

John Vogt, AHS' No. 2 hurdler who was also hurt in the triangular, will return to action but may be below par since he hasn't been able to work out much this week.

Another AHS casualty, Gary Vivoda, may miss the Manty dual because of a pulled muscle.

Twin Cities Banquet

Fete Lombardi as 'Top' Coach

MINNEAPOLIS—Green Bay Packers general manager-coach Vince Lombardi gave his sport a rousing testimonial here Wednesday night.

Accepting the Twin Cities pro football banquet's award as 1965 Coach of The Year in the National Football League, Lombardi told an estimated crowd of 1,500: "Those colleges which are discontinuing or deemphasizing football are making a serious mistake."

He cited the characteristics of football — "courage, stamina, efficiency that is coordinated" — as the principles "on which the United States is founded.

American Ideal

"We must maintain them if we are to maintain the American ideal to win and be first in everything."

If not, he added with obvious reference to the conflict in Viet Nam, "we may lose this one."

"Football," he said, "is a violent game. Any other way is imbecilic.

"Those of you that are fathers," he told the audience, "and have sons; if you want them to be men, have them play a game." The audience gave him a standing ovation.

Van Brocklin Sendoff

Given a sendoff by Vikings Coach Norm Van Brocklin for "doing probably his greatest coaching job this year," Lombardi commented, "I don't think this was the best football team I've ever had at Green Bay. But it had other things equally as important. The '65 team had a great deal of character because it overcame so many adversities."

Lombardi exchanged good-natured razzing with the Baltimore Colts' Tom Matte, who was honored here last night as NFL Player of the Year.

Matte spoke with reference to Don Chandler's disputed field goal against the Colts in last December's Western Division playoff game at Green Bay.

"The people of Baltimore," said Matte, "have asked me to present this little trophy to Vince Lombardi. They feel it is appropos." Matte produced tiny goal posts with one side offset far to the outside — thereby continuing the contention that Chandler's kick was wide.

It drew a roar of laughter from the Viking fans.

Lombardi got in the last word. "I'll take offset goal posts every time," he chuckled. "In fact, why not offset them on both sides. Despite what the Colts may say, I received a check which says we won the game."

Lombardi called Matte's pinc hitting job at quarterback for injured John Unitas and Gary Cuozzo "the best single man performance over a three or four-game stretch I've ever seen."

Omaha Team Qualifies for NAIA Tourney

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Omaha, Neb., University, the defending champion, was sparked by Bill Olson's 1300 for six games and rolled a record 6216 to qualify for the fifth annual bowling tournament sponsored by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Eight teams will compete in the two-day national championship tourney May 6-7 in Kansas City.

Olson, who opened his six game block with games of 257 and 258, was nosed out for individual qualifying honors by Johnny Beck of Harding, who shot a 1304 with a high of 247. They are only the second and third NAIA bowlers to shoot better than 1300 in the qualifying round, but fell short of the 1366 record set in 1963 by James Stoppleworth of Platteville, Wis., State.

The high single game in the qualifying round was rolled by Dick Wals of Oshkosh, Wis., State with a 269.

Cheney Signed By Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pitcher Tom Cheney, who hasn't hurled since June 14, 1964, was signed Monday by the Washington Senators. Cheney missed out all of last season with an ailing elbow.

The 31-year-old right-hander set a major league record by striking out 21 in a 16-inning game against Baltimore in 1962.

Van Egeren Wins 'Fox and Hounds' Sports Car Event

Harold Van Egeren, of Green Bay, won the Fox Valley Sports Car Club's Fox and Hounds Rallye.

Kaukauna's Tim Scheib placed second, while Neenah's Robert Wick was third. Gerald Bigdol, of Fond du Lac, placed fourth, while Menasha's Earl Sandstrom was fifth.

The FVSCC's next outing will be a gymkhana May 8.

Wisconsin Team Third In WIBC Tournament

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— Herreman s Supper Club of Sun Prairie Wis , was in third place in Division 2 after Wednesday s matches in the Women's International Bowling Congress tournament The Wisconsin team had a 2343 score

Boston's Lennie Green crosses home plate as Chicago White Sox pitcher Dennis Higgins (center) attempts to put the tag on him in the ninth inning of their game at Fenway Park Wednesday. In the rear is Red Sox batter George Scott. It all happened when Green came in from third on a wild pitch The Chisox won, 8 6 (AP Wirephoto)

Veteran in the Clutch

Burgess' Pinch-Hitting Talents Win for Chisox

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The listing of Forrest (Smoky) Burgess on the Chicago White Sox roster as a catcher is purely incidental His official title should be pinch-hitter supreme

The 39-year old Burgess boosted his major league record to 118 pinch hits by coming through in the clutch once again Wednesday as the White Sox rallied for three runs in the seventh inning to defeat the Boston Red Sox 8 6

Burgess, who collected 20 hits, including two homers, in 65 official times at bat last season, laughed when asked if he expected to do much catching this year

"That's up to the manager," he replied "Each day I just keep hoping I'll make it to the next However, I'm ready if I'm needed to catch I weigh 192 only about two pounds more than when I broke into baseball 22 years ago"

Decisive Blow

Burgess' single against Boston reliever Jose Santiago proved the decisive blow in the seventh With two out, Burgess drilled a liner to right

Ken Berry scored from third and Ron Hansen, who had broken a 5-5 tie with a run-producing single, came all the way around from first as right-fielder Tony Conigliaro threw to second and the relay to the plate failed

Although slowed by age, the 5 foot-8 Burgess insisted he had to settle for a single, his third pinch-hit in seven appearances this year

"The throw went to second and that's the only reason Hansen scored," Burgess said "I would have been dead if I tried for another base"

Burgess played with the Chicago Cubs the Philadelphia Phils the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates before being acquired by the White Sox late in the 1964 campaign

"We got him for pinch hitting ' Eddie Short, the Chicago General Manager said ' He certainly has done the job for us We're not concerned about using him as a catcher, although he's available if we need him behind the plate We re happy to have him "

To Bring Victory Habit

Moore Not Surprised—Allen Jubilant

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Coach George Allen was hoping and Tom Moore was prepared for the deal that sent the veteran halfback from the Green Bay Packers to the Los Angeles Rams

"I've been working on this trade since the National Football League meeting in Miami in January," Allen said Wednesday The ex - Chicago Bear assistant is hoping the trade will help bring the victory habit to Los Angeles

"I expected a change ' said Moore, a strong all-around football player long under the shaddow of Paul Hornung and Jim Taylor at Green Bay

"He comes from a winning Green Bay team and I feel some of this will rub off on the Rams " Allen said

Golden Opportunity

Moore who said the trade gives him a golden opportunity flew from his Nashville Tenn , home to Los Angeles to sign with the Rams Tuesday

The 6-foot-215 pound Vanderbilt product suspected he might be on the block after the Packers signed high priced backs Donnie Anderson and Jim Grabowski

"It was not much of a shock " he said

Allen said Moore gives the Rams what they need at halfback ' Ron Smith is a fine young quarterback but we already have enough quarterbacks," Allen said

Coach Vince Lombardi of the Packers will give Smith a shot at the third string quarterback spot vacated when the new Atlanta Falcons grabbed Dennis Claridge

Smith could also become heir apparent to the starting job now held down by the veteran Bart Starr who is backed up by the veteran Zeke Bratkowski

The Rams gave up two future draft choices for Moore

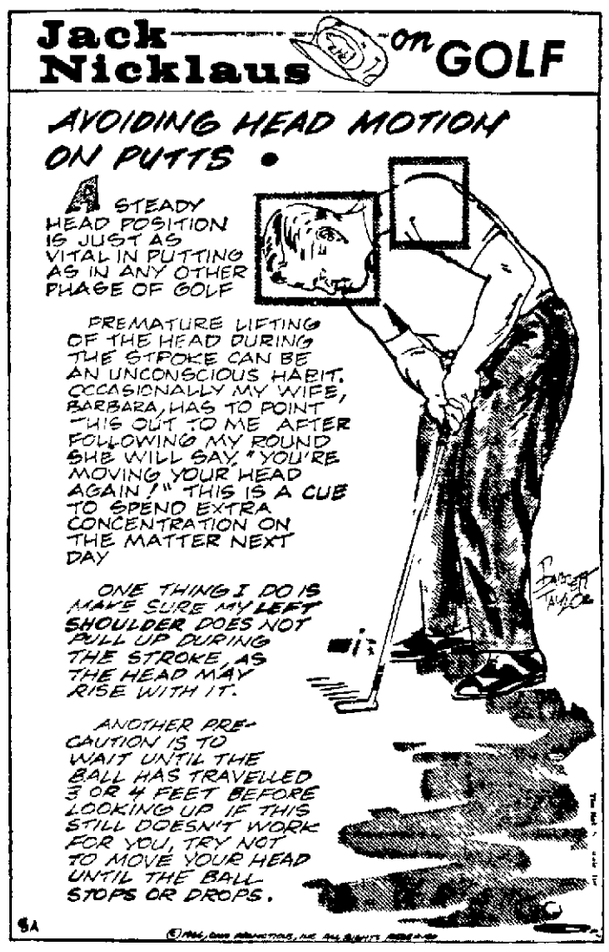

"We re aiming for 1966, not 1967 or later," commented Allen

Rochester Man Hits 717

ROCHESTER N Y (AP) — Robert Bennett of Rochester N Y , posted 717 Monday and moved into fourth place in regular singles at the American Bowling Congress Tournament

The 29 year old credit manager fired games of 266, 206 and 245 to finish only 11 points short of the leader, Ernie Koche of Chicago, who has 728

Turnstiles Fail to Click, Despite Success

Orioles Encounter Difficulty Trying To Please Baltimore Sports Fans

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) – Some times it is downright difficult to please Baltimore baseball fans

Some experts blame Baltimore's football Colts for making life miserable for the baseball Orioles by winning three divisional titles and two National Football League championships since 1958

The Orioles, meantime, have made a couple of spirited drives for the American League pennant in 1960 and 1964, only to falter in the stretch

Baltimoreans are proud of their self-designation as being the best sports fans in the nation They'll fight any suggestion that they aren't, but they don't always prove it at the turnstiles

Only four times in 12 years, since rejoining the major leagues in 1954, have the Orioles drawn more than one million fans at home

Stick With Winners

In short, Baltimoreans stick with the winner And the city has had only one baseball championship team in the past 40 years – the 1944 International League Orioles

The fickleness of the Baltimore fans hasn't gone unnoticed by Oriole players They have complained publicly in past years about the boo-birds in Memorial Stadium when things go badly and they empty stands during winning streaks

But the spectre of being a perennial bridesmaid has been hard to shake

When the Orioles were winging along at the top of the league in 1964, most Baltimoreans adopted a wait-and-see attitude rather than get overly excited Sure enough, the Orioles finished third — but only two games off the pace after winning 97 games

Won 94 Games

Last season, Baltimore won 94 games and again finished third The fans showed their appreciation with a total home attendance of 781,649 — the second lowest in 12 years

Now, it's time for the 1966 team to battle opposing teams and local detractors.

The new look Orioles, with their most powerful line-up ever, won nine of their first 10 games. But the fans remain constant.

"No wonder the Orioles have gotten off to a fast start — they haven't played any first division teams yet," is the current cry.

Then, noting Cleveland is still unbeaten, the fainthearted say: "If the Orioles win 100 games, they'll finish 62 games behind the Indians."

The team's hustle and muscle has excited the spectators so far But they are the faithful followers The 1966 Orioles still have to be shown that Baltimoreans will desert the living room sofa for two on the aisle

Rookie Stops Atlanta, 4-1

Houston Astros defeating St Louis 3-1 behind Dave Giusti's three-hit pitching and Cincinnati outslugging San Francisco 8-6 as Vada Pinson went 4-for-4

Giusti allowed only a second inning single by Tim McCarver until the Cardinals scored in the ninth on two-out doubles by Curt Flood and Jim McCarver

Jim Wynn, however, had provided Giusti with more than enough working room Wynn cracked a two-run homer in the first inning, then led off the sixth with a single and came around on an infield out, a wild pitch and Bob Aspromonte's double

Joe Morgan stroked three of the Astros' seven hits off Ray Washburn and Curt Simmons, and now has a run of six consecutive hits The league record is 10

Pinson Helps Reds

Pinson who scored three runs and drove in two, helped the Reds build a 6-0 lead for Milt Pappas But the Giants moved back into a tie with Willie McCovey hitting a grand slam homer and Ollie Brown a solo shot

The Reds went ahead to stay in the eighth inning when Tommy Harper walked and moved around on a sacrifice, Don Pavletich's infield hit and a force out A triple by Pinson and Mel Queen's sacrifice fly produced an insurance run in the ninth

Need Billions To Halt River, Lake Pollution

millions of tons of filth from communities upstream? What can the resort areas of Door County in Wisconsin do to stop the pollution threatening their destruction? It starts miles away in rivers, flows into Green Bay and slowly inches its way north

The Great Lakes region is ideally suited to this comprehensive basin-wide approach I urged last fall that a Great Lakes River Basin Commission be established under a recent federal law Representatives from all eight states bordering the lakes and from the federal agencies dealing with water resources would serve on it This commission would develop a comprehensive plan for all the water resources of this great heartland region The commission would have no operating or enforcement authority

The eight governors of the Great Lakes states all formally joined in this request The commission shortly will be established by President Johnson We have high hopes for it

Establish Authority

Ultimately we must have some way of putting the findings of this commission into effect I am introducing legislation to establish a Great Lakes Water Authority, a much stronger regional organization, with such powers Voting members would be the eight governors — or their representatives — and a federal member appointed by the President This Great Lakes Water Authority would have the power to approve or disapprove all projects affecting water resources in the region

It will be some time before we are ready for such an organization, but as of today, it seems the only long range solution to the terribly complicated interstate pollution problems of the Great Lakes region

Another long range solution, I intend to offer to the Congress, is a rejuvenation program to clean up lakes once the flow of pollution is checked We have a big restoration job ahead of us if we do manage to stem the tide of pollution in lakes such as Erie and Michigan

Restore Fresh Water

Even though the hour is late, I believe we can still reverse the trend and restore the fresh waters of America

We should not pass up any chance to strike a blow against pollution We have been complacent far too long We must not expect clean water overnight But we must not give up just because the fight will be a long one

For instance, federal action to clean up the Potomac River began in 1957 One hopeful estimate now sets 1975 as the time when this great river might be fit for swimming again — a delay of 18 years Federal experts tell us that once we are in high gear, we should expect it to take 10 years and $20 billion to clean up the Great Lakes

The decision as to whether our waters will be saved really rests with us it is a just cause I hope the American public is equal to the challenge innings against the onetime Bombers, who have now lost 12 of 14 starts.

McCormick developed arm trouble in 1962 and drifted to Baltimore and finally the minors before being sold to the Senators in 1965 At 27, he's making a new career for himself in the American League

McCormick got the runs he needed when Ken McMullen smacked a two-run double off Al Downing in the third inning The hit was one of only three that Downing gave up but it was enough to beat the young lefthander

Dr. Ohlrogge Renamed to Head Lutherans

Rev. Solberg, His Aide, Declines District Presidency

OSHKOSH — Dr. Theodore A. Ohlrogge of Appleton Wednesday afternoon was re-elected president of the North Wisconsin District of the American Lutheran Church after Rev. Clarence Solberg of Neenah declined the presidency. The district headquarters are at 1110 W. Foster St., Appleton.

Delegates to the convention at Peace Lutheran Church here Tuesday elected Rev. Mr. Solberg, who has been the assistant to the president of the district, to be the new president, succeeding Dr. Ohlrogge.

Dr. Ohlrogge

Pastor Solberg Wednesday afternoon announced he was declining the office. He said he felt he was not ready for the office of president and that he did not want to break up the team of Dr. Ohlrogge as president and he as assistant to the president.

Liked Job

Pastor Solberg said he was called to the job of being the presidential assistant and he liked the job. He indicated that at another time he might be agreeable to the presidency but not at this time.

Dr. Ohlrogge has served as President of the Northern Wisconsin District since its constituting convention in 1960 when several Lutheran synods merged to become the American Lutheran Church.

Dr. Ohlrogge succeeded his father as pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran Church at Seymour in 1939 when his father resigned the pastorate there because of ill health and after having been pastor of that church for 42 years.

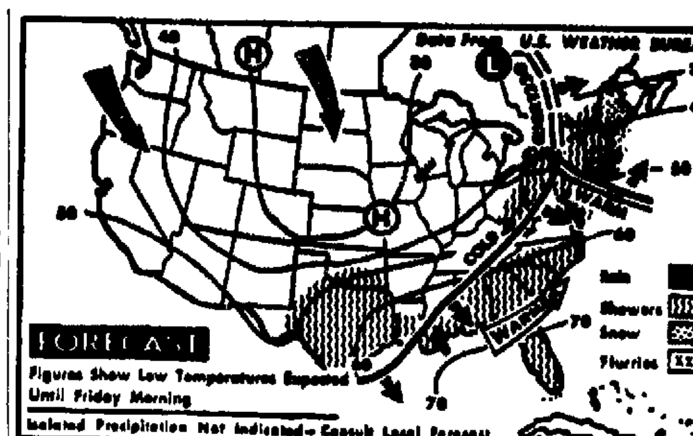

Installed in 1952

Dr. Ohlrogge held that pastorate until July of 1952 when he was installed as president of the former Wisconsin District of the former American Lutheran Church. Prior to election as district president he was district secretary for six years.

Born at Seymour Nov. 17, 1906, Dr. Ohlrogge graduated from Seymour High School in 1925 and then received his college and seminary training, graduating from St. Paul Lutheran Seminary in 1932. He served pastorates at Avoca and Wilton in Wisconsin before being named to the Seymour pastorate. He received the doctor of divinity degree from Wartburg Theological Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa, in 1955.

The Ohlrogges have two children, a daughter, Weyno, who is married and lives in Neenah, and a son, Theodore, who lives in Milwaukee with his family.

A brother, Frederick, also is in the ministry and is presently serving St. John Lutheran Church at Marion.

Showers Are Expected to cover the Atlantic coast and Gulf states tonight with snow in northern New England. Cooler weather is predicted for the northwest quarter of the nation with warmer temperatures along the eastern part. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Fire Destroys Barn, Cattle At Hortonville

Origin of Blaze at Robert Miller Farm Not Determined

HORTONVILLE — An early morning fire today destroyed a barn and seven head of cattle on the Robert Miller farm, route 2.

The Hortonville Fire Department was called at 1 a.m. and remained at the scene until after 3 a.m. The farm is near Ledge Hill, on U.S. 45.

Machine sheds near the barn began to burn but were quickly extinguished, with only minor damage resulting. Lawrence Moder, fire chief, said the wind and rain aided the fire fighting efforts.

Destroyed along with the 40 by 80 foot barn were the cattle, a tractor, riding equipment, some hay and the 40 by 80 foot barn. No damage estimate was made, but the barn was listed as a total loss. Mrs. Miller said the barn was partially covered by insurance.

Miller, who was awakened by the family dog barking, reported the fire. He and an unidentified man led some young stock and horses from the barn. They were unable to get four calves, a steer and two heifers out of the building.

Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Downpour Causes Flooding

3 Persons Drown as Rain Inundates Parts of Texas

DALLAS, Tex (AP) — Three persons drowned today when tremendous rains flooded hundreds of persons from their homes in Dallas and a northern suburb, Garland

Firemen axed through an auto's back window to free a woman from the car which had been swept into a swollen creek, but the man with her was trapped and drowned

Robert Buck and his wife, Adrienne, of San Antonio, who moved to Texas recently from East Point, Ga., both drowned when their car was swept from a road into a creek.

More Trouble

At dawn, the downpour which had been falling at about an inch an hour subsided, and Mayor Eric Jonsson said "we think three will be all the loss of life, but if there's more rain we'll have more trouble."

Fire department boats, carried by station wagons to scenes of local flooding, plucked people from trees, rooftops and the roofs of cars in flooded expressway underpasses.

Water got into the Ford Motor Co assembly plant in northeast Dallas, forcing it to close until Friday, idling 1,500 workers

The new round of turbulent weather came as rivers and lesser streams throughout the eastern half of Texas poured floodwaters toward the sea. Rains up to 21 inches had flooded wide areas, particularly to the east of Dallas.

Six of the missing were Dallas firemen, unreported since they went on two separate rescue missions Two of these reportedly were swept away in a car by rushing waters.

Safety Car Wins Praise Of Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee studying auto safety got a rundown today on development of a prototype safety car from a group of New York officials, including State Sen. Edward Speno.

The concept received an enthusiastic endorsement in advance Wednesday when a witness urged the federal government to give it financial support

President Joseph Kelner of the American Trial Lawyers Association told the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, "This is a vital, exciting, life-saving project which will form the basis of standards, tests and safety information for consumers and the government."

Groundwork Laid for Talks On Rhodesia

British Envoy Heads Back After Making Preparations

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's special envoy, Oliver Wright, flew home from Africa today with the groundwork laid for talks aimed at ending the Rhodesian crisis

Meanwhile, another British troubleshooter, Malcolm MacDonald, prepared to leave on a mission to persuade the political leaders of black Africa that the coming talks with the rebel regime of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith will not constitute a British sellout to Rhodesian white supremacists.

Wright arranged the negotiations in secret contacts with Smith and with Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa

It was the first breakthrough toward a Rhodesian settlement since Smith's white minority government declared independence from Britain last Nov 1.

The British demand that a settlement provide unimpeded progress toward eventual majority rule by Rhodesia's 4 million black Africans.

In return, Britain is prepared to underwrite and defend the rights of Rhodesia's 250,000 whites and pay for a crash program of African education

British sanctions against Rhodesia will continue until a constitutional settlement is reached. They failed to produce the almost immediate surrender which Wilson expected.

Vietnamese Hitting With Greater Vigor

Government Forces Fought in 77 Major Operations in Week

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U. S military spokesmen reported today that the Vietnamese army and air force are hitting the Communists with renewed vigor after weeks of lessened activity during the political crisis

Government forces waged 77 battalion-sized operations against the Viet Cong in the past week, an increase of 10 per cent, and the air force stepped up its sorties against the enemy by 30 per cent.

The Viet Cong mostly continued to avoid contact with American forces, and U.S. casualties dropped sharply last week. Government losses also were down, but Viet Cong casualties increased somewhat, reflecting the larger part being played again by the South Vietnamese.

Casualties Lower

The U.S. command said 35 Americans were killed, 547 wounded and eight missing or captured last week, compared with 89 killed, 635 wounded and five missing the week before. The number killed was the lowest since the week ending Jan 22, when 21 Americans died in action.

Viet Cong losses for the week were put at 694 killed and 69 captured, compared with 531 killed and 135 captured April 10-16. The government reported 93 killed and 33 missing, a decline from 141 killed and 52 missing the week before. Vietnamese wounded are not announced.

Other allied casualties rose to 32 killed and 19 wounded, compared with three dead and 19 wounded the previous week.

The Viet Cong took a major share of their casualties when they were hit by U.S. Marines and Vietnamese troops in coastal Quang Ngai Province last week. It was the first big Vietnamese operation since the start of the political turmoil in mid-March. At least 252 Reds were reported killed in the joint campaign.

Daily Attacks

Most of the Vietnamese casualties came in daily Viet Cong attacks on small outposts and hamlets, hinting at a decision by the Communist command to revert to hit-and-run warfare. The Communists also have stepped up terrorism in Saigon and its vicinity.

Job Training Emphasis

Democrats Hike LBJ Fund Request for New Antipoverty Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats writing new antipoverty legislation have decided to boost President Johnson's money request by $245 million and put more emphasis on job training programs.

After weeks of private meetings, Democrats on the Education and Labor Committee agreed Wednesday night on a bill that would give Congress a lot more authority over how antipoverty funds are spent.

The bill would boost the fund authorization for the Office of Economic Opportunity—OEO—to $1.99 billion. Johnson had asked for $1.75 billion. The current authorization is $1.5 billion.

More Control

More significant for the future conduct of the war on poverty, however, is the increased control over the program that the bill would give Congress.

For the first time the OEO would be told how much money it can spend on specific programs, how much it can spend on salaries of local antipoverty officials — $12,500 each yearly — and how it should operate certain programs.

For the most part, the bill the Democrats now hope to push through the full Education and Labor Committee and the House calls for more emphasis on the successful programs, and a curtailing of the experimental projects.

Head Start

Thus a big boost is earmarked for the popular Head Start preschool program for which the OEO had sought $327 million to take care of 710,000 children. The bill says $400 million should be spent to give 845,000 the training.

Expansion of the Neighborhood Youth Corps is also called for, up from $300 million requested by the OEO for 354,000 youths to $563 million, enough to enroll 500,000 young men and women in the program that provides jobs in public and nonprofit agencies. The age of those eligible for the program would be increased from 22 to 25.

A program to provide similar work for the older, hard-core unemployed would increase from $10 million requested by the OEO to $100 million.

Major Change

The bill also would make a major administrative change, taking the work experience program for older heads of families away from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and fitting it into the manpower training programs of the Department of Labor with a budget of $135 million.

It would write into the law something Congress has tried to get the OEO to do for the past two years — bring more women into the Job Corps The bill says 10,000 of the 45,000 in the Job Corps shall be women.

Hides in Conning Tower

Girl Likes British Boys, Stows Away on Sub

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The British submarine Walrus continued its journey home today with nothing but Her Majesty's sailors aboard — after having dropped off a stowaway teenage girl who said she wanted to visit England because she liked English boys.

The girl, Barbara McVay, 17, of Baltimore, is back with her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Rubert Turso.

Three Docked

The Walrus and two more British subs — the Osiris and the Opportune — were docked in Baltimore since last Thursday, following NATO maneuvers in the Atlantic.

When the Walrus left for home Wednesday, Barbara was hiding in the conning tower.

After four hours, exhaust fumes from the sub's engine sickened her and she turned herself in.

"It's a good thing she got sick," a police detective said later. He said the compartment where she hid would have filled with water if the sub had submerged.

Radio Embassy

When she did come out of hiding, the sub radioed the British Embassy and was ordered to get the girl back to land immediately.

An Army engineers patrol boat met the sub in the Delaware aCnal. Barbara was placed in the Wilmington detention home until her parents arrived several hours later.

Volcano Erupts In Populous Area of Java

Reports List at Least 13 Dead; Village Destroyed

JAKARTA, Ondonesia (AP) — A volcanic eruption in heavily populated East Java has demolished one village and is threatening the town of Blitar, reports from the area said today.

The 5,678-foot volcano, Mt. Kelut, erupted Monday night. Thirteen persons have been reported killed so far, but the toll is considered certain to climb.

Civil defense and Red Cross officials in Jakarta, about 400 miles west of the area, have no details on casualties yet.

Antara, the official news agency, said the eruption wiped out the village of Bambunan, about two miles from the crater. It was not known how many persons lived there.

Civil defense officials said hot lava had reached the edge of Blitar, about 10 miles south of Mt. Kelut. The town, with a population of 28,000, is in an area where many of President Sukarno's relatives live.

Hot ash was reported falling more than six miles from the volcano and lava, sand and ashes reportedly filled the Sima, Dermo and Badak rivers.

13,000-Man AMC Layoff Set for June

MILWAUKEE (AP) — American Motors Corp. said today it would begin phasing out 1966 model Rambler production in June, with the layoff of 13,000 employes beginning June 20 at Milwaukee and June 24 at Kenosha.

Production of 1966 models will be completed by July 15. Production on 1967 models will be started in early August, a company spokesman said, but the date is not firm.

William V. Luneburg, vice president-automotive manufacturing, said at eDtroit "phase out of some models will begin the week of June 20 at the company's Milwaukee body plant. The Kenosha plants will begin phasing out June 24."

This will involve layoffs of 4,000 production and maintenance workers at Milwaukee and 9,000 at Kenosha.

Luneburg said the week of July 25 would be considered employe vacation period.

Measure Gets One-Vote Margin; GOP Objectors Call Bill Poorly Perpared

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a one-vote margin, the Senate has approved funds for President Johnson's program of rent subsidies for low-income families.

But the administration and its Senate leaders had to use all their resources to get the votes needed for Wednesday's 46-45 victory authorizing $12 million in contract authority for the new program.

After that vote, the Senate passed, 72-12 a $2.8 billion supplemental money bill that included the rent subsidies funds.

Republicans led the floor fight against the new administration program, declaring that it was poorly prepared and could cost the federal government $6 billion over the next 40 years.

Surely Noxious

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen cried that the subsidies are "sure to become noxious in American life."

Democrats contended that the new plan could do a better job of providing good homes for low-income families than the present low-rent public housing program.

The estimated subsidies of $40 a month for each family under the program would be less than the $58 which public housing now costs, they said.

Robert C. Weaver, secretary of housing and urban development, has estimated the $12 million will finance 20,000 units of new housing for rent-subsidized tenants in projects built by nonprofit organizations. None of the subsidies would go to private landlords.

The federal government would pay the difference between 25 per cent of a family's income and the rent needed to support the apartment project.

Now Eligible

Only families now eligible for public housing — generally those with incomes below $5,760 a year — could qualify.

Voting to retain the money were 41 Democrats and 5 Republicans; opposed were 26 Democrats and 19 Republicans.

The 1965 housing bill authorized $30 million for the subsidies this year and Johnson originally asked that figure. But Senate Democratic leaders decided not to try to go beyond the $12 million already approved in the House.

After Senate passage, the supplemental bill was sent to conference with the House which had included $2.56 billion in it. Funds for the rent subsidies are certain to be retained since they are in both versions.

Proxmire, Nelson Vote With Majority

WASHINGTON (AP) —Democratic Senators Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire of Wisconsin voted with the majority Wednesday as the Senate rejected an appropriations bill amendment that would strike out $12 million for a rent supplement program.

The amendment was rejected 46-45 in a roll call vote.

Budget Hikes Recommended By Committee

Appropriations Unit Blasts Hole in LBJ Money Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee blasted a big hole in President Johnson's 1967 budget plans today by recommending huge increases in financing of health and education programs.

It added an unrequested $276,413,000 to the $10,066,129,500 sought by the President in new funds for the Labor Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for the fiscal year starting July 1.

In a formal report accompanying the money bill, which the House will consider next week, the committee criticized the administration for failing "to make proper allowance for the needs of" existing health program. The House is expected to go along, as usual, with the committee's recommendations.

Second Refusal

It is the second time in a week that the powerful committee refused to follow the President's fiscal leadership. Last week it added $28 million in unsought money to the annual Agriculture Department bill that the House approved unchanged Tuesday.

The four Republican members of a subcommittee that drafted the bill filed a minority report urging that it be delayed until the administration gives Congress "a realistic assessment" of how much more money will be needed for defense.

The four are Reps. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, Robert H. Michel of Illinois and Garner E. Shriver of Kansas.

Tide of War to Turn in '67

Editor's note — How may the war in Viet Nam develop in coming months? The following story is the result of an investigation among high level Washington officials by John M. Hightower, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter who heads the AP's State Department staff.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S officials hope to turn the tide of war decisively against Communist forces in South Viet Nam by early next year.

The hope is tentative and authorities concede it could be upset by adverse military or political developments in the months ahead.

Nevertheless, it defines an important purpose of present strategic planning. President Johnson's advisers believe it represents a reasonable projection of the recent course of the war in Viet Nam plus the probable results to be obtained from the planned massive buildup of U.S. forces.

Critical Point

The critical point will be reached, strategists say, when manpower losses suffered by Communist forces under the pounding of American, South Vietnamese and allied troops and American planes begins to exceed the Communist capacity to replace manpower.

The estimate that this point can be reached by early next year is expected to figure in the strategic review and planning session soon to be held by President Johnson in connection with a return here for consultation of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Lodge is due back May 9. It will be his first trip here in about nine months, though he conferred with Johnson and other administration leaders in Honolulu last February.

U.S. Strength

U.S. military strength in South Viet Nam now stands at about 250,000 men, with South Vietnamese forces at about 700,000, including irregulars and police.

The tentatively scheduled buildup of U.S. forces, subject to periodic decision by President Johnson as specific reinforcement requests arrive from Saigon, will put the total at 400,000 or more by the end of the year.

One result of the buildup will be to increase the number of combat battalions as compared with supply and base-protection forces, greatly enlarging the search and destroy capacity of U.S. forces.

Major Reason

This is a principal reason why Johnson administration planners have now made the tentative assumption that around the turn of the year or early in 1967 Communist losses will exceed the ability of the Communists to

New State Pollution Program

The special Committee on Water Resources named by Gov. Warren Knowles has completed work on a recommendation for a 30-year $200 million program of anti-pollution aids to local governments, and the Governor can be expected to present this program to the May session of the legislature. At the same time, Lt. Gov. Patrick Lucey, who now ranks as the favorite of Democrats to run against Knowles this fall, has announced he will also present an anti-pollution package to the legislature.

The stage, thus, is set for the legislature to take some meaningful action against water pollution at its session which opens next week. As the clash of opinions on calling a federal or state conference on Lake Michigan pollution has demonstrated, one of the practical obstacles confronting passage of a state anti-pollution measure will be political concentration on making a record for the November elections.

It is important for the welfare of Wisconsin that anti-pollution efforts at the May session do not stumble over political bickering. In this connection, it is significant that the recommendation of the governor's special committee and the proposals advanced by Lucey do have common ground.

Both propose a new anti-pollution agency to gather in the functions now administered by existing state agencies and both would provide for a form of interest-free loans to municipalities and, through these municipalities, to private industry. In addition, Lucey would provide for property tax credits for industries which install anti-pollution facilities.

The governor's study committee proposed that the aids to local governments be distributed in two methods. Communities which are able to get better bonding terms than the state could offer would be reimbursed for up to one-third of their cost. Other communities would get the state grants interest free and would repay the money to the state with state payment of interest being the same one-third of cost grant.

State interest cost would total about $88 million over the years until 1995, with an annual limit of $4 million. This must be regarded as well within the state's ability and responsibility in the battle against water pollution.

As is to be expected, one of the problems in creating the program will be internal disputes in the capitol and the legislature about the structure of the new agency. The governor's committee proposed that the new commission take over the present functions of the State Committee on Water Pollution and the State Board of Health, but a minority report of the study committee called also for addition of the water regulatory functions of the Public Service Commission.

It would appear that the best plan, if a new agency is created, would be to provide the new commission with all possible related functions. But again on this point, the really important consideration is for the legislature to provide a starting structure rather than putting off the entire subject because of an administrative dispute.

The legislature will be able to find a common thread running through the proposals coming from different sources. For example, the study committee proposes up to 12 regional boards based on drainage areas.

In his articles written for The Post-Crescent, Gov. Knowles said dividing the state into regional drainage areas would permit an effective distribution of technical talent, permit a pinpointing of unique problems of each drainage area, and provide a forum for regional concentration on pollution. President Johnson has proposed a drainage basin approach for his plan of federal anti-pollution aides.

These were among the reasons The Post-Crescent suggested editorially that a Fox River regional agency be created.

Writing a comprehensive anti-pollution act from the proposals which are now before it will be no easy assignment for the legislature, particularly since the considerations of partisan politics and competing state agency pressures will be present. But the Wisconsin electorate has demonstrated that it wants action. . .and from the legislature's May session.

The Democrats Endorse Democracy

We are happy to note that Chairman Louis Hanson has finally decided that the state Democratic convention should take a democratic attitude toward the party's three candidates for governor. Dominic Frinzi of Milwaukee will get an opportunity to address the convention after all, along with Patrick Lucey and David Carley.

Hanson previously declared that there would not be time to hear the candidates for governor at the convention and that their remarks would serve no useful purpose. But after consulting with Assemblyman Robert Huber, convention chairman, he announced this week that "it is our belief that a presentation to the delegates by the three men seeking the Democratic nomination for governor will create far more interest in the convention and among the delegates than the out-of-state speaker we had originally contemplated as a keynoter."

The logic of such a proposition is so obvious we wonder why it took so long for Hanson to endorse it.

Moral Problems of Medicine

The man with degenerative heart failure who was supplied with part of an artificial heart for several days is dead although apparently not from complications of the new appliance. But the problems brought up by this new advance in medical science have just begun.

There are the purely physical problems of blood clots, oxygen regulation, the fluid in the brain area which happened in this case. But each new advance which dramatically opens the door to longer life for the seriously ill also brings up grave moral concerns.

The concerns have been noted by the doctor who was in charge of the artificial heart. In an article in the Journal of Rehabilitation, Dr. Maurice De Bakey and two associates, Dr. Domingo Liotta and Dr. William Hall, wrote of the problems ahead when it is possible "to provide an effective and completely successful mechanical substitute for the pumping function of the heart . . . . Should this life-saving device be made available to every patient, even the hopeless victim of stroke, cancer or senility? Should an unbending and restrictive criterion for use be outlined? When and how does one determine death due to other causes? And who decides when to terminate the power flow in such cases . . . Who can fathom the problems thrust upon society if advances in medicine should increase life expectancy to, say, 200 or 300 years?"

Medical progress today, entirely aside from the artificial heart and its future possibilities, has already raised many of these problems in the moral sense. Some stroke victims can be kept alive for months with the use of oxygen but they are hardly more than vegetables with no apparent consciousness or, at this time anyway, hope for improvement. Accident victims who spend years in a coma pose such a problem and so do those terminal cancer patients who are in great pain. The moral responsibility of physicians to maintain the flicker of life has been questioned by those who argue that man deserves the right to die with dignity as well as to live. There is a delicate moral line between allowing a person to die and actually going through with euthanasia, whatever are the decisions of our courts.

The prospect of the artificial heart, as the doctors point out, raises more questions. While a massive injury would eventually mean a stop in a natural heart beat, it would not affect an artificial one. If artificial hearts become commonplace would every doctor be remiss if he did not install one? And if there are regulations to be established, who is to do the deciding? Already such problems have arisen in making accessible a machine that takes over the work of damaged kidneys and offers the opportunity of longer and more productive life to the victims.

To an ever greater degree man is coming to take charge of his own destiny. The ability implies an awesome responsibility.

The Madison Journal copies an editorial from the Fond du Lac Press highly eulogizing Jeff Davis (who contributed so largely to Lincoln's election in 1860) and bitterly inveighing all men who stand by their country.

The Journal takes this occasion to assert that the Press is a "leading Democratic paper," and that its Editor professes to be an ardent supporter of President Johnson's reconstruction policy!

The editor of the Press is the same vagabond who railed out against the Irish a few weeks ago demeaning the nationality in his Bothwell paper. True to his New England instincts he loses no occasion to deride and oppose President Johnson and patriotism generally.

If the Fond du Lac Press, under such management is "a leading Democratic" newspaper, then the Journal must truly be ahe apostle of truth, righteousness and peace, and its disciples earnest advocates of the Union and the Constitution!

To speak seriously, the Press is regarded everywhere as a political Arab. "His hand is against every man, and every man's hand is against his."

None are so besotted as to respect its utterances or obey its preachings!

Smaller Nations Have Own Views On Crisis Which Afflicts NATO

BY MAX FREEDMAN

ATHENS — It does not take very long before one discovers that the smaller members of NATO have their own views on the crisis which has overtaken their organization. They are not worried, like France, with questions of national prestige. They are not worried, like Germany, with gaining a voice in nuclear policy. They are not worried, like Britain, with working out a new relationship with the countries of Western Europe. Their concern arises from their lack of power inside the NATO Council.

Despite all the brave talk of an Atlantic community, NATO in essence is still a military alliance where power rules. The countries with the big weapons and the big armies speak with the loudest voices. It is all very polite: the NATO Council listens to everyone: but in the end the big nations make the decisions.

BETTER CONSULTATION

The smaller countries, like Greece, want the contemplated reforms in NATO to include an improved method of consultation. They would like the NATO Council to function as the central clearing house for all information on issues that might require action by any member of the council.

A beginning has been made in this direction, dating back to the days when the late John Foster Dulles was secretary of state. He began the practice of informing the NATO Council of problems outside the NATO area that threatened international stability. Under this rule it became the practice for the U. S. delegation to notify the NATO Council of issues as diverse as the struggle in Viet Nam and the United Arab Republic's policies in the Middle East. The purpose of this policy was to remind America's allies of her obligations on a world scale that might require, at any time, a sudden concentration of American interest or even American power on the problems very remote from NATO's major concerns. This policy did a great deal to steady opinion during the worst phases of The Congo crisis. Nor has it been without value in NATO's evaluation of the problems in Viet Nam. The United States has been made fully aware of the mounting anxiety of her NATO partners that Viet Nam may draw off American interest from Europe. The current debate over NATO's future has at least given European officials the assurance that NATO has again been assigned a high priority on Washington's agenda. Perhaps President de Gaulle did not intend this result but he has achieved it.

In Greece there is an urgent desire not only to obtain better methods of consultation, before any crisis reaches the point of danger, but also to effect extensive improvements in the economic side of NATO, at present virtually a dead letter. Article 2 of the NATO Treaty pledges all its members to work together to produce a large measure of economic cooperation. This provision, which has always commanded the special respect of the smaller members, has been taken to mean that NATO is interested in something more than the removal of tariff barriers. The article has been interpreted as a pledge of co-operation embracing the movement of labor, agreed farm prices, consultation on interest rates and the co-ordination of investment policies. Since Greece only a few years ago was officially regarded by the World Bank as an underdeveloped country, it is easy to understand her eager interest in seeing the pledges of NATO on economic policy, now defunct, become a living reality. Unfortunately, there is scant evidence that the great powers are as interested in these matters as the smaller countries would like them to be.

TURKISH PROBLEM

On an entirely separate matter — relations with Turkey — there is a persistent feeling in Greece that her case has been slighted and misunderstood by the NATO allies. In particular, Greek officials believe that opinion in the United States has seen the Cyprus dispute in the wrong perspective. There has been a tendency to regard this dispute as the product of an old feud or else to blame both countries in equal measure.

Greek officials produce a body of impressive evidence to show that Turkey has been a bad neighbor and a worse ally. Cyprus is merely one country in the indictment. Indeed, Cyprus would never have become so serious a problem if it had not been for these strained relations with Turkey, relations which Greece has tried in vain to improve.

The tradition that NATO members do not bring their quarrels to the NATO organization has prevented this problem from being fully considered. It is the hope of Greek officials that at least informal but responsible consideration can be given to political problems of this kind before reform of NATO has been completed.

Traditional Positions Of Parties Reversed On Highway Question

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The nervous sparring of statehouse Republicans and Democrats on the question of financing a highway building speedup has brought about an abrupt reversal in the normal postures of the combatants.

Democrats are upholding the

Wyngaard

"pay as you go" idea and as far as the situation can be measured today have pushed Gov. Knowles away from the bonding alternative that he preferred, in part because he believed that it would be easier to enact.

Thus the liberals have staked out the position of prudence and fiscal conservatism. They appear to have succeeded in repudiating the debt proposal of a Republican administration and a political party that in the past has stood for precisely that.

Whether the attitudes of the parties as indicated at the political conferences with Gov. Knowles will be validated by the rank and file in the legislature remains to be shown. At the moment an "agreement" has not been sealed, contrary to some of the news dispatches. Probably it cannot be made until the legislature actually resumes deliberations and the respective caucuses take their nose counts next month.

COST OBJECTION

The basis of the Democrats' objections to bonding, they have said, is the high cost of interest payments over the years.

Such multi-million dollar costs would be better used in building additional miles of needed roads, they argued. Considered alone, it is a persuasive viewpoint. But it raises certain questions, nevertheless. These critics, for example, have never raised the point in connection with the far greater bonding program already underway for other state capital investments. These include college libraries, dormitories, classrooms, field houses, state prisons, schools for delinquent boys, armories, police patrol district headquarters, veterans' facilities, athletic fields, state office buildings and a host of others authorized during the last decade and a half.

Interest charges per dollar of debt on a highway bond issue, presumably, would not differ significantly from the charges of the bond underwriters for the building program that has thus far reached a total of about $400 million in obligations and shows no signs of slowing down soon.

The idea of bonding in public service facilities is that the beneficiaries during the whole span of the useful lifetime of such improvements should pay their fair shares of the cost, rather than the generation of taxpayers that happened to be liable at the time the decisions for construction were made. The logic applies equally to such long-term improvements as major highways, in the view of some state officials.

REYNOLDS PLAN

It is pertinent to note also that the administration opponents who refuse to entertain the idea of a relatively modest highway bonding program now are those who complained when the Republicans scuttled a far more costly plan for borrowing for highway construction during a Democratic administration only three years ago.

Gov. John Reynolds in the 1963 legislature campaigned earnestly for a highway debt bill considerably more ambitious without any complaints from his Democratic cohorts about the wasteful debt service costs that would thereby be incurred. Instead, the Republicans were in charge of the heckling, including some Republicans who were willing to champion the same idea when it came from the office of their own governor this year.

It is perhaps not surprising, or even particularly disappointing, that the continuing dispute about how to build more highways finds the disputants reversing their positions according to the circumstances that confront them. It is not the principle of the thing but partisan advantage that often motivates these men in their uncertain and close competition.

Personal Prejudices Out; Thoughts Are In

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large: I have decided to dispense with the familiar subtitle, "Purely Personal Prejudices," for this once-a-week type of column, because to many people the word "prejudices" has an ugly connotation — even though it has always seemed to me that a prejudice openly admitted as such is far more honest and healthy than one disguised as a "fact" or a "judgment" or an "opinion," as so many are.

It has always struck me as a tremendous irony of human character that those who have the greatest aversion to death are precisely those who have least known what to do with their lives.

Memorial Day falling on a Monday this year again points up the absurdity of not shifting all our national holidays to Mondays, as England sensibly does, so that the public can enjoy the luxury of three-day weekends.

We need to recognize that there is a profound difference between the person who is looking for "scape," and the one who is seeking "retreat"; the former wants to lose himself, while the latter wants to find himself.

Gossips are usually oblivious to the truth of Richter's observation that: "A person never shows his own character so plainly as by the way he portrays another's."

Why do so many people who "love to travel" feel comfortable only when they can immediately transform their foreign environment into one as closely as possible resembling their native environment?

An intellectual is one who customarily has much compassion for the physically and economically deprived, but much scorn for the mentally limited — for the imperialism of intellect does not permit him to see that a man whose mind is stunted deserves at least as much consideration as one whose body is crippled or whose heritage is meager.

The people who do those glowing blurbs for the dust-jackets of novels are often better "creative writers" than the novelists they are writing about, at least in terms of imagination.

Whenever I hear the platitude about the early bird getting the worm, I am invariably reminded of Moran's wonderful retort to Mack in the old vaudeville skit: "Yes, but look what happens to the early worm!"

More than half the so-called "sterility" in married couples, I am convinced, is psychological in origin — otherwise, how account for the fact that so many wives give birth to a child soon after adopting one?

Western civilization has not yet learned the lesson that the energy we expend in "getting things done" is less important than the moral strength it takes to decide what is worth doing and what is right to do.

Governor Outlines Issues Which He Seeks Action Upon

Water Pollution Is Listed Among 'High Priority Items'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Warren P. Knowles said Wednesday that he plans to address the legislature twice during the first week of the spring session to outline issues on which he desires action.

The first address, scheduled for May 3, the second day of the session, will be devoted to general state needs, the governor told a press conference in the executive office. The second speech, to be given later in that week, will deal specifically with steps necessary to fight water pollution in the state, he said.

One of the major bills to be acted on in the spring session would create a water quality control commission and authorize a state bonding corporation that could, over a 28 year period, borrow up to $200 million for state and local use in combating pollution.

Task Force Bill

The bill, prepared by a special task force of scientists, legislators and interested citizens, is of major importance, the governor said. Two other issues needing action in this session, he added, are highway acceleration and state action on Medicare provisions that must be completed by July 1.

Knowles said that all three issues were "high priority items" on his list of bills needing action.

In a move related to water pollution abatement action, Knowles announced that he has appointed conservation department director L. P. Voigt to head a committee of state agency personnel in planning special joint state and federal meetings on Lake Michigan pollution problems.

One of the conferences will be held in Green Bay on June 30. The other is scheduled to be held on June 28 in Milwaukee.

Knowles asked the committee to invite federal officials from all interested agencies to take part in the fact-finding sessions. The conference, however, is sponsored and conducted by the state, he pointed out.

Wants Information

Knowles earlier this month refused to ask the federal government to call enforcement conferences on Great Lakes pollution problems as he said that not enough information had yet been obtained from federal agencies about the problems to necessitate such a meeting, which could result in mandatory enforcement orders from the federal agencies.

Long past federal studies have been completed, the governor then said, without state pollution abatement agencies being informed of such federal findings. Knowles then suggested that meetings be held to exchange information of pollution findings.

In addition, a meeting will be held on June 21 in Ashland on pollution problems in Lake Superior.

Other members of the committee appointed by the governor are William H. Cartwright of the Public Service Commission, O. J. Muegge, State Board of Health; Paul A. Pratt, director of the Department of Resource Development; William F. Steuber, State Highway Commission; and Donald E. Wilksnson, Department of Agriculture.

Won't Sign Bill

Knowles also said that he would not sign into law any bill passing the legislature that would allow trucks up to 65 feet long to travel state or federal highways in Wisconsin.

Speaking of such a bill, he said, "It may come, but we have a long way to go before our highways are in shape for that. It is premature."

Knowles said as well that he would support advancing the deadline for districting the state into vocational school districts to 1968, two years before the present limit, if it becomes possible. But he will continue to oppose state aids for vocational school construction in those districts, he said.

History's Largest

ICC Rules in Favor of Railroad Merger After Five-Year Struggle

NEW YORK (AP) — The heads of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads predict the merger of the once-bitter business rivals will result in improved passenger and freight service and possibly lower fares.

Most unions, state officials and other railroads applauded the unanimous ruling Wednesday by the Interstate Commerce Commission — ICC — that turned two of the nation's rail giants into one in history's largest corporate merger.

Took Five Years

Unless legal action is taken to block the consolidation, which had been sought for five years, the two systems are free to unify beginning June 1.

In an effort to insure no job losses from the merger, the ICC ruled the system may not reduce its work force without showing a 5 per cent business drop in any 30-day period.

Another condition imposed on the merged railroad is that it assume operation of the freight and passenger service of the deficit-ridden New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad through 1966. It said the New Haven could not abandon the bulk of its passenger service.

In another action, the commission rejected by a 6-5 vote the merger of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroads. The decision against creation of a 25,000-mile system linking the Midwest to the Pacific drew bitter opposition statements from four commissioners and faces the challenge in the courts.

The new Pennsylvania New York Central Transportation Co., with total assets of more than $4 billion, will take the form of a 20,000-mile system stretching from St Louis and Chicago to Montreal and Washington.

Public Benefit

The ICC said the merger would enable the railroads to save $80 million annually after 1974 and that the public would benefit either by improved service or lower rates.

In rejecting the merger plans of the Northern lines, the ICC majority ruling said the individual lines are prospering and had failed to show that their proposed merger would improve service by eliminating competition

The Northern lines may contest the ruling before a federal court, which could remand the case to the ICC or uphold the finding.

Gromyko's Recent Vatican Audience May Have Lessened Soviet-Papal Tension

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Some diplomats and churchmen in Warsaw think Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's Vatican audience has brightened prospects for a visit by Pope Paul VI to Communist-ruled Poland later this year.

After Gromyko's audience with the Pope Wednesday, the first ever given by a Roman Catholic pontiff to a minister of a Communist government, Vatican sources said they were certain the poor state of relations between the church and the Polish government was not discussed.

Good Feeling

However, observers here feel that if a new era of good feeling develops between the Vatican and the Kremlin, this almost certainly will ease the current high tension between the church and the Polish government, a situation which prevented Pope Paul from attending the celebration next Tuesday of the millenium of Christianity in Poland.

The Vatican last weekend made public a letter from the Pope to Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Catholic primate of Poland, expressing regret he could not visit Poland. But the Pope refrained from criticizing the Warsaw government's ban on visits by foreign church dignitaries for the celebration.

1,000 Years

Some diplomats and churchmen think the pontiff's desire to visit a Communist-ruled country could still bring him here during Poland's 1,000th year of Christianity. There is growing speculation of a trip in August, during the traditional annual pilgrimages to the Shrine of the Black Madonna in Czestochowa.

Observers recalled that the Vatican visit of Alexei Adzhubei, Nikita Khrushchev's son-in-law, coincided with an easing of Catholic- Communist tension in Poland and Hungary Khrushchev's ouster and the death of Pope John XXIII ushered in a period of uncertainty in church-state relations in Eastern Europe.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reported today producer prices in about 165 fluid milk markets throughout the country averaged about $5.60 a hundred pounds in early April, which was about the same as in March. But the April price averaged 42 cents above that of a year earlier.

Search Goes On for Plane With 49 Aboard

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A search resumed today for the wreckage of a Peruvian airliner which apparently crashed in the Andes Mountains with 49 persons aboard. Five were Americans.

The four-engine Lineas Aereas Nacionales Constellation disappeared Wednsday on a 375-mile flight from Lima to Cuzco.

The Lima airport said the plane radioed a distress call 10 minutes after taking off, and police at Cuzco said they had a report it crashed at Coclococha, 170 miles south of Lima.

The airline said the plane carried 43 passengers and a crew of 60.

The Americans were the pilot, William Jones of Miami, Fla., three Peace Corps volunteers — Gerald Francis Flynn, 26, of Seattle, Wash., Paul L. Bond, 24, of Jonesboro, Ark., and Troy M Ross, 25, of Boise, Idaho — and George A. Hoffman, 42, a geologist.

Flynn and Bond were based in Ecuador and Ross in Cuzco.

Administration Critic

Dirksen Challenges LBJ Budget Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen challenged President Johnson today to act — and not just talk — about the $3 billion the President fears Congress is going to boost his budget.

Johnson said at a White House ceremony Wednesday that the way things are going "it looks like they may up the budget $3 billion this year" over the $113 billion spending budget he recommended for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Faults Democrats

If that happens, Dirksen said in an interview, it will be all the fault of Democrats in Congress who owe political allegiance to the President.

"The Republicans are trying to hold spending down to prevent a tax increase," Dirksen said. "I would respectfully suggest that the President could be of help in this if he would direct a request to his party leaders to resist the increases he is complaining about. Thus far there has been no such request."

Knew Favored Items

An influential Democrat who didn't want to be quoted by name said there isn't likely to be one, either.

"The President picked the favorite items on the Christmas tree when he made his budget cuts," this Democrat said. "From the background of 30 years around here he knew exactly which items are most popular and those are the ones he picked to reduce.

"He's jockeying the Republicans into voting against a lot of things the people back home want and then he's handing these programs to the people as a present from the Democrats."

Fulbright Calls 'No Sanctuary' Plan Dangerous

Senate Leaders Disagree on Plane Pursuit Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., hung a "very dangerous" label today on the administration's "no sanctuary" policy of hot pursuit of enemy fighters over Viet Nam.

But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said in a separate interview this is a "recognized doctrine" of warfare which he does not believe invites the danger of Red China's intervention in the conflict.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said it is "sound policy to let the Chinese know in advance what is in store for them if they attack our planes over North Viet Nam."

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, noted that there has been no official pronouncement telling where the advanced MIG21s, which have engaged U.S. planes in dogfights, came from.

"But if they come from China and we follow them into China to attack their air fields, I think we are pursuing a very dangerous course," he said. "It could escalate the war."

The issue was brought to the forefront when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., told the Senate Wednesday that the developments must be viewed with gravest concern

"What will be the Chinese response if her territory is bombed or her airspace invaded?" he asked. "Will the Chinese seek to strike at our bases — in Viet Nam or Thailand, or aboard our aircraft carriers?

"And if they do, what then will our response be — further bombing? And if the scale of bombing increases, will China confine herself to air fighting — or will it send its troops to engage ours on the ground in South Viet Nam?"

Dirksen noted that hot pursuit of the enemy by U.S planes had not been permitted in the Korean war, a decision he said may have lengthened that conflict.

'Beat Mass'

Proves to be Howling Success Or Holy Mess; No One Knows

ROME (AP) — Three mop-haired youth combos banged out a "beat mass" in a Roman Catholic chapel Wednesday night Listeners couldn't agree whether it was a howling success or a holy mess.

A crowd of 500, including scores of priests, jammed into the oratory of St. Philip Neri. They stomped their feet and bobbed their heads to the rhythm of the electric guitars, drums, organ and singers.

Seek Entry

Another 1,000 outside beat on the door trying to get in. Police reinforcements had to squeeze into the crowded courtyard to keep order.

A group of Oratorian Fathers, whose religious order specializes in youth work, sponsored the program.

The 17 young musicians were lined up before a battery of microphones to perform a nine-part mass written by composer Marcello Giobini, with words adapted by an editor of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, the Rev. Carlo Gasbarri. There was no religious celebration of the mass.

The Rev. Sinaldo Sinaldi, a Dominican priest, opened the concert with this explanation:

"In a hard and merciless era like ours, a profane music can be useful in expressing religious sentiments — although I want to assure you that the promoters of this enterprise have absolutely no intention of putting light music into the church's official cult, that is, its worship."

The Rome newspaper Il Messaggero commented: "Never before has there ever been seen such a crowd, unleashing punches and kicks, assaulting a barred door, just to be able to assist at a mass."

were ducking the Americans, the U.S. 1st Infantry Division reported finding hundreds of tons of abandoned Viet Cong supplies at a huge storage center near the Cambodian frontier 70 miles northwest of Saigon. It was one of the biggest hauls of the war.

The "Big Red One" said at least 30 large caches of rice, salt, cooking oil and clothing were found in a complex of warehouses along the Rach Beng Go River, on the Ho Chi Minh Trail. The jungle network of suply lines is the major infiltration route for men and supplies from North Viet Nam through eastern Laos and Cambodia.

Air Assaults

U S. planes continued the air war against the Communist north without letup Wednesday, setting aflame one antiaircraft missile site and spotting two more near the coastal city of Vinh, a spokesman reported. This is the farthest south any have been sighted in North Viet Nam.

The spokesman said the Communists sent up two missiles against U S. F4C Phantoms, but the supersonic jets evaded them

Air Force fighter-bombers ranged around Dong Hoi, less than 50 miles from the South Vietnamese border, while Navy planes headed farther north to Vinh

A U S. spokesman reported that the Strategic Air Command's second B52 raid on North Viet Nam's Mu Gia Pass, straddling the Laotian border, had closed the mountain roadway again and also destroyed seven trucks. The pass, which links up with the Ho Chi Minh Trail, was reopened by thousands of laborers after the first B52 raid April 12.

The B52s returned to South Viet Nam this morning, saturating suspected Communist troops concentrations 50 miles southeast of Da Nang. Other U S Air Force and Navy planes ranged the country in support of ground operations

U.S. spokesmen announced that a multibattalion Marine operation known as Wyoming was underway a few miles west of the 1st Marine Division positions at Chu Lai Eight Viet Cong were reported killed and two weapons captured in the operation, which began Tuesday

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese government sources said today that Red China's third nuclear explosion, expected early next month, may be a preliminary hydrogen bomb test

They said the year's interval since Peking's last atomic explosion would have given Chinese scientists enough time to put them on the verge of thermonuclear capability They said the blast may come in two weeks, if weather permits, as part of a Chinese Communist effort to boost their international prestige during May Day celebrations in the Communist world

Sources in Washington reported Wednesday night that the U S government has advised its allies to expect another atomic explosion on the Chinese mainland in the near future There was no indication of how the U.S government acquired its information, but the Central Intelligence Agency accurately predicted the first Chinese atomic explosion

Action Deferred On $8.3 Million School Request

MADISON (AP) — The Legislature's Joint Finance Committee has deferred action on a Department of Public Instruction request for an additional $8.3 million appropriation for the current biennium.

Angus B. Rothwell, state school superintendent, said the extra money was needed to avoid "a major deficit."

In a letter read at a committee meeting Wednesday, Rothwell said the deficit loomed because of legislation approved last year that included a bill basing school aids on current enrollments

"The State Department of Public Instruction recommends that the Legislature appropriate the additional funds in the May session so that the fiscal effects of the new legislation will not result in a major deficit for the 1967 legislative session," Rothwell's letter said.

Ducks Killed, Swan Maimed By Vandals

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eight mallards have been slain and a black neck swan has been maimed and Milwaukee County Zoo officials are seeking a police investigation

The eight mallards were killed by vandals in the last month, said George Speidel, zoo director Wednesday. Some were shot The swan's left wing was shattered and had to be amputated.

"It has a good chance of recovering," Speidel said. "But swans are prone to infection We'll know in about two weeks"

Court Rules GM Violation

Says Corporation Case Was 'Classic' In Trade Restraint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court decided today General Motors Corp. violated antitrust law by trying to ban sale of Chevrolets through discount houses in the Los Angeles area.

Justice Department counsel contended such sales would increase competition at the retail level and thus benefit consumers.

GM attorneys argued the auto giant had to have a dependable dealer organization and said discount houses are not needed to create price competition.

Justice Abe Fortas delivered the unanimous decision.

Fortas said the high tribunal found in today's case "a classic conspiracy in the restraint of trade."

His opinion said there was "joint, collaborative action by dealers, the defendant associations and General Motors to eliminate a class of competitors by terminating business dealings between them and the minority of Chevrolet dealers and to deprive franchise dealers of their freedom to deal through discounters if they so choose"

Highway Death Toll Reaches 253

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death of a Beloit woman has brought Wisconsin's 1966 highway death to 253, compared with 247 on this date a year ago

Mrs. Isabelle Klimas, 79, of Beloit was injured fatally Wednesday night when struck by a car as she was crossing a street in the Beloit residential area.

maintain their manpower levels through recruitment and through infiltration of forces from North Viet Nam.

Officials say that achieving this point in turning the tide of the war depends on several other assumptions. One of these is that the developing political situation in South Viet Nam will not seriously impair military operations during the coming summer and fall Not all Washington authorities agree that this is a reasonable assumption at this time, since recent demonstrations against the Saigon government slowed military operations

Other Assumptions

Other important assumptions underlying the forecast of a turning point in the war are.

1 That the Viet Cong will not radically alter their strategy and seek to avoid combat in the months ahead in order to reduce their loss rate

2 That North Viet Nam and Red China will not radically alter the major dimensions of the war by intervention which would expand it into a different kind of conflict.

In summary, the projection of a turning point is based on the assumption that the war will continue to develop along the lines which have characterized the conflict in recent months

Red Losses

According to figures and rough estimates now available from officials here, the Viet Cong suffered manpower losses in killed, captured, wounded, and defections during the first four months of this year amounting to considerably more than 20,000 men Government figures show a total of about 15,000 Communists killed in action and probably another 5,000 men counted as defectors

In the same four months, however, the Viet Cong replacements were estimated at about 32,000, consisting of an infiltration of troops from North Viet Nam at 4,500 a month and recruitment in the South of guerrilla fighters, porters and the like at the rate of 3,500 per month.

U S. strategists agree that, as these figures suggest, Viet Cong forces still are increasing in spite of the fact that U.S. troops with their heavy firepower have been building up rapidly in South Viet Nam for a year now American government estimates put Viet Cong main force strength at 47,750 in June 1965, 70,100 in December 1965, and 90,000 in April 1966 In addition, local guerrilla and supporting forces of the Communists are estimated at 100,000 to 120,000

U S military authorities estimate that the Viet Cong forces now have 111 combat battalions at their disposal and will have 155 by the end of this year. At that level, U S experts say, the Communists probably will require about 150 tons of supplies daily.

The dominant view in administration planning is that heavy and sustained air strikes against the Communist supply lines do and will put a ceiling on replacement capacity and do limit the ability of the Viet Cong to maintain their strength.

U S authorities also assume that the Viet Cong's ability to recruit fighters in the countryside in South Viet Nam is limited and will decrease as the war goes against them

VC Defections

Similarly, authorities here say that Viet Cong defections increase and those of the South Vietnamese forces decrease in periods when relative political stability prevails in Saigon and when it appears that the Communists are being beaten militarily

Secretary of Defense Robert S McNamara and various military leaders said toward the end of last year that "we have stopped losing the war."

They have shied away, however, from making any over-all claims of victory or trying to lay down a blueprint for victory in the future.

Morale Effect

The most that officials claim now for the point at which Viet Cong losses would begin to run ahead of replacements is that it should have a damaging effect on Viet Cong morale.

On the other hand, officials from President Johnson down are opposed to making more than tentative assumptions about future developments in Viet Nam which are beyond their control. They cannot rule out the possibility of a radical change in Communist strategy either to escalate the war, or to pull back from combat.

Union Head Calls Wage Increase Guide 'Economic Nonsense'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the Communication Workers of America, AFL-CIO, told the telephone union's bargaining policy committee Wednesday that the government's 3.2 per cent guideline for wage increases is "economic nonsense"

Joseph A. Beirne thus in effect served notice that the 400,000 worker union will ignore the guidelines in negotiations opening soon with major segments of the Bell system

McNamara Is Bombarded by Official Guns

O'Konski Joins in To Criticize Defense Secretary's Decisions

BY FRANCES McKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The recent blasts levelled at Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara by the House Armed Services Committee over the B52 bomber shortage is only the beginning of a series of bombardments to which the Secretary may look forward in the near future.

This information was given by a usually reliable source who said that three additional Armed Services subcommittees would level their guns at the Secretary in other areas of what is called the "military picture."

No Identity

The next criticism of the Department of Defense will come from the subcommittee on National Planning and Preparedness. After that, committees on Manpower and Research and Development, and the Draft will air their complaints on the way the department is being run, according to a high authoritative source, who did not want to be identified.

In the meantime, Rep. Alvin F. O'Konski, who was not a member of the B52 subcommittee initiating the fire against McNamara, said, however, he agreed with the subcommittees allegations against the secretary.

Charges "Error"

"Mr. McNamara was in error when he endorsed production of the F1-11 bomber," O'Konski said. "That bomber is so loaded down any communist MIG could blast it out of the skies."

He also deplored McNamara's contention that full orders of bombers and other implements of war would be coming off the production line in from six to nine months.

"What good does that do us now in Viet Nam?" demanded O'Konski. "I never heard of a battle being won by ammunition 'on order'".

Officers said many of Garland's main arteries were closed due to high water There were no reports of injuries in Garland.

The flooding followed rain storms in the area, which also pounded parts of Oklahoma and Southern Illinois. Wet weather also covered broad areas today from the northern Plains to the Atlantic Coast

Small Tornado

A small tornado struck the southeast section of Granite City, Ill., near St Louis today, but there were no injuries. Property damage was minor.

Earlier, twisters hit several communities in Texas and Oklahoma but no injuries were reported. Several houses and barns were destroyed and others danaged

Tornadoes and funnel clouds were reported in eastern Oklahoma and northern Texas. including twisters at Calvin and Coleman, Okla., and near Denton, Decatur and Denison in Texas. Heavy hail peppered Denton and hail also pelted Denison, Jefferson City, Mo., and Coalgate and Savanna, Okla.

The spring snow storm in the northern Plains and Rocky Mountain region tapered off after dumping up to nearly a foot of snow in Minot N.D. Snow flurries continued in western Montana, with light snow in eastern North Dakota and west central Minnesota

Gale Winds

Gale winds Wednesday which caused the worst waterfront flood in 14 years along Lake Erie from Monroe, Mich., to Port Clinton, Ohio, diminished, but thousands of persons were forced to evacuate their homes Between 5,000 and 6,000 persons were forced to leave their homes in the Monroe area and from 1,200 to 1,400 persons moved out of their homes in Toledo A Red Cross spokesman in Toledo estimated damage to 300 houses at $250,000.

Auctioneer's Chant Gets Funds for Xavier

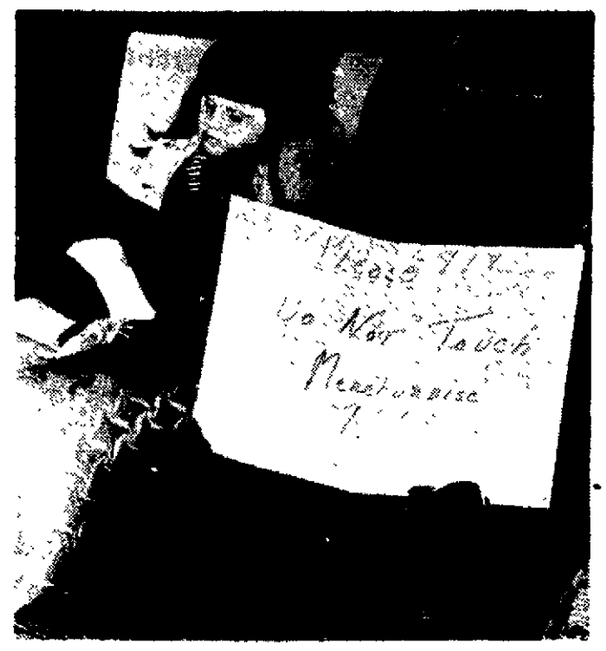

Orville Sturm Kept his eye open for bids as John Van Groll offered a selection of books at the Xavier Parents Club auction Saturday afternoon. Lamps, garden and garage implements, furniture and a wide variety of household items went to the highest bidders at the fund-raising event.

Almost anything in the way of household goods that can be moved was moved twice last weekend—once to Xavier High School and again to the homes of those men and women — who bid on them successfully.

The auction was part of the Xavier Parents Club effort to raise funds for a school athletic and physical education field and to support other projects carried out by the club.

Professional auctioneers were on hand to sing their chant, point their fingers as bids rolled in, and extol the virtues and value of particular items.

Mrs. LeRoy Fox was general chairman of the program. Working with her were Mr. and Mrs. Clement Rankin, Mrs. Delmar Schwaller, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dexheimer, Mr. and Mrs. David LaViolette, Dr. and Mrs. Leo Murphy and Jerome Koeppe.

Sharon Hayostek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hayostek couldn't maintain an interest in the auction proceedings, and the singsong chant of the auctioneer lulled her to sleep. Unaware of the hubbub around her, she dozed contentedly in the background. At left, part of the crowd that attended the 1 to 5 p.m. program waited and watched for favored items to be put on the block. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Artistry in Paper Invites Variation

BY REBA & BONNIE CHURCHILL

Building scenes from paper is a fascinating pastime that produces everything from murals to appliques for sun hats and tote purses.

Almost any kind of paper can be utilized — tissue, cardboard, poster sheets or foil. Each introduces a unique texture. For example, tissue paper produces the same wispy quality as a piece of net, foil the shimmer of satin, cardboard the coarseness of denim.

Usually a scenic design, such as those created by artist Dianan Nies, begins with a piece of white poster board. A pattern is lightly sketched on with pencil. Once balance and proportions have been perfected, colors are tested, not with paper, but with art pencils. Filing-in the poster board pattern with colored pencils provides a 'preview' of what the completed scene will look like. It also assures over-all harmony.

Choose Papers

When satisfied, papers are chosen and cutting begins. Sometimes, as many as two or three layers of paper are used to create an embossed effect. Also, by placing the stronger tones on the bottom and the lighter ones on top, a shaded appearance can be achieved.

Particularly interesting is a scissor-shaping technique. Crescents of foil are used to simulate highlights, slivers of poster paper are ideal for outlining, while streaks of art paper duplicate motion or action

The most important part of such art work, however, is gluing the pieces onto the background. A milk base glue is used; it is aplied sparingly. The adhesive is always added to the center of the paper, never the rim: then, when pressed into position, the glue does not spread past its border.

An optional step is spraying on a "fixative", so that mural is soil-proof and fade-resistant.

A similar snip 'n' secure method can be used in appliquing sun hats and tote purses, except the paper is backed with cloth and the pieces laminated on with plastic spray.

Many professional artists enjoy working in both fabric and paper. They point out that yardage offers such a wide variety of printed designs, they can go from op art to pop art to bop art with just the cut of the scissors to create their own medium of "putter painting."

Fabric Frequently can be used to decorate accessories with unusual appliques. Rhinestones and other bits from discarded costume jewelry tip the butterflies' antennae on this wastebasket and tissue dispenser. Other materials favored by professional designers are fabric flowers and artificial pearls.

Water Re-Shapes Washed Gloves

Once the washing suds have been rinsed out of fabric gloves, they can be re-shaped under running warm water.

Let this flow through each glove to inflate the fingers and hand cavities. The water pressure smoothes the fabric and straightens the fingers so the gloves need no finger-pressing after being drip-dried.

FWD Workers Want to Meet Informally With Teamsters

Many Sign Petition for New Agent

CLINTONVILLE — Disenchanted FWD Corp. production workers, who have been off their jobs since Tuesday noon on a "wildcat" strike, this morning were reportedly giving solid support to a petition asking to meet with Teamsters Union officials.

Well over half of the 500 FWD Corp. employes, after an informal meeting this morning, decided they would not return to their jobs and would meet again at 9 a.m. Friday. Today's meeting was held outside the armory when city officials refused to open the doors because the session had no official union or company sanction. No other decisions were reached and it appeared that the gathering was primarily to muster support for another bargaining agent.

workers who were waiting for the Armory to open for an informal meeting, were said to have signed the petition calling for an exploratory conference to determine if another bargaining agent would "give them better representation."

A majority of the firm's 1,500 workers are now represented by Local No. 815, Allied Industrial Workers, AFL-CIO.

Few Workers

Only a few workers reported for the day shift at the plant today, Philip Larnino, vice president and general manager, said. He could make no estimate of company losses due to the two-day work stoppage.

The wildcat walkout started Tuesday noon when 41 welders allegedly walked off their jobs, in sympathy with a fellow worker who was sent home for circulating a grievance.

The work stoppage is the first in 23 years of company history and the first since a national union has represented the truck manufacturing employes.

It has been emphasized that this walkout is not a strike. There are no picket lines and the union has had nothing to do with the action taken by the men.

Met Earlier

Wednesday morning the men were informed they should report to work and a union meeting would start at 4 p.m. in the armory. However, the men did not report to work, but met earlier in the afternoon at the armory.

"The company will not bargain with us as long as the shop is closed," Percy Mitchell,

Little Wolf Voters to Pick School Site

Board Recommends McCabe Property For New Building

MANAWA — Electors in Little Wolf School District will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the high school fieldhouse to vote on a site for the proposed school building.

They will have a chance to vote for the Charles McCabe property, east of the city, or the Ervin Klemm property, west of the city or neither.

After thorough study and consultation with state experts the school board has recommended the McCabe property as the site for the new school. Although the district voters have rejected the site more then once, the board still feels the McCabe property would be the best choice. Therefore, electors are being given another chance to voice their preference.

Give Reasons

Board members explain they have recommended the McCabe property because it is in the center of the city's population; two roads, County Trunk N and Fourth Street serve it; it adjoins property being developed for recreational purposes; it is located on high ground; the soil is good, and four architects have recommended it, as well as the building division of the state department.

The proposed sites will be discussed Tuesday night before a vote is taken.

State Aeronautics Director Blasts FFA Delays in Aid

14 Requests Submitted, Eight Received Aid, Conference Told

LACROSSE — Delays by the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) in making construction aid allocations to Wisconsin airports were criticized Wednesday by T. K. Jordan, director Wisconsin State Aeronautics Commission.

Speaking here at the 11th annual State Aeronautics conference, Jordan said the FAA delays have been the roots of adverse publicity in Wisconsin newspapers during the past year.

He said 14 requests for federal aid have gone to FAA from Wisconsin, but only eight have received allocations. Of the eight Jordan stated, "only five were in such shape that they could be accepted and placed in grant agreement."

Cross Wind Runway

(Outagamie County has requested federal aid for construction of a cross wind runway as part of the FAA's 1966 program. The request has been before the federal agency since late last year but there has been no indication of how and when the FAA will act.)

"The Federal Airport Aid Act," Jordan said, "requires allocations paid in any fiscal year must be placed under grant agreement within that year. So much of the fiscal year has been consumed by the FAA in considering requests that little time is left for placing allocations yet to come under grant agreement

Costly Delays

"The matter is so acute that some sponsors (such as Outagamie County) have sought congressional assistance. Gov. (Warren) Knowles has advised the entire Wisconsin congressional delegation of this situation."

Jordan claimed that "from the state and the sponsors' standpoint the delays are costly, frustrating and discouraging to a point where some essential projects are not undertaken because of the extremely long time between the establishment of the need for the project at the local level and the time that construction is undertaken."

He said airport construction in Wisconsin in the next four years will cost an estimated $25 million. "Paying for the improvements," Jordan stated, "has a challenging problem." He said Knowles has appointed an aviation advisory board with the responsibility of finding a means of financing the state's share of the program now estimated at $8 million.

He said, "we can expect about $4.5 million from the FAA in the four years if the Federal Airport Act extension appropriating $75 million per year for the next five years, passes congress in its present form."

North Central Case

Jordan briefly touched on the North Central Airlines Regional Airport case which was concluded earlier this year and cost the Fox Cities and Clintonville regular service from that airline.

"The question that should be answered now," Jordan said, "is how many people from the discontinued communities are using the Civil Aeronautics Board-designated slant stops for air service. The information is extremely important to airport system planning and should be obtained in the near future.

Referring to air taxi service and commutor airlines such as Air Wisconsin that operates between the Fox Cities and Chicago, Jordan said, "their development and expansion requires the state to agressively expand navigation aids in cooperation with the airport owners at an early date."

Sentences on all of the charges were stayed and Hicks was placed on probation to the State Department of Public Welfare.

Bland Released on $1,000 Reduced Bond In Fatal Shooting

OSHKOSH — County Judge James Sitter Wednesday reduced from $5,000 to $1,000 the bond for James E. Bland, 19, Racine, charged with homicide by negligent use of firearms. Bland then was released on bond.

Bland is charged with the fatal wounding of Lawrence Johnson, 19, also of Racine, at a birthday party Friday night at Butte Des Morts.

Judge Sitter placed the bond at $5,000 Monday. Bland's next appearance will be at 10 a.m. Monday when he is expected to enter a plea to the charge.

The Iola Mill, Which has been grinding out flour since 1860, has been purchased from Lake Iola Estates, Inc., and will be converted into a museum.

Grind Out Memories

Iola Mill to Become Museum

IOLA — The historic Iola mill may soon be grinding out memories instead of grist and flour.

The mill has been sold by Lake Iola Estates Inc. to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strand. They have indicated that the mill, the main building in the complex, will be used to exhibit memorabilia, pictures, documents and books. One portion of the ground floor probably will be converted into an office and souvenir shop.

Lake Iola Estates acquired the mill and adjacent land from F. J. Wipf, great-grandson of the founder, in 1963.

The central section of the flour mill is one of the oldest buildings in Iola and is believed to have been built in 1860 by Henry Wipf and sons, Jacob and Conrad, in company with Alexander H. Shannon, a miller from Amherst. The two wings and porch of the building were added in the 1870s.

Henry Wipf, who immigrated from Switzerland with his family, pioneered on a quarter section of land which today includes Keatings Lake east of here. In 1860 he sold his land to S. S. Chandler in exchange for a two-thirds interest in the sawmill owned by Chandler and Baldwin in village on the south branch of the Little Wolf River.

The original sawmill building, which stood on the north bank of the river, was later demolished and a larger mill built in its place sometime after Baldwin sold his interest to the Wipfs in 1866.

The stone-constructed engine room which stands between the flour mill and the river also will be part of the museum.

All Kinds of Plans

"We've got all kinds of plans," Strand said, "but, just how many of them we can work out, only time will tell. First thing we've got to do is to sweep away the cobwebs. We hope eventually to get the water turbine back in operation so people can see how flour is ground But this calls for more study."

Pastor Celebrates 50 Years as Priest

Sacred Heart Parish Sets Observance for Msgr. Schmit

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Emil J. Schmit, pastor emeritus of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, will celebrate his 50th anniversary of ordination Sunday and Tuesday.

A golden jubilee reception is scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday in the school cafeteria for parishioners and friends. At 5 p.m. a Mass of Thanksgiving will be offered in the church and at 7:30 p.m. a program will be given in Msgr. Schmit's honor in the school gym, followed by a reception for parishioners and friends in the cafeteria.

The formal celebration will be on Tuesday. Msgr. Schmit will celebrate the Solemn High Mass at 10:30 a.m. with the Most Rev. Stanislaus Bona, bishop of the Green Bay Diocese, presiding from the throne. The Christian Mothers Society will serve dinner in the school cafeteria for the priest's friends and special guests.

Campion College

Msgr. Schmit was born Jan. 5, 1887 in Green Bay and received his elementary schooling in St. Francis Xavier Cathedral Parish. He began his studies for the priesthood at Campion College, Prairie du Chien, later transferring to St. Francis Seminary, Milwaukee.

Ordained to the priesthood April 14, 1916 at St. Francis Xavier Cathedral by the Most Rev. Paul P. Rohde, his first appointment was as assistant pastor of St. Mary, Menasha.

In 1918 he was appointed assistant at Most Precious Blood, New London, and two months later became pastor f St. Joseph Church, Crandon, with missions at Argonne and Hiles.

St. Isidore at Meeme with a mission at St. Fidelis at Spring Valley and Osman were assigned to him in 1924 and in 1927 Father Schmit was appointed pastor of St. Wendel at Cleveland.

Pastor At Sacred Heart

In 1934 he went to Holy Angels, Darboy, and in 1941 he became pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Appleton, where he has remained ever since.

During the past 25 years many buildings were added and renovated. In 1950 a new church was built and six classrooms added to the school. The school gym and cafeteria and the rectory were constructed in 1952. Seven more classrooms were added and an addition built to the convent in 1955: a convent chapel was completed in 1957.

In 1963 the old school building was completely renovated and a housekeepers apartment and priests' garage were added to the rectory in 1964.

Through the endeavors of Father Schmit, the Perpetual Adoration program was initiated at Sacred Heart, which was the first parish in the diocese to have such a program.

FWD Workers Petition For Teamsters Meeting union president, told the men shortly after 2:30 p.m.

Heckling, jeers and shouts of "No" greeted Mitchell's statement and entry to return to their jobs.

At the 4 p.m. meeting called by the union, Clifford L. Matchey, Milwaukee, international representative for the AIW, told the men, "The officers, bargaining committee and stewards of this union are asking you to report back to work."

The men again shouted, "No." They said they were not returning to work until they had wage increases.

After a few minutes, Matchey repeated, his plea "for the record."

Wouldn't Sanction Session

The union did not announce plans for another meeting and refused to sanction this morning's scheduled gathering.

Frank A. Sinkewicz, director of industrial relations at the FWD Corp., confirmed by letter to Local No. 815 Wednesday, that as soon as the men return to work, the company will bargain.

The action taken by the workers is described as an illegal walk-out. Mitchell told the men that by not being at work, they were violating a clause in their contract.

As recently as last Friday, the company and union bargaining committees were in process of negotiating with the next meeting to be held at their mutual convenience.

AIW officials have been meeting with company representatives since early this year to negotiate a new contract. The present three-year contract expires Aug. 31.
